The narrow shall things for itself prepare:
Sufficient to the day is each day’s care.

CHAP. VII.
Judge not that you may not be judged; for even
As you pass judgment, judgment shall be given:
And with such measure as you mete to men,
It shall be measured unto you again.
And why dost thou take notice of the note
That’s in thy brother’s eye; but dost not note
The beam that’s in thine own? How will thou say
Upto thy brother, let me take away
The note that’s in thine eye, when yet ’tis plain
The beam that’s in thine own doth still remain?
First cast away the beam, then hypercrite,
From thine own eye, so shall thine clearer sight
The better be enabled to descry,
And pluck the mote out of thy brother’s eye.
Give not to dogs the things that are divine,
Neither cast ye your pearls before the swine
lest that they should their feet from trample under,
And turn upon you, and rend you asunder.
Ask, and obtain; seek, and ye shall find; do ye
Knock, and it shall be opened unto ye:
For he that seeketh shall find; that asks, obtain,
And he that knockes, shall an admittance gain.
Or what man is there of you, if his son
Shall ask him bread, will he give him a stone?
Or if he ask a fish, will he bestow
A serpent? If then ye being evil know
To give your children good gifts, how much rather
To them that ask him shall your heav’nly Father.
Then what you won’d men should’d to you, so do
To them: for that’s the law and prophets too.
Enter in at the strait gate, for the road
That doth unto destruction lead, is broad;
And wide the gate; and many there be that
Enter therein: because strait is the gate,
And narrow is the way that is inclin’d
To life, and which there are but few that find.
False prophets shun, who in sheep’s clothes appear,
But inwardly devoiring wolves they are:
Ye by their fruits shall know them. Do men either
Pluck grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles gather?
Even so each good tree good fruit will produce;
But a corrupt tree fruit unfit for use:
A good tree cannot bring forth evil food,
Nor can an evil tree bear fruit that’s good:
Each tree that bears not good fruit’s been down
And burnt, thus by their fruits they shall be known.
Not every one that saith Lord, Lord, but he
That doth my heav’nly Father’s will shall be
An heir of heaven: many in that day
Will call Lord, Lord, and thus to me will say:
Have we not prophesied in thy name?
Cast devils out, done wonders in the same?
And then will I profess I know you not;
Depose from me ye that have evil wrought.
Whose therefore these sayings of mine doth hear,
And doth them, to a wise man I’ll compare,
The which upon a rock his building founded,
The rails descended and the floods surrounding,
The winds arose, and gave it many a shock,
And it fell not, being founded on a rock.
And ev’ry one that hears these sayings of mine,
And not to do them both his heart incline,
Unto a foolish man shall be compared;
Who his foundation on the sand prepared:
The rain descended and the floods were great,
The winds did blow, and vehemently beat
Against that house; and down the building came,
And mighty was the downfall of the same.
And now when Jesus thus had finished
His sayings, the people were astonished
Thereat: for not as do the scribes taught he
Them, but as one that had authority.

THE PROPHECY OF JONAH.

CHAP. I.
Now unto Jonah, old Amittai’s son,
Thus did the word of the Almighty come,
And said, Arise, go thou forthwith and cry
‘Gainst that great city Nineveh; for why,
The sins thereof are come up in my sight.
But he arose, that he to Tarshish might
Flye from God’s presence; and went down and found
A ship at Joppa unto Tarshish bound:
He paid the fare, and with them went on board
For Tarshish, from the presence of the Lord.
But the Almighty a great wind did raise,
And sent a mighty tempest on the seas,
So that the ship was likely to be broken.
Then were the mariners with horror stricken;
And to his God they cried every one;
And overboard was the ship’s being thrown
To lighten it; but down into the ship
Was Jonah gone, and there by fast asleep.

