AN

EXPOSITION,

WITH

PRACTICAL OBSERVATIONS,

OF THE BOOK OF THE PROPHET

JOEL.

We are altogether uncertain concerning the time when this prophet prophesied; it is probable that it was about the same time that Amos prophesied, not for the reason that the rabbins give, because Amos begins his prophecy with that wherewith Joel concludes his; The Lord shall roar out of Zion; but for the reason Dr. Lightfoot gives, because he speaks of the same judgments of locusts, and drought, and fire, that Amos laments, which is an intimation that they appeared about the same time, Amos in Israel, and Joel in Judah. Hosea and Obadiah prophesied about the same time; and it appears that Amos prophesied in the days of Jeroboam, the second king of Israel, Amos vii. 10. God sent a variety of prophets, that they might strengthen the hands one of another, and that out of the mouth of two or three witnesses every word might be established. In this prophecy,

I. The desolation made by hosts of noxious insects is described, ch. i. and part of ch. ii.

II. The people are hereupon called to repentance, ch. ii.

III. Promises are made of the return of mercy upon their repentance, (ch. ii.) and promises of the pouring out of the Spirit in the latter days.

IV. The cause of God's people is pleaded against their enemies, whom God would in due time reckon with; (ch. iii.) and glorious things are spoken of the gospel-Jerusalem, and of the prosperity and perpetuity of it.

JOEL, I.

CHAP. I.

This chapter is the description of a lamentable devastation made of the country of Judah by locusts and caterpillars; some think that the prophet speaks of it as a thing to come, and gives warning of it beforehand, as usually the prophets did of judgments coming. Others think that it was now present, and that his business is to affect the people with it, and awaken them by it to repentance. I. It is spoken of as a judgment which there was no precedent of in former ages, v. 1. 2. II. All sorts of people sharing in the calamity are called upon to lament it, v. 8. 13. III. They are directed to look up to God in their lamentations, and to humble themselves before him, v. 14. 19.

1. THE word of the Lord that came to Joel, the son of Pethuel. 2. Hear this, ye old men, and give ear, all ye inhabitants of the land. Hath this been in your days, or even in the days of your fathers? 3. Tell ye your children of it, and let your children tell their children, and their children another generation; 4. That which the palmer-worm hath left, hath the locust eaten; and that which the locust hath left, hath the canker-worm eaten; and that which the canker-worm hath left, hath the caterpillar eaten. 5. Awake, ye drunkards and weep: and howl, all ye drinkers of wine, because of the new wine; for it is cut off from your mouth. 6. For a nation is come up upon my land, strong, and without number, whose teeth are the teeth of a lion, and he hath the cheek-teeth of a great lion. 7. He hath laid my vine waste, and barked my fig-tree; he hath made it clean bare, and cast it away; the branches thereof are made white.

It is a foolish fancy which some of the Jews have, that this Joel the prophet was the same with that Joel who was the son of Samuel; (1 Sam. viii. 2.) yet one of their rabbins very gravely undertakes to show why Samuel is here called Pethuel. This Joel was long after that. He here speaks of a sad and sore judgment which was now brought, or to be brought, upon Judah, for their sins. Observe,

1. The greatness of the judgment, expressed here in two things. (1.) It was such as could not be paralleled in the ages that were past; in history, or in the memory of any living. v. 2. The old men were appealed to, who could remember what had happened long ago; now, and, all the inhabitants of the land are called on to testify, if they could any of them remember the like. Let them go further than any man's memory, and prepare themselves for the search of their fathers, (Job viii. 8.) and they would not find an account of the like. But those that could not see their predecessors in sin, may justly expect to fall under greater and sorer judgments than any of their predecessors knew. (2.) It was such as would not be forgotten in the ages to come; (v. 3.) "Tell ye your children of it, let them know what dismal tokens of the wrath of God you have been under, that they may take warning, and may learn obedience by the things which you have suffered, for it is designed for warning to them also. Yet, let your children tell their children, and their children another generation; let them tell it not only as a strange thing, which may serve for matter of talk," (as such uncommon accidents are recorded in our almanacks;) "it is so long since the plague, and fire—so long since the great frost, and the great wind, did visit it. It speaks to stand in awe of God and of his judgments, and to tremble before him." Note, We ought to transmit to posterity the memorial of God's judgments as well as of his mercies.

2. The judgment itself; it is an invasion of the country of Judah by a great army. Many interpreters both ancient and modern understand it of armies of locusts; the forces of the Assyrians, which, when defeated by Sennacherib, took all the defended cities of Judah, and then, no doubt, made havoc of the country, and destroyed the products of it; nay, some make the four sorts of animals here named, (v. 4.) to signify the four monarchies, which, in their turns, were oppressive to the people of the Jews, one destroying what had escaped the fury of the other. Many of the ancients have applied this to the neighbors of the Assyrians, which, after the destruction of Nineveh, made alliances with them, of which the vines and worms, which killed the fishes, are the outward effect. It is also a parabolical expression of the coming of enemies, and their multitude, to lay all waste. So the Chaldee Paraphrast mentions these animals here; (v. 4.) but afterward, (ch. ii. 25.) puts instead of them, Nations, peoples, tongues, languages, potentates, and revenging kingdoms. But it seems much rather to be understood literally of armies of insects coming upon the land, and eating up the fruits of it. Locusts were one of the plagues of Egypt; of them it is said, There never were any like them, nor should be, Exod. x. 14. None such as those in Egypt, nor such as these in Judah; none like these locusts for bigness, none like these for multitude, and the mischiefs they did; that lasted but for a few days, this here seems to have continued for four years successively, according to the destruction of the country by a foreign enemy invading it, because if the people were not humbled and reformed by that lesser judgment which devoured the land, God would send this greater upon them, which would devour the inhabitants; and by the description of that they are bid to take it for a warning. If this nation of worms does not reduce them, another nation shall come to ruin them.

3. A call to the drunkards to lament this judgment; (v. 5.) Awake and weep, all ye drinkers of wine. This intimates, (1.) That they should suffer very sensibly by this calamity; it should touch them in a tender part, the new wine which they loved so well, should be cut off from their mouths. Note, It is just with God to take away those comforts which are abused to luxury and excess, to recover the corn and wine which are prepared for Baal, which are made the food and fuel of a base lust. And to them judgments of that kind are most grievous. The more men place their happiness in the gratifications of sense, the more pressing temporal afflictions are upon them. (2.) They are bid to lament and deplore them, that those who are left to drink wine should drink it, for the fig-tree does not blossom, nor is there fruit in the vine.
hidden fruit, a prohibition of another nature shall come between the cup and the lift, and cut off the wine from their mouth.

