Together with his brethren, and with all
Them that came with him to the funeral.
Now Joseph’s brethren being well aware
That they were fatherless, began to fear
That he would hate them, and requite them all
The evil they had treated him withal.
Wherefore to him they sent a messenger
And said, Behold our father did declare
Before he died, that we should come and say,
Forgive thy brethren’s trespasses, I pray;
And their misdeeds, for they have been unkind.
And now we humbly pray thee be inclin’d
To pardon our offences, and the rather
For that we serve the God e’en of thy father.
And Joseph wept when they thus spake, and they Came nearer, and before him prostrate lay,
And said, We are thy servants all this day.
And Joseph bad them not to be afraid,
For in the place of God am I he said:

For though you meant me ill, God meant it good,
And sent me hither to provide you food.
Now therefore trouble not yourselves, for I
Will nourish you, and all your family.
After this manner did he satisfy,
And treat them with extreme civility.
And Joseph and his father’s house remain’d
In Egypt, and he liv’d till he attain’d
An hundred and ten years, and liv’d to see
Of Ephraim’s children to the third degree.
And Macher’s children of Manasseh’s tribe
Were also born some time before he died.
Then Joseph said, My brethren, lo! I die,
But God will visit you undoubtedly;
And to that land again whereof he spake
Unto our ancestors, will bring you back.
And Joseph also made his brethren swear,
That they would not inter his body there.
And thus he ended his life’s pilgrimage,
Being an hundred and ten years of age;
And was embalm’d, and in a coffin laid,
In Egypt, till he could be thence convey’d.

THE GENERAL EPISTLE OF JAMES

CHAP. I.

Unto the twelve tribes scattered abroad,
James, an apostle of the living God,
And of the Lord Christ Jesus, salutation.
My brethren, when you fall into temptation
Of divers kinds, rejoice, as men that know
From trial of your faith doth patience flow.
But let your patience have its full effect,
That you may be entire, without defect.
If any of you lack wisdom, let him cry
To God, and he will give it lib’rally,
And not upbraid. But let him ask in faith,
Not wavering, for he that wavereth,
Unto a wave o’ th’ sea I will compare,
Driv’n with the wind and tossed here and there.
For let not such a man himself deceive,
To think that he shall from the Lord receive.
A double-minded man most surely lacketh
Stability in all he undertaketh.
Let ev’ry brother of a low degree
Rejoice in that he is advanc’d, but he

That’s rich in being made low, for he shall pass
Away, as doth the flow’r of the grass.
For as the grass, soon as the sun doth rise,
Is scorch’d by reason of the heat, and dies;
Its flow’r fades, and it retains no more
The beauteous comeliness it had before,
So fades the rich man, maugre all his store.
The man is blest that doth endure temptation
For when he’s try’d, the crown of God’s salvation,
The which the Lord hath promised to give
To them that love him, that man shall receive.
Let no man be possest with a persuasion,
To say, when he falls under a temptation,
That God’s the cause; for with no evil can
God be tempted, nor tempts he any man.
But every man is tempted when he’s drawn
Away, and by his lusts prevail’d upon;
Then when lust hath conceiv’d, it ushereth
In sin, and sin when finished brings death.
Err not, my brethren, whom I dearly love,
Each good and perfect gift is from above,
Down from th’ original of lights descending,
With whom’s no change, nor shadow thereto tending,
According to his own good pleasure, he Begat us with the word of truth, that we should as the first fruits of his creatures be.
Wherefore, beloved brethren, I entreat you to be swift to hear, and slow to speak,
And slow to wrath, for wrath cannot incline the sons of men to righteousness divine.
Wherefore avoiding ev’ry filthiness,
And superfluity of naughtiness:
Receive with meekness the engrafted word, which can salvation to your souls afford.
But be ye doers of the word each one,
And not deceive yourselves to hear alone;
For he that hears the word and doth it not, is like unto a man that hath forgot what kind of man he was, tho’ in a glass he just before beheld his nat’ral face.
But whoso minds the law of liberty in its perfection, and continually abides therein, forgets not what he’s heard, but doth the work and therein hath reward.
If any man among you seem to be religious, he deceives himself if he doth not his tongue as with a bit restrain; and all that man’s religion is but vain.
Religion, pure and undefil’d, which is acceptable before the Lord, is this: to visit widows and the fatherless, in time of their affliction or distress; and so to regulate his conversation, as to be spotless in his generation.