So to him came the master and did say,
What meanest thou, O sleeper! arise and pray
Upto thy God, and he perhaps will hear,
And save us from the danger that we fear.
Then said they to each other, Come let’s try,
By casting lots, on whom the fault both lie,
In bringing all this evil now upon us.
So they cast lots, and the lot fell on Jonas.
Then said they, We entreat thee let us know,
For whose cause we this evil undergo,
Whence comest thou? What is thine occupation?
What countryman art thou? And of what nation?
And unto himself he did declare,
And said, I am an Hebrew, and do fear
The living Lord, the God of heaven, who
Alone hath made the sea and dry land too.
Then were the men exceedingly afraid;
And, wherefore hast thou done this thing? they said:
(For they did understand he did forego
God’s presence, for himself and told them so.)
What shall we do unto thee, then they said,
That so the raging of the sea he stay’d?
(for it did rage and foam.) Take me, said he,
And cast me overboard into the sea;
So shall the sea be calm, for on my score
I know it is, that thus the waves do roar.
Nevertheless they rowed hard to gain
The land, but all their labour was in vain;
So much against them did the tempest beat.
Wherefore they the Almighty did entreat,
And said, We do beseech thee, and we pray,
O Lord, that thou wouldst not upon us say
The charge of guiltless blood, nor let it be,
That now we perish, on’th account that we
Take this man’s life away, for thou alone
As it hath pleased thee, O Lord, hast done.
So they took Jonah up, and to the seas
Committed him, then did the tempest cease.
Then did the dread of the great God on high,
Sick on the mariners exceedingly.
And they did offer up a sacrifice,
And vowed vows unto the Lord likewise.
And now the Lord for Jonah did contrive
A mighty fish, to swallow him up alive,
And in the fish’s belly for the space
Of three days and three nights, poor Jonah was.

CHAP. II.

Univ the Lord his God then Jonah pray’d
Out of the belly of the fish, and said,
By reason of affliction, which lay sore
Upon me, I the Lord God did implore,
And he gave ear; and from Hell’s Belly I
Cry’d unto thee, and thou, Lord, heardst my cry:
For thou into the deep hadst cast me out,
And there the floods did compass me about;
In the midst of the sea, thy waves were sent,
And all thy billows which thy head o’erwent.
Then said I though thy presence kast forsake
Me, to thy holy temple will I look.
The waters compassed about my soul,
And the great deeps did round about me roll,
The reeds were wrapt about my head, I went
Down to the bottom of the element;
The earth with her strong bars surrounded me,
Yet thou, O Lord, from death hast set me free.
When my soul fainted, on the Lord I thought,
And to thee, to thy temple then was brought
My prayer. They their own mercies do deplore,
Who have regard to lying vanities.
But with the voice of my thanksgiving, I
Will offer sacrifice to thee on high,
And pay my vows which I have vow’d, each one,
For why? Salvation’s of the Lord alone.
And now the fish, as God did give command,
Did vomit Jonah out upon dry land.

CHAP. III.

And now the second time to Jonah came
God’s word, and said, Arise, go and proclaim
To that great city Nineveh, what I
Have hitherto commanded thee to cry.
So Jonah rose up, and prepar’d to go
To Nineveh, as God had bid him do.

(Note was the city Nineveh so great,
That it was three days’ journey long complete)
And as into the city Jonah made
His first day’s journey, he cry’d out and said,
When forty days shall be expired and past,
This city Nineveh shall be laid waste.
Then did the Ninivites with one accord,
Believe this was the message of the Lord;
And did proclaim a fast, and every one,
From greatest to the least, put sackcloth on:
For to the king this news was quickly flown,
And he arose, and came down from his throne,
And having laid aside his robes of state,
He put on sackcloth, and in ashes sate:
And issuing out his royal proclamation,
And through the city making publication
Thereof (being by the king and council sign’d)
A solemn and a general fast enjoin’d;
And said, I will, that neither man nor beast,
For flock, nor herd, shall their provision taste:
But let them all put sackcloth on and cry
Unto the Lord with greatest fervency;
Yea, let them all their evil ways refrain,
And from the violence which they retain.
Who knows if God will yet be pleas’d to spare,
And turn away the evil that we fear?
And God beheld their works, and saw that they
Had turned from the evil of their way.
And God turn’d from his wrath, and did revoke
The dreadful judgment whereof he had spoke.

CHAP. IV.

But heretofore Jonah was extremely vex’d,
And in his mind exceedingly perplex’d:
And to the Lord his God he pray’d, and said,
O Lord, I pray thee, was not I afraid
Of this, when I was yet at home? Therefore
I unto Tarshish took my flight before:
For that thou art a gracious God I know,
Of tender mercy, and to anger slow,
Of great compassion, and dost oft recall
The evil thou dost threat mankind withal.
Now therefore, Lord, I earnestly do pray
That thou wouldst please to take my life away,
For I had better die than live.
Dost thou
Do well, said God, to be so angry now?
So then out of the city Jonah went,
And on the east side of it made a tent;
And underneath the shade thereof he sate,
Expecting what would be the city’s fate.
And over Jonah’s head behold the Lord
Prepar’d, and caus’d to come up a gourd
To shadow him, and ease him of his grief;
And Jonah was right glad of this relief.
But God a worm sent early the next day,
Which smote the gourd; it withered away:
And when the sun arose, it came to pass,
That God a vehement east wind did raise;
Besides the sun did beat upon his head,
So that he fainted, saying, Would I were dead;
For it is better for me now to die,
Than thus to lead my life in misery.