8. Lament like a virgin girded with sackcloth for the husband of her youth. 9. The meat-offering and the drink-offering is cut off from the house of the Lord: the priests, the Lord's ministers, mourn. 10. The field is wasted, the land mourneth; for the corn is wasted: the new wine is dried up, the oil languisheth. 11. Be ye ashamed, O ye husbandmen; howl, O ye vine-dressers; for the wheat and for the barley; because the harvest of the field is perished. 12. The vine is dried up, and the fig-tree languisheth; the pomegranate, the palm-tree also, and the apple-tree, even all the trees of the field, are withered: because joy is withered away from the sons of men. 13. Gird yourselves, and lament, ye priests; howl, ye ministers of the altar; come, lie all night in sackcloth, ye ministers of my God: for the meat-offering and the drink-offering is withheld from the house of your God.

The judgment is here described as very lamentable, and such as all sorts of people should shun; it shall not only rob the drunks of their pleasures (if that were the worst of it, it might be the better borne,) but it shall deprive others of their necessary subsistence, who are therefore called to lament, (v. 8.) as a virgin laments the death of her lover, to whom she was espoused, but not completely married, yet so that he was in effect her husband; or, as a young woman lately married, from whom the husband of her youth, her young husband, or the husband to whom she was married when she was young, is suddenly taken away by death. Betwixt a new-married couple that are young, that married for love, and that are every way amiable and agreeable to each other, there is great kindness, and, consequently, great grief if either be taken away. Such lamentation shall there be for the loss of good and useful servants. The loss of such as are devoted to our creature-comforts, the harder it is to part with them. See that parallel place, Isa. xxxiii. 10.-12.

Two sorts of people are here brought in, as concerned to lament this devastation, countrymen and clergymen.

1. Let the husbandmen and wine-dressers lament, v. 11. Let them be ashamed of the vine and pomegranate, says the prophet, for it will be all labour lost, and they shall gain no advantage by it; they shall see the fruit of their labour eaten up before their eyes, and shall not be able to save any of it. Note, Those who labour only for the meat that perishes, will, sooner or later, be ashamed of their labour. The vine-dressers will then express their extreme grief by howling, when they see their hopes for what they have lost, are in fears of perishing for want, Isa. xxiv. 4.—Jer. iv. 28. The corn, the bread-corn, which is the staff of life, is wasted; the new wine, which should be brought into the celllar for recruits, when the old is drunk, is dried up, is ashamed of having promised so far what it is not now able to perform; the oil languishes, or is diminished, because (as the Chaldee renders it) the olives are fallen off. The people were not thankful to God as they should have been for the bread that strengthens man's heart, the wine that makes glad the heart, and the oil that makes the face to shine; God therefore brings this calamity upon them, to bring to lament the loss and want of them, of all the products of the earth, which God had given them either for necessity or for delight. This is repeated, v. 11, 12. The wheat and barley, the two principal grains bread was then made of, wheat for the rich, and barley for the poor; so that rich and poor meet together in the calamity. The trees are described not only the vine and the fig-tree, as before, (v. 7.) which were more useful and necessary, but other trees also that were for delight; the pomegranate, palm-tree, and apple-tree, yea all the trees of the field, as well as those of the orchard, timber-trees as well as fruit-trees. In short, all the harvest of the field is perished, v. 11. And by this means joy is withered away from the children of men; (v. 11.) the joy of harvest, which is used to be the joy of the year, is here great calamity. General woe is come to nothing, is turned into shame, is turned into lamentation. Note, The perishing of the harvest is the withering of the joy of the children of men. Those that place their happiness in the delights of sense, when they are deprived of them, or any way disturbed in the enjoyment of them, lose all their joy; whereas the children of God, who lock upon the pleasures of sense with holy indulgence and contempt, and know what it is to make God their heart's delight, can even when the fig-tree does not blossom; spiritual joy is so far from withering then, that it flourishes more than ever, Hab. iii. 17, 18.

Let us see here, (1.) What perishing, uncertain things all our creature-comforts are: we can never be sure of the continuance of them. Here the heavens had given their rains in due season, the earth had yielded her strength, and when the appointed weeks of harvest were at hand, they saw no reason to doubt but that they should have a very plentiful crop; yet then they are invaded by these untold numbers of enemies, that lay all waste, and not by fire and sword. It is our wisdom not to lay up our goods in the things which perish, but to lay up for ourselves many ill accidents. (2.) See what need we have to live in a continual dependence upon God and his providence, for our own hands are not sufficient for us. When we see the full corn in the ear, and think we are sure of it; nay, when we have brought it home, if he blow upon it, nay, if he do not bless it, we are not likely to have any of it. (3.) Note, How minims work sin makes a paradise is turned into a wilderness, a fruitful land, the most fruitful land upon earth, into barrenness, for the inpity of them that dwelt therein.
ticular manner, you are in a nearer relation to him than other Israelites are; and therefore it is expected that you should be more concerned than others for that which is a hinderance to the service of his sanctuary. It is intimated, (1.) That the people, as long as they had the fruits of the earth brought in in their season, presented to the Lord his dues out of them, and brought the offerings to the altar, and tithes to them that served at the altar. Note, A people may be filling up the measure of their iniquity, and yet may keep up a course of external performances in religion. (2.) That, when the meat and drink failed, the meat-offering and drink-offering failed of course; and this was the sorest instance of the calamity. Note, As far as any public trouble is an obstruction to the course of religion, it is to be upon that account, more than any other, sadly lamented, especially by the priests, the Lord's ministers. As far as poverty occasions the decay of piety, and the neglect of divine offices, and starves the cause of religion among a people, it is indeed a sore judgment. When the famine prevailed, God could not have his sacrifices, nor could the priests have their maintenance; and therefore let the Lord's ministers mourn. 14. Sanctify ye a fast, call a solemn assembly, gather the elders, and all the inhabitants of the land, into the house of the Lord your God, and cry unto the Lord. 15. Alas for the day! for the day of the Lord is at hand, and as a destruction from the Almighty shall it come. 16. Is not the meat cut off before your eyes, yea, and gladness from the house of our God? 17. The seed is rotten under their clods, the garners are laid desolate, the barns are broken down; for the corn is withered. 18. How do the beasts groan! the herds of cattle are perplexed, because they have no pasture; yea, the flocks of sheep are made desolate. 19. O Lord, to thee will I cry: for the fire hath devoured the pastures of the wilderness, and the flame hath burnt all the trees of the field. 20. The beasts of the field cry also unto thee: for the rivers of waters are dried up, and the fire hath devoured the pastures of the wilderness.