CHAP. II.

Faith of the Lord of glory, Jesus Christ, doth with respect of persons not consist; for if, my brethren, when there shall come in to your assembly one with a gold ring, in goodly clothes, and there shall also be another man that’s meanly cloth’d, and ye shall have respect to him in rich attire, and say unto him, come thou, sit up higher; and bid the poor man stand or sit below, are ye not partial then, and plainly show, that you do judge amiss in what you do?

Hearken, my brethren, hath not God elected the poor, who by this world have been rejected; yet rich in faith, and of that kingdom heirs, which God will give his foll’wers to be theirs? but you, my brethren, do the poor despise. Do not the rich men o’er you tyrannise; and hale ye to their courts; that worthy name by which you’re call’d do not they blaspheme? then if ye do the royal law fulfil, to love thy neighbour as thyself, ’tis well, according to the scripture; but if ye shall have respect to persons, ye shall be guilty of sin, and by the law condemn’d, as such who have its righteousness contemn’d. For he that shall but in one point offend, breaks the whole law, whate’er he may pretend. For he that doth forbid adultery, forbids likewise all acts of cruelty. Now tho’ thou be not an adulterer, yet if thou kill, thou shalt thy judgment bear. So speak and do as those men that shall be judg’d by the perfect law of liberty: for he shall judgment without mercy know; that to his neighbour doth no mercy show; and mercy triumphs against judgment too. Brethren what profit is’t if a man saith that he hath faith, and hath not works; can faith save him? if any of the brotherhood be destitute of clothes or daily food, and one of you shall say, depart in peace, be warned or be ye fill’d ne’ertheless. ye do not furnish them with what they need, what boots it? thus faith without works is dead. ye may a man say, thou dost faith profess, and I good works, to me thy faith express without thy works, and I will plainly show my faith unto thee by the works I do. thou dost believe there is one God, ’tis true, the devils do believe and tremble too. But wilt thou know, vain man, that faith is dead, which with good works is not accompany’d. was not our father Abraham justify’d by works, and by the same his faith was try’d; when he his Isaac to the altar brought; seest thou how with his works his faith then wrought?
Of meekness, wisely give a demonstration,
Of all his works, from a good conversation.
But if your hearts are full of bitterness
And strife, boast not, nor do the truth profess.
This wisdom is not from above descending,
But earthly, sensual, and to evil tending:
For where there’s strife and envying there’s confusion
And ev’ry evil work in the conclusion.
But the true wisdom that is from above,
Is, in the first place, pure, then full of love,
Then gentle and entreated easily,
Next merciful, without partiality,
Full of good fruits, without hypocrisy.
And what is more, the fruits of righteousness
Is sown in peace, of them that do make peace.

CHAP. IV.