* An a cover, a booth, lower, or tent made of the boughs of trees.—Ezr.
And to distressed Jonah, said the Lord,
Dost thou well to be angry for the gourd?
And he unto the Lord made this reply,
I do well to be angry e'en to die.
Thou hast had pity, Jonah, on the gourd,
For which thou didst not labour, said the Lord,
Nor modest it to grow, which also came
Up in a night, and perish'd in the same.

THE LIFE OF JOSEPH,
TAKEN OUT OF THE LATTER PART OF THE BOOK OF GENESIS.

CHAP. XXXVII.

When Jacob from his brother Esau fled,
He by the hand of providence was led
To Padu-aram, in Assyria, where
He serv'd his uncle Laban twenty year;
During which time he was in all things blest,
And with a numerous issue amongst the rest:
Amongst whom none so pleasing in his sight
As Joseph was, who was his chief delight;
Who by the time that Jacob was return'd
Into the land, where's fathers had sojournd,
Was full arriv'd at seventeen years of age;
And by his hopefulness did then presage,
He was endued with a noble mind,
That would to virtuous actions he inclin'd;
For being sent to feed his father's flock,
Among his brethren he great notice took
Of what they did, and if in any sort
They did emizes, he thereof made report
Unto his father, and did thus create
His father's favour, but his brethren's hate.
His father lov'd him better than the rest,
As being the son wherewith his age was blest;
And that his kindness might the more appear,
Made him a party colour'd coat to wear.
But as it often hap'd, his father's love
Did in his brethren greater hatred bore.
But that which most increas'd them was his dreams,
By which, in a prophetic way, he seems
Their low submission, and his future state
Of greatness plainly to prognosticate,
For to his brethren thus his dreams he told,
And said, As we were binding sheaves, behold,
My sheaf rose and stood up in the field,
And all your sheaves stood round about, to yield
Obedience unto mine: And what, must we
Indeed, say they, be subject unto thee?
Their wrath increas'd, this added to his crime,
And Joseph dreamed yet a second time;
And said, Behold, I saw the sun and moon,
And the eleven stars to me fall down.
At which his father highly was offended,
And for these words, the lad he reprehended,
And said, Fond youth, dost thou pretend to shew
That I, thy mother, and thy brethren too,
Must all submit to thee? Thou dost but dream:
But Jacob kept his words, and thought of them.

Now Jacob's sons did feed their flocks in Shechem,
And he desired Joseph to go seek them,
And find them out, and come again and tell
If all things with them and their flocks were well.
So Joseph went, and wander'd here and there,
But could not find out where his brethren were,
Until a man had told him their intent
Of going to Dothan, where he also went.
And when his brethren at a distance saw him,
They held a consultation how to shay him,
And said, Here comes the dreamer, we shall see
What the event of all his dreams will be,
For we will kill, and in a pit will hide him,
And say some beast or other hath destroy'd him.
But Reuben somewhat tenderer than the rest,
Endavour'd to persuade them to desist
From murder, saying, Into this pit let's cast him,
And this he said in hopes to have releas'd him.
And now when Joseph came not dreading ought,
They stript him of his party colour'd coat,
And fed him to a pit that was hard by,
And threw him into't, but the pit was dry,
And sitting down to eat, they chanc'd to spy,
A company of Ishmaelites pass by,
Who with balm, myrrh, and spice, their camels lading,
From Gilead came, and were to Egypt trading.
Then Judah said, 'Twill do us little good
To shay our brother, and conceal his blood;
Come therefore, brethren, be advis'd by me,
Let's sell him to these Ishmaelites, for he
Is our own flesh, and 'tis a cruel deed,
To kill him, and to this they all agreed.
Thei'r brother then out of the pit they hale,
And to these merchants offer'd him to sale;
Who, him for twenty silver pieces bought,
And with them to the land of Egypt brought.
But Reuben, ignorant of what was done,
Came to the pit, and seeing the lad was gone,
He rent his clothes in a great consternation,
Returning back with heavy lamentation.
And now that they might make their story good
They kill'd a kid, and dipp'd in the blood
Their brother Joseph's coat, and home they came,
And to their father's view expos'd the same,
And said, This we have found, now thou dost know
Whether it be thy son's coat, yea or no.
And Jacob knew the coat full well, and said,
Now hast some evil beast devour'd the kid.