We have observed abundance of tears shed for the destruction of the fruits of the earth by the locusts; now here we have those tears turned into the right channel, that of repentance and humiliation before God; and we are directed to own the hand of God in it, by his mighty hand, and to humble themselves under it. Here is,

1. A proclamation issued out for a general fast. The priests are ordered to appoint one; they must not only mourn themselves, but they must call upon others to mourn too; "Sanctify ye a fast; Let before God, be set about with all worldly business to be spent in the exercises of religion, in the expressions of repentance, and other extraordinary instances of devotion." Note, Under public judgments there ought to be public humiliations; for by them the Lord God calls to weeping and mourning. With all the marks of sorrow and shame, sin must be confessed and bewailed, the righteousness of God must be acknowledged, and his favour implored. Observe what is to be done by a nation at such a time. 1. A day is to be appointed for this purpose, a day of restraint; (so the margin reads it) a day in which people must be restrained from their other ordinary occasions, (that they may the more closely attend at God's throne,) and from all bodily refreshments; for, 2. It must be a fast, a religious abstaining from meat and drink, further than is of absolute necessity. The king of Nineveh appointed a fast, in which they were to taste nothing, Jonah ii. 7. Hereby we own ourselves unworthy of our necessary food, and that we have forfeited it, and deserve to be wholly deprived of it; we punish ourselves and our sins and sinners by such a restraint of our ordinary pleasures on such an occasion of sin; we keep it in a frame to serve the soul in serving God; and by the appetite's craving food, the desires of the soul toward that which is better than life, and all the supports of it, are excited. This was in a special manner seasonable now that God was depriving them of their meat and drink; for hereby they accommodate themselves to the affliction they were under.

When God says, You shall fast, it is time to say, We will fast. 3. There must be a solemn assembly. The elders and the people, magistrates and subjects, must be gathered together; even all the inhabitants of the land, that God might be honoured by their public humiliations, that they might thereby take the more shame to themselves, and that they might excite and stir up the greater number of the people to the day; all had contributed to the national guilt, all shared in the national calamity, and therefore they must all join in the professions of repentance. 4. They must come together in the temple, the house of the Lord your God, because that was the house of prayer, and there they might hope to meet with God, because it was the place where he had chosen to put his name there; there they might hope to speed, because it was a type of Christ and his mediation. Thus they interested themselves in Solomon's prayer for the acceptance of all the requests that should be put up in or toward this house; in which their present case was particularly mentioned; (1 Kings viii. 37.) If there be locust, if there be caterpillar. 5. They must sanctify this fast, must observe it in a religious manner, with sincere devotion. What is a fast worth, if it be not sanctified? 6. They must cry unto the Lord. To him they must make their complaint, and offer up their supplication to him. When we cry in our affliction, we must cry to the Lord; this is fasting to him, Zechariah vii. 5.

11. Divine considerations suggested to induce them to proclaim this fast, and to observe it strictly. 1. God was beginning a controversy with them. It was time to cry unto the Lord, for the day of the Lord is at hand, v. 15. Either they mean the continuance and consequences of this present judgment which they now saw but breaking in upon them, or some greater judgments which this was but a preface to. However it be, they are taught to make the most of the time, as having been but the shadow of what was to follow. It is time to fast; for the day of the Lord is at hand. Therefore cry to God. For, (1.) The day of his judgment is very near, it is at hand; it will not slumber, and therefore you should not. It is time to fast and pray, for you have but a little time to turn you in. (2.) It will be very terrible, there is no escaping it, it will be resisting it. As a destruction from the Almighty shall it come upon you. It is a destruction, but a destruction; and it comes from the hand, not of a weak creature, but of the Almighty; and who knows (say, who does not know) the power of his anger? Whither should we go with our cries but to him from whom the judgment we dread comes? There is no fleeing from him but by fleeing to him; no escaping destruction from the Almighty but by making our submission and supplication to the Almighty; this is taking hold on his strength, that we may make peace, 1st. xxvii. 5.

2. They saw themselves already under the tokens of his displeasure. It is time to fast and pray; for their distress was very great, v. 16. (1.) Let them look into their own houses, and there was no plenty there, as used to be. Those who kept a good table, were now obliged to cut off even for that spiritual meat which is not before our eyes, we see it, wherever we go. Yet it is common for the heart not to see what the eye sees not, yet that heart is hard indeed, which trembles not, and humbles not itself, when God's judgments are before the eyes. If, when God's hand is lifted up, men will not see, when his hand is laid on, they shall see. Is not the meat many a time better than the wine? They are cut off from God's house, either by the corruption of holy things, or the persecution of holy persons, when serious godliness decays, and love waxeth cold, then it is time to cry to the Lord, time to cry, Alas! The prophet returns to describe the grievousness of the calamity, in several particulars of it. Corn and cattle are the husbandman's staple commodities, to which he is most needed. (1.) The cattle. The caterpillars have devoured the corn, v. 17. The garners which they used to fill with corn, are laid desolate, and the barns broken down, because the corn is withered, and the owners think it not worth while to be at the charge of repairing, when they have nothing to put in them, nor likely to have any; for the seed is rotten under the clouds, either through too much rain, or (which was the more common case in Canaan) for want of rain, or perhaps some insects under ground ate it up. When one crop fails, the husbandman hopes the next may make it up; but here they despair of that, the seedless being as bad as the harvest. (2.) The cattle perish too for want of grass; (v. 18.) How do the beasts groan! This the prophet takes notice of, because the affected creatures are the nearest to the heart of the judgment. The groans of the cattle should soften their hard and impenitent hearts. The herds of cattle, the large cattle, (black cattle we call them,) they are terrified, nay, even the flocks of sheep, who will live upon a common, and take up with very short grass, even they are made desolate. See here the inferior creatures suffering for our transgressions, and groaning under the double burden of being serviceable to the sin of man, and subject to the curse of God for it; Cursed is the ground for thy sake.

III. The prophet stirs them up to cry to God, with the consideration of the examples given them for it.

1. His own example; (v. 19.) O Lord, to thee will I cry. He would not put them upon doing that which he would not resolve to do himself: nay, whether they would do it or no, he would. Note, If God's ministers cannot prevail to affect others with the discoveries of divine wrath, yet they ought to be themselves affected with them; if they cannot bring others to cry to God, yet they must themselves be more in prayer. In time of trouble, we must not only pray, but cry, be full of tears, and importunate in prayer; and to God, from whom both the destruction is, and the salvation must be, ought our cry to be always directed. That which engaged him to cry to God, was not so much any personal affection, as the national calamity; The fire has devoured the pastures of the wilderness; which seems to be meant of some parching, scorching heat of the sun, which was as fire to the fruits of the earth, it consumed them all. Note, When God calls to contend by fire, it concerns those that have any interest in Heaven, to cry mightily to him for relief. See Numb. xi. 2. Amos vii. 4, 5.