From whence come wars and fights, come they not hence,
Ev’n from th’ inordinate concupiscence
That in your members prompts to variance?
You lust and have not, kill and desire to have;
But ne’ertheless obtain not what you crave.
With war and fighting ye contend, yet have not
The things which you desire, because you crave not;
Ye crave but don’t receive, the reason’s just,
Ye crave amiss to spend it on your lust.
You that live in adultery, know not ye
The friendship of the world is enmity
With God? He is God’s enemy therefore
That doth the friendship of the world adore.
Do ye think that th’ scripture saith in vain,
The spirit that lusts to hate, doth in you reign?
But he bestows more grace, wherefore he says,
God scorns the proud, but doth the humble raise.
Unto the Lord therefore submissive be,
Resist the devil and he’ll from you flee.
Draw nigh to God, and he’ll to you draw nigh.
Make clean your hands you sinners, purify
Your hearts you double-minded, weep and mourn,
And be afflicted, let your laughter turn
To sorrow, and your joy to sadness: stoop
Before the Lord, and he will lift you up.
My brethren, speak not evil of each other;
He that doth judge and speak ill of his brother,
Doth judge and speak ill of the law; therefore
If thou dost judge the law, thou art no more
A doer of the same, but dost assume
The judgment-seat, and art thyself become
A judge thereof. There is but one law-giver,
That’s able to destroy and to deliver;
Who then art thou that dost condemn thy neighbour?
Go to now, you that say, to such a place
To-morrow will we go, and for the space
Of one whole year, or so, will there remain,
And buy and sell, and get great store of gain:
Whereas ye know not what a day may do.
For what’s the life of man? Ev’n like unto
A vapour, which, tho’ for a while it may Appear, it quickly vanisheth away.
So that ye ought to say, If God permit
Us life and health, we will accomplish it.
But now ye glory in your confidence,
Such glorying is of evil consequence.
He therefore that doth know, and doth not act
The thing that’s good, doth guilt thereby contract.

CHAP. V. 13

Go to now, O ye rich men, howl and cry,
Because of your approaching misery:
Your riches are corrupted, and the moths
Have ent’red, and have eaten up your clothes.
Your gold and silver’s canker’d, and the rust
Thereof, shall be an evidence that’s just
Against you, and like fire your flesh devour:
Against the last days ye have heap’d up store.
The hire of them that reaped down your field,
The which by you is wrongfully withheld.
Cries, and the voice thereof hath reach’d the ears
Ev’n of the God of sabbath, and he hears.
Your lives in pleasure ye on earth have led,
And as in days of slaughter nourished
Your wanton hearts, and have condemn’d and slain
The just, and he doth not resist again.
Be patient therefore, brethren, ev’n unto
The coming of the Lord: behold, ev’n so

The husbandman expecteth patiently
The precious increase of the earth to see,
With patience waiting till he doth obtain
The showers of early and of latter rain.
So be ye patient, fixing stedfastly
Your hearts, for the coming of the Lord draws nigh.
Grieve not each other, brethren, lest ye bear
The condemnation; 14 lo! the judge stands near.
The prophets, brethren, who all heretofore
In the name of the Lord their witness bore,
Take for examples in their sufferings
And patience: they that endure such things,
Ye know are counted blest. Have ye not read
Of Job, how patiently he suffered?
Have ye not seen in him what was God’s end;
How he doth pity and great love extend?
My brethren, but above all things forbear,
By heav’n or earth, or otherwise to swear;
But let your yea be yea, your nay be nay,
Lest ye become reprovable I say.
Let him sing psalms that’s merry; he that’s griev’d,
Let him by prayer seek to be reliev’d.
If any of you by sickness be distress’d,
Let him the elders of the church request
That they would come and pray for him a while;
Anointing him in the Lord’s name with oil;
So shall the pray’r that is of faith restore
The sick, and God shall raise him as before.
And all th’ offences which he hath committed
Shall be forgiv’n, and he shall be acquitted.
Confess your faults each one unto his brother,
And put up supplications for each other,
That so you may be heal’d; the fervency
Of just men’s prayers prevails effectually.
Elias was a man as frail as we are,
And he was earnest with the Lord in pray’r,
That there might be no rain, and for the space
Of three years and six months no rain there was:
And afterward, when he again made suit,
The heav’n gave rain, the earth brought forth her fruit.

14 How admirably does Bunyan enlarge upon this in his ‘Peaceable principles yet true.’
If any one shall from the truth desert,
And one, my brethren, shall that man convert;
Let him be sure, that he that doth recall
The poor backsliding sinner from his fall,

Shall save a soul from death, and certainly Shall hide a multitude of sins thereby.