2. The example of the inferior creatures: The beasts of the field do not only groan, but they cry unto thee, v. 20. They appeal to thy pity, according to their capacity, and as if, though they are not capable of a rational and revealed religion, yet they had something of dependence upon God by natural instinct. At least, when they groan by reason of their calamity, he is pleased to interpret it as if they cried, though it be only their natural construction upon the groanings of his own children, though sometimes so feeble, that they cannot be uttered. Rom. viii. 26. The beasts are here said to cry unto God, as from him the lions seek their meat, (Ps. civ. 21.) and the young ravens, Job xxxviii. 41. The complaints of the brute creatures here are for want of water. The rivers are dried up, through the excessive heat, and the want of grass, for the fire has devoured the pastures of the wilderness. And what better are they than beasts, who never cry to God but for corn and wine, and complain of nothing but the want of the delights of sense? Yet their crying to God in these cases shames the stupidity of those who cry not to God in any case.

CHAP. II.

In this chapter, we have, I. A further description of that terrible desolation which should be made in the land of Judah by the beasts and caterpillars, v. 1, 2. II. A serious call to the people, when there are under these sore judgments, to return and repent, to fast and pray, and to seek unto God for mercy, with directions how to do this aright, v. 12, 17. III. A promise that, upon their repentance, God would restore the good things which were destroyed, and repair the breaches made upon them by it, and restore unto them plenty of all good things, v. 18, 19. IV. A prediction of the setting up of the kingdom of the Messiah in the world, by the pouring out of the Spirit in the latter days, v. 28-32. Thus the beginning of this chapter is made terrible with the tokens of God's wrath, but the latter end of it is made comfortable with the assurances of his mercy, and a promise of the blessedness of that blessed change is made; so that, though it is only the last paragraph of the chapter that points directly at gospel-times, yet the whole may be improved as a type and antitype of all the glorious blessings of the gospel, including men for their sins, and the comfort of the gospel flowing in to them upon their repentance.

1. Blow ye the trumpet in Zion, and sound an alarm in my holy mountain; let all the inhabitants of the land tremble: for the day of the Lord cometh for it is nigh at hand: 2. A day of darkness and of gloominess, a day of clouds and of thick darkness, as the morning spread upon the mountains: a great people and a strong there hath not been ever the like, neither shall be any more after it, even to the years of many generations. 3. A fire devoureth before them; and behind them a flame burneth: the land is as the garden of Eden before them, and behind them a desolate wilderness; yea, and nothing shall escape them.

4. The appearance of them is as the appearance of horses; and as horsemen, so shall they run. 5. Like the noise of chariots on the tops of mountains shall they leap, like the noise of a flame of fire that devoureth the stubble, as a strong people set in battle array. 6. Before their face the people shall be much pained; all faces shall gather blackness. 7. They shall run like mighty men; they shall climb the wall like men of war; and they shall march every one on his ways, and they shall not break their ranks: 8. Neither shall one thrust another, they shall walk every one in his path: and when they fall upon the sword, they shall not be wounded. 9. They shall run to and fro in the city; they shall run upon the wall; they shall climb up upon the houses; they shall enter in at the windows like a thief. 10. The earth shall quake before them; the heavens shall tremble: the sun and the moon shall be dark, and the stars shall withdraw their shining: 11. And the Lord shall utter his voice before his army; for his camp is very great: for he is strong that executeth his word: for the day of the Lord is great and very terrible; and who can abide it?

Here we have God contending with his own professing people for their sins, and executing upon them the judgment written in the law; (Deut. xxviii. 42.) The fruit of thy land shall be thine own; which was one of those diseases of Egypt that God would bring upon them, v. 60. 1. Here is the war proclaimed; (v. 1.) Blow ye the trumpet in Zion; either to call the invading army together, and then the trumpet sounds a charge, or, rather, to give notice to Judah and Jerusalem of the approach of the judgment, that they might prepare to meet God in the way of his judgments, and might endeavour by prayers and tears, the church’s best artillery, to put by the stroke. It was the priests’ business to sound the trumpet, (Num. x. 8.) both as an appeal to God in the day of their distress, and a summons to the people to come together to seek his face. Note, It is the work of ministers to give warning from the word of God to their congregation, and so to guide their hearts, and apply his wrath from heaven against the ungodliness and unrighteousness of men. And though it is not the privilege of Zion and Jerusalem to be exempted from the judgments of God, if they provoke him, yet it is their privilege to be warned of them, that they may make their peace with him. Even in the holy mountain the alarm must be sounded, and then it sounds most dreadful, Amos iii. 6. Let all the inhabitants of the land tremble; they shall be made to tremble by the judgment itself; let them therefore tremble at the alarm of it.

2. Here is a general idea given of the day of battle, which cometh, which is mightier than the mighty, and there is none like it. It is the day of the Lord, the day of his judgment, in which he will both manifest and magnify himself. It is a day of darkness and gloominess; (v. 2.) literally so, the swarms of locusts and caterpillars being so large and so thick as to darken the sky; (Exod. x. 13.) or, rather, figuratively, it will be a melancholy time, a time of grievous affliction. And it will come as the morning-light; spread upon the mountains; the darkness of this day will come as suddenly as the morning-light, as irresistibly, will spread as far, and grow upon them as the morning-light. VOL. IV.—6 D

3. Here is the army drawn up in array; (v. 2.) They are a great people, and a strong. Any one that sees the vast numbers that there shall be of them, and seeth their best array, the Lord will say, (as we are all apt to be most affected with what is present,) “Surely, never was the like before, nor ever will be the like again.” Note, Extraordinary judgments are rare things, and seldom happen, which is an instance of God’s patience; when God had drowned the world once, he promised never to do it again. (See Ps. lxxvii. 20.) Very loud and terrible; they are as horses, as chariots, that rush into the battle, and are not affrighted; (Job xxxix. 22.) and as horsemen carried on with martial fire and fury, so they shall run, v. 4. Some of the ancients have observed that the head of a locust is very like, in shape, to the head of a horse. (2.) Very loud and noisy; like the noise of chariots, of many chariots, when driven fast over very rough ground, on the tops of the mountains, v. 5. Hence is borrowed part of the description of the locusts which St. John saw rise out of the bottomless pit; (Rev. ix. 7, 9.) The shapes of the locusts were like unto horses prepared to the battle; and the sound of their wings were as the sound of chariots, of many horses running to the battle. (3.) They are very regular, and keep ranks, in their march; though numerous and greedy of spoil, yet they are as a strong people set in battle array; (v. 5.) They shall march every one on his ways, straight forward, as if they had been trained up by the discipline of war to keep their post, and observe their right-hand man; They shall not break their ranks, nor one thrust another, v. 7, 8. Their number and swiftness shall breed no confusion. See how God can make creatures to act by rule that have no reason to act by, when he designs to serve his own purposes by them. And see how necessary it is that those who are employed in any service for God, should observe order; and keep ranks, should keep up the appearance of order, and not stand in one another’s way. (4.) They are very swift; they run like horsemen, (v. 4.) run like mighty men, (v. 7.) they run to and fro in the city, and run upon the wall, v. 9. When God sends forth his command on earth, his word runs very swiftly, Ps. lxxvii. 15. Angels have wings, and so have locusts, when God makes use of them as instruments. 4. Here is the terrible execution done by this formidable army. (1.) In the country, v. 3. View the army in the front, and you will see a fire devouring before them, they consume all as if they breathed fire; view it in the rear, and you will see those that come behind as furious as the foremost, behind them a flame burns. When they are gone, then it will appear what destruction they have made. Look upon the fields that they have not yet invaded, and they are as the garden of Eden, pleasant to the eye, and full of good fruits, they are the pride and glory of the country; but look upon the fields that they have eaten up, and they are as a desolate wilderness. One would not think that these had ever been like the former, and yet they were perhaps but the day before; or that those should ever be made like these, and yet so they shall be perhaps by to-morrow night; yea, and nothing shall escape them, that can possibly be made food for them. Let none be proud of the beauty of
The arrests of God's wrath, can make head against the force of it, or bear up under the weight of it, 1 Sam. vi. 20. Ps. lxvi. 7.

12. Therefore also now, saith the Lord, Turn ye even to me with all your heart, and with fasting, and with weeping, and with mourning; 13. And rend your heart, and not your garments, and turn unto the Lord your God: for he is gracious and merciful, slow to anger, and of great kindness, and repenteth him of the evil. 14. Who knoweth if he will return and repent, and leave a blessing behind him, even a meat-offering, and a drink-offering, unto the Lord your God! 15. Blow the trumpet in Zion, sanctify a fast, call a solemn assembly: 16. Gather the people, sanctify the congregation, assemble the elders, gather the children, and those that suck the breasts; let the bridegroom go forth of his chamber, and the bride out of her closet: 17. Let the priests, the ministers of the Lord, weep between the porch and the altar, and let them say, Spare thy people, O Lord, and give not thy heritage to reproach, that the heathen should rule over them: wherefore should they say among the people, Where is their God?

We have here an earnest exhortation to repentance, inferred from that desolating judgment described and threatened in the foregoing verses; Therefore now turn ye to the Lord. 1. Thus you must answer the end and intention of the judgment; for it was sent for this end, to convince you of your sins, to humble you for them, to reduce you to your right minds, and to your allegiance. "God brings us into straits, that he may bring us to repentance, and so bring us to himself. 2. Thus you may stay the progress of the judgment. Things are bad with you, but thus you may prevent their growing worse; nay, if you take this course, they will soon grow better."

Here is a gracious invitation,

1. To a personal repentance, exercised in the soul collectively; let every one of us rend their garments apart, Zech. xii. 12. When the judgments of God are abroad, each person is concerned to contribute his quota to the common supplications, having contributed to the common guilt. Every one must mend one, and mourn for one, and then we should all be mended, and all found among God's mourners.

Observe, 1. What we are here called to; which will teach us what it is to repent; for it is the same that the Lord our God still requires of us, we having all made work for repentance. (1.) We must be truly humbled, for our sins, must be sorry we have by sin offended God, and ashamed we have by sin wronged ourselves, both wronged our judgments, and wronged our interest. There must be outward expressions of sorrow: shame, fasting, weeping, mourning; tears for the trouble must be turned into tears for the sin that procured it. But what will the outward expressions of sorrow avail, if the inward impressions be not agreeable, and not only accompany them, but be the root and spring of them, and give rise to them. And therefore it follows, Read your heart, and not your garments; not that, according to the custom of that age, it was proper for them to rend their garments, intoken of great grief for their sins, and a holy indignation against themselves for their folly; but, "Rest not in the doing of that, as if that were sufficient, but be more in care to accommodate your spirits, than to accommodate your dress, to a day of fasting and humiliation: may not, read not your garments all, unless within you read your hearts, for the sign without the thing signified is but a jest and a mockery, and an affront to God." Rending the heart is that which God looks for and requires, that is the broken and contrite heart which he will not despise, Ps. li. 17. When we are greatly grieved in soul for sin, so that it even cuts us to the heart to think how we have dishonoured God, and disparaged ourselves by it, when we conceive an abhorrence and a desire to get clear of the principles of it, and never to return to the practice of it, then we rend our hearts for it; and then will God rend the heavens, and come down to us with mercy.

(2) We must be thoroughly converted to our God, and come home to him when we fall out with sin.

Turn ye even to me, saith the Lord, (v. 12.) and again, (v. 13.) Turn unto the Lord your God. Our fasting and weeping are worth nothing, if we do not with it turn to God as our God. When we are fully convinced that it is our duty and interest to keep in with him, and are heartily sorry we have ever turned the back upon him, and, therefore, a firm and fixed resolution make his glory our end, his will our rule, and his favour our felicity, then we return to the Lord our God.

2. What arguments are here used to persuade this people thus to turn to the Lord, and to turn to him with all their hearts. When the heart is rent for sin, and rent from it, then it is prepared to turn entirely to God, and to be devoted entirely to him, and he will leave it all or none. Now to bring ourselves to this frame of mind.

(1) We are sure that he is, in general, a good God. Therefore we must turn to the Lord our God, not only because he has been just and righteous in punishing us for our sins, the fear of which should drive us to him, but because he is gracious and merciful in receiving us upon our repentance, the hope of which should be our delight, Ps. cxxvii. 6. 7. He renews him of the evil; not that he changes his mind, but, when the sinner's mind is changed, God's way toward him is changed; the sentence is reversed, and the curse of the law is taken off. Note, That is genuine, ingenuous, and evangelical repentance, which arises from a firm belief of the mercy of God, which we have sinned against, and yet are not justly deprived of, for the kindness of God is at hand. The goodness of God, if it be rightly understood, instead of imbidding us to go on in sin, will be the most powerful inducement to repentance, Ps. cxxx. 4. The act of indemnity brings these to God, whom the act of attaining frightened from him.

(2) We have reason to hope that he will, upon our repentance, give that good which by sin we have forfeited, and deprived ourselves of; (v. 14.) that he will return and repent, that he will not proceed against us as he has done, but will act in favour of us. Therefore let us repent of our sins against him, and return to him in a way of duty, because then we may hope that he will repent of his judgments against us, and return to us in a way of mercy. Now observes, [1.] The manner of the expectation is very humble and modest; Who knows if he will? Some think it is expressed thus doubtfully, to check the presumption and security of the people, and to quicken them to a holy carefulness and liveliness in their repentance, as Josh. xxiv. 19. Or, rather, it is expressed doubtfully, because it is the removal of a temporal judgment that they here promise themselves, of which we cannot be so confident as we can that, in general, God is gracious and merciful. There is no question at all to be made, but that if we truly repent of our sins, God will forgive them, and be reconciled to us; but whether he will remove this or the other affliction which we are under, may well be questioned, and yet the probability of our being pardoned in this thing and that thing, the mercies of temporal good things are often made with a peradventure; it may be, you shall be hid, Zeph. iii. 9. David's sin is pardoned, and yet the child shall die, and when David prayed for its life, he said, as here, Who can tell whether God will be gracious to me in this matter likewise? 2 Sam. xii. 22. The Ninivites repented and reformed, upon such a consideration as this, Jonah iii. 9. [3.] The matter of the expectation is very pious: they hope God will return and repent, and leave a blessing behind him, not as if he were about to go from them, and they could be content with any blessing in lieu of his presence, but behind him; that is, 'After he has ceased his controversy with us, he will bestow a blessing upon us, and will give us meat-offerings and a drink-offering to the Lord our God. The fruits of the earth are called a blessing, (Isa. lxxv. 8.) because they depend upon God's blessing, and are necessary blessings to us. They had been deprived of these, and that which grieved them most while they were so, was, that God's altar wanted its offerings, and God's priests their maintenance; that which was so necessary, let us hope which God will fill up with the prospect of in their return of plenty, is, that then there should be meat-offerings and drink-offerings in abundance brought to God's altar, which they more desired than to see the wasted abundance of meat and drink brought to their own tables. Thus when Hezekiah was in hopes that he should recover of his sickness, he asked, What is the sign that I shall go up to the house of the Lord, and offer sacrifices and drink-offerings, and to the council-board, but to the house of the Lord? Isa. xxxviii. 22. Note, The plentiful enjoyment of God's ordinances in their power and purity, is the most valuable instance of a nation's prosperity, and the greatest blessing that can be desired. If God give the blessing of the meat-offering and the drink-offering, that will bring along with it other blessings, will sanctify them, sweeten them, and secure them.

II. They are here called to a public, national repentance, to be exercised in the solemn assembly, as a national act, for the glory of God, and the excitement of one another, and that the neighbouring nations might know and observe what it was that God had done, and the fruits of his gracious returns in mercy to them, which they would be the admiring witnesses of. Let us see here,

1. How the congregation must be called together, v. 15, 16. The trumpet was blown, (v. 1.) to sound an alarm of war; but now it must be blown in order to a treaty of peace; God is willing to shew mercy to his people, if he do but find them in a fit for it; and therefore, Call them together, sanctify a fast. By the law many annual feasts were appointed, but only one day in the year was to be observed as a fast, the day of atonement; a day to afflict the soul, and if they had kept close to God and their duty, there would have been no occasion to observe any more; but now that they had by sin brought the judgments of God upon them, they are often called to fasting. What was said, ch. 14, is here repeated; "Call a solemn assembly, gather the people, press them to come together upon this errand, sanctify the congregation, appoint a time for solemn preparation beforehand, and put them in mind to prepare themselves; let not the greatest be excused, but assemble the children, the judges and magistrates; let not the meanest be passed by, but gather the children, and those that suck the breasts." It is good to bring little children, as soon as they are capable of understanding any thing, to religious assemblies, that they may be trained up betimes in the way wherein they should go; but these were brought even when they were at the breast, and were kept feeding, that by their lives for the breast the moves of the oldest might be repeated to repent of sin which God might justly visit upon their children, so that the tongue of the sucking child might cleave to the roof of his mouth, (Lam. iv. 4.) and that on them God might have compassion, as he had on the infants of Nineveh, Jonah iv. 11. New-married people must not be excused; Let the bridegroom go forth of his chamber, and the bride out of her closet; let not them take state upon them, as usual, not put on their ornaments, or indulge themselves in mirth, but apply themselves to the duties of the public fast with as much gravity and sadness as any of their neighbours. Note, Private joys must always give way to public sorrows, both those for affliction, and those for sin.

2. How the work of the day must be carried on, vs. 17. (1.) The priests, the Lord's ministers, must preside in the congregation, and be God's mouth to the people, and theirs to God; who besides should stand in the gap to turn away the wrath of God, whose business it was to make intercession upon ordinary occasions? (2.) They must officiate between the porch and the altar; there they used to attend about the sacrifices, and therefore now that they had no sacrifices to offer, or next to nothing there they must offer up spiritual sacrifices. There the people must see them weeping and wrestling, like their father Jacob, and be helped into the same devout frame. Ministers must themselves be affected with those things wherewith they desire to affect others. It was between the porch and the altar, that Zechariah the son of Berechiah was put in mind of his father's times; that precious blood God would require at their hands, and therefore, to turn away the judgment threatened for it there, they must weep. (3.) They must pray; words are here put into their mouths, which they might in their prayers enlange upon. Their petition must be, Share thy people, O Lord. God's people, when they are in distress, can expect no relief against God's justice, but what comes from his mercy. They cannot, Lord, right us, but, Lord, share us. We deserve the correction, we need it, but, Lord, mitigate it. The sinner's supplication is, Share us, good Lord. Their plea must be taken from the relation where-in they stand to God; "They are thy people, and thine heritage, therefore have compassion on them;" but especially from the concern of the glory in the land, the good and the great interest was there in, "O Lord, give not thine heritage to reproach, to the reproach of famine; let not the land of Canaan, that has been so long celebrated for the glory of all lands, now be made the scorn of all lands; let not the heathen rule over them, as they will easily do when thine heritage is thus impoverished, and disabled to subsist. Let not the heathen make them a proverb, a by-word, (Ps. cxlvii. 16.) so much is it to be feared, as poor and beggarly as an Israelite." Note, The maintaining of the credit of the nation among its neighbours, is a blessing to be desired and prayed for by all that wish well to it. But that reproach of the church is especially to be dreaded and deprecated, which reflects upon God: "Let them say not among the people, Where is their God? that God who has promised to help them, upon whom they have boasted so much of, and put such a confidence in." If God's heritage be destroyed, the neighbours will say, "God was either weak, and could not relieve them, or unkind, and would not." God thus triumphs over the pretended deities; (Deut. xxxii. 37.) Where are now their gods in whom they trusted? And Semachibib thus triumphs over them, Where are now the gods of Ha-math and Arphad? But it must by no means be suffered, that any should say of Israel, Where is their God? For we are sure that our God is in the heavens, (Ps. cxlvii. 2, 3.) is in his temple, Ps. xi. 4.

18. Then will the Lord be jealous for his land, and pity his people. 19. Yea, the Lord will answer, and say unto his people, Behold, I will send you corn, and wine, and oil, and ye shall be satisfied therewith, and I will no more make you a reproach among the heathen. 20. But I will remove far off from you the northern army, and will drive him into a land barren and desolate, with his face toward the east sea; and his bider part toward the utmost sea: and his stink shall come up, and his ill savour shall come up, because he hath done great things. 21. Fear not, O land; be glad and rejoice: for the Lord will do great things. 22. Be not afraid, ye beasts of the field: for the pastures of the wilderness do spring, for the tree beareth her fruit, the fig-tree and the vine do yield their strength. 23. Be glad then, ye children of Zion, and rejoice in the Lord your God: for he hath given you the former rain moderately, and he will cause to come down for you the rain, the former rain, and the latter rain in the first month. 24. And the floors shall be full of wheat, and the fats shall overflow with wine and oil. 25. And I will restore to you the years that the locust hath eaten, the canker-worm, and the caterpillar, and the palmer-worm, my great army, which I sent among you. 26. And ye shall eat in plenty, and be satisfied, and praise the name of the Lord your God, that hath dealt wondrously with you: and my people shall never be ashamed. 27. And ye shall know that I am in the midst of Israel, and that I am the Lord your God, and none else: and my people shall never be ashamed.

See how ready God is to succour and relieve his people, how he waits to be gracious; as soon as ever they humble themselves under his hand, and pray, and seek his face, he immediately meets them with his favours; they prayed that God would spare them, and see here with what good words and comfortable words he answered them; for God's promises are real answers to the prayers of faith, because with him saying and doing are not two things. Now observe, I. Whence this mercy promised shall take rise; (v. 18.) God will be jealous for his land, and pity his people. He will have an eye, 1. To his own honour, and the, reputation of his covenant with Israel, by which he had conveyed to them that good land, and had given in the value of it very high; now he will not suffer it to be despised or disparaged, but will lay balance for the rights of his land and the inhabitants of it, who had been praised as a happy people, and therefore must not lie open to reproach as a miserable people. 2. To their distress; He will pity his people, and, in pity to them, he will restore them their forfeited comforts. God's compassion is a great encouragement to those that come humbly to him as penitents and as petitioners.

1. The destroying army shall be dispersed and defeated; (v. 20.) "I will remove far off from you the northern army, that army of locusts and caterpillars, that invaded you from the north; brought in upon the wings of a north wind, an army which you could put no stop to the progress of; but when you have made your peace with God, he will ease you of these soldiers that are quartered upon you, and will drive them into a land barren and desolate, into that vast howling wilderness that Israel wandered in, where, after having sufficed upon the plenty of Canaan, they shall perish for want of sustenance; those that have their face to the east sea, (the Dead sea, which lay east of Judea,) shall perish in that, and the rear of the army shall be lost in the great sea. - They do not have their heart hardened by his teaching to depart from the land barren and desolate, and now God will cast them into a land barren and desolate. Thus those whom God employs for the correction of his people, come afterward to be themselves reckoned with; and the rod thrown into the fire. Nothing shall remain of these swarms of insects, but the ill-savour of them. When Egypt was eased of the plague of locusts, they were carried away to the Red Sea. Exod. x. 19. Note, When an affliction has done its work, it shall be removed in mercy, as the locusts of Canaan were from a pestilent people, not as the locusts of Egypt were removed, in wrath, from an inimical prince, only to make room for another plague. Many interpreters, by this northern army, understand that of Sammathlah, which was dispersed, when God by it had accomplished his whole work upon mount Zion, and upon Jerusalem, Isa. x. 12. This enemy shall be driven away, because he has done great things, has done a great deal of mischief, and has magnified to do it, has done it in the pride of his heart: therefore it follows, (v. 21.) The Lord will do great things for his people, as the enemy has done great things against them, when you are the children of the most high God, proudly, he is, and will be, above them; that great things soever they did, they did no more than God commissioned them to do; and as when he said to them, Go, they went, so when he said to them, Come, they came, to show that they were soldiers under him. 3. The destroyed land shall be watered and made fruitful. When the army is scattered, yet what shall we do if the desolation they have made continue? It is therefore promised (v. 22.) that the pastures of the wilderness, the pastures which the locusts had left bare as the wilderness, shall again spring, and the trees shall again bear their fruit, particularly the fig-tree and the vine. But when we are iniquity and sin, then we have no light to say, Can these dry bones live? If the Lord should make windows in heaven, it cannot be; but it shall be, for (v. 23.) The Lord has given; and will give you the former rain and the latter rain, and if he give them in mercy, he will give them moderately, so that the rain shall not turn into a judgment, and he will give them in due season; the latter rain in the first month, when it was wanted and expected. It would make it comfortable to them, to see it coming from the hand of God, and ordered by his wisdom, for then are we sure it is well ordered. He has given you a teacher of righteousness; so the margin reads it, for the same word that signifies the rain, signifies a teacher, and what which is dispensed by him is, according to righteousness; and this teacher of righteousness, says one of the rabbins, is the King Messiah; and of him many others understand this; for he is a Teacher come from God, and he shows us the way of righteousness. But others understand it of any prophet that instructs unto righteousness; and some of Hezekiah particularly, others of Isaiah. Note, It is a great sustainer, and a most necessary store for a people, when he sends them teachers of righteousness, pastors after his own heart.

3. All their losses shall be repaired; (v. 25.) I will restore to you the years that the locust has eaten; you shall be comforted according to the time that you have been afflicted, and shall have years of plenty to balance the years of famine. Thus does it repent the Lord concerning his servants, when they repent, and, to show how perfectly he is reconciled to them, he makes good the damage they have sustained by his judgments, and, like the fuller, washes their stripes. Though, in justice, he dis- strained upon them, and did them no wrong, yet, in compassion, he makes restitution as the father of the prodigal, upon his return, gives him not only his full estate, but took him into his family, as in his former estate. The locusts and caterpillars are here called God's great army which he sent among them, and he will therefore repair what they had devoured, because they were his army. 4. They shall have great abundance of all good things. The earth shall yield her increase, and they shall enjoy it. Look into the stores where they lay up, and you shall find the floors full of wheat, and the fats overflowing with wine and oil; (v. 24.) whereas, in the day of their distress, the wine and oil languished, and the barns were broken down, ch. i. 16, 17. Look upon their tables where they lay out what they have laid up, and you shall find that they eat in plenty, and are satisfied, v. 26. They do not eat to excess, nor are surfeited; we hope the drunkards are cured by the late affliction of their inordinate love of wine and strong drink, for, though they were brought in bowing for the scarcity, (ch. i. 5.) they are not brought in again here singing for the plenty of it; but now all shall have enough, and shall know when they have enough, for God will make their food nourishing, and give them their bread in plenty. These are the mercies promised, and in these God doth great things; (v. 21.) He deals wondrously with his people, v. 26. Herein he glorifies his power, and shows that he can relieve his people, though their distress be ever so great, and glorifies his goodness, that he will do it upon their repentance, though their professors be ever so great. When God deals graciously with poor sinners who return to him, it must be acknowledged that he deals wondrously, and doeth great things. Some expositors understand these promises figuratively, as pointing at gospel-grace, and having their accomplishment in the abundant comforts that are treasured up for believers in the spiritual and heavenly vessels of God, and by which they have grace. When God sends us his promises to be the matter of our comfort, his graces to be the grounds of it, and his Spirit to be the Author of it, we may well own that he has sent us (according to his promise here, v. 19.) corn, and wine, and oil, or that which is unspeakably better, and we have reason to be satisfied therewith. III. What use shall be made of these returns of God's mercy to them, and the good account they shall turn to.
1. God shall have the glory of it; for they shall rejoice in the Lord their God; (v. 23.) and what is the matter of their rejoicing shall be the matter of their thanksgiving: they shall praise the name of the Lord their God, (v. 26.) and not praise their idols, nor call their corn and wine the rewards that their lovers had given them. Note. Then the plenty of our creature-comforts is a mercy indeed to us, when by them our hearts are enlarged to love and magnify the name of the Lord our God, and to think all thing richly to enjoy, though we serve him but poorly. When God restores to us plenty after we have known scarcity, as it is doubly pleasant to us, so it should make us the more thankful to God. When Israel comes out of a wilderness into a Canaan, and there eats and is full, surely he will then bless the Lord, with a very solemn thanksgiving, in the good land which he has given them. Deut. vii. 16. 2. They shall have the credit and comfort, and spiritual benefit of it. When God gives them plenty again, and gives them to be satisfied with it, (1.) Their reputation shall be retrieved; and they and their God shall be no more reflected upon as unfaithful to one another, when they are returned to him in a way of duty, and he to them in a way of mercy; (v. 19.) as the Israelites did make their repentance and return, the heathen, that triumphed in your calamities, and insulted over you; and v. 26, 27. "My people shall never be ashamed, as they have been, of their good land which they used to boast of, but shall again and ever have the same occasion to boast of it." Note, It redounds much to the honour of God, when he does that which saves the honour of his people; and those that are his people indeed, though they be the longest time to return, when he at last doth return to them, and makes a good end of their affairs, he for a time, they shall not be always, a reproach among the heathen; if we be rightly ashamed of our sins against God, we shall never be ashamed of our gloriing in God. (2.) Their joys shall be revived; (v. 23.) Be glad and rejoice, O land, and all the inhabitants of it. Times of plenty are times of joy; yet the favour of God puts gladness into the heart, more than they have whose corn and wine and oil increase. But especially be glad then, ye children of Zion, and rejoice in the Lord your God, v. 23. They mourned in Zion, (v. 15.) and therefore there in a particular manner they shall rejoice, for those that sow in penitential tears, shall certainly reap in thankfull joys; the children of Zion, who led the rest in fasting, must lead the rest in rejoicing; of course, if they shall repent of their sins and the Lord their God; not so much in the good things themselves that are given them, as in the good hand that gives them, and in the return of his favour to them, as theirs in covenant, which these good things are the tokens and pledges of; the joy of harvest and the joy of a feast must both terminate in God, whose love we should taste in all the gifts of his bounty, as he makes them, as he makes them known, as our chief Good, and the Fountain of all good to us. (3.) Their faith in God shall be confirmed and increased. When temporal mercies are made by the grace of God to be of spiritual advantage to us, and plenty for the body is so far from being an enemy, (as with many it proves,) that it becomes a friend, to the prosperity of the soul, then they are mercies indeed, that we may make him our chief joy. v. 27. It shall know that I am in the midst of Israel, the Holy One in the midst of thee, (Hos. xi. 9.) and that I am the Lord your God, and none else. As it proves that the Lord is God, and there is no other, because he wounds, and he heals, he light and darkness, he doth good and evil, (Isa. xlv. 7. Deut. xxxii. 39.) so it proves him to be the God of the poor, and the God of the fatherless, and a Father to them; that as a Father he both corrects them when they offend, and comforts them when they repent. It was the burthen of the threatenings in Ezekiel's prophecy. Such and such evils I will bring upon you, and you shall know that I am the Lord; and the same is here made the crown of the promises; You shall eat, and be satisfied, and rejoice, and thus ye shall know that I am the Lord. Note, We should labour to grow in our acquaintance with God by all providences, both manifold and afflictive. When God gives to his people plenty, and peace, and joy, upon their return to him, he thereby replaces them in their work, and engages them to the enjoyment of their remainder, pleased with their repentance, that he has pardoned their sins, and that he is theirs as much as ever; that they are taken into the same covenant with him, for he is the Lord their God, and into the same communion, for he is in the midst of them, nigh unto them in all that they call upon him for, and as the sun in the midst of the world, so in the midst of them, as to diffuse his benigne influences to all the parts of his land. 3. Even the inferior creatures shall share in it, and be made easy by it; Fear not, O land, v. 21. Be not afraid, ye beasts of the field, v. 22. They had suffered for the sin of man, and for God's quarrel with him; and now they shall fare the better for man's repentance, and God's reconciliation to him. Nay, the text observes, and none for the ungodly, (v. 20.) and now that cry is answered, and they are bid not to be afraid, for they shall have plenty of all that which their nature craves. God, in sparing Nineveh, had an eye to the cattle, (Jonah iv. 11.) for the cattle had fasted, ch. iii. 3. This may lead us to think of the restitution of all things, when the creature that is now made subject to vanity and groans under it, shall be brought, through not into the glorious joy, yet into the glorious liberty, of the children of God, Rom. viii. 21. 28. And it shall come to pass afterward, that I will pour out my Spirit upon all flesh, and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, your old men shall dream dreams, your young men shall see visions: 29. And also upon the servants and upon the handmaids in those days will I pour out my Spirit. 30. And I will show wonders in the heavens and in the earth, in blood, and fire, and pillars of smoke. 31. The sun shall be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood, before the great and the terrible day of the Lord come. 32. And it shall come to pass, that whatsoever shall call on the name of the Lord shall be delivered; for in mount Zion and in Jerusalem shall deliverance, as the Lord hath said, and in the remnant whom the Lord shall call. The promises of corn and wine and oil, in the foregoing verses, would be very acceptable to a wasted country; but here we are taught that we must not rest in these things. God has reserved some better things for us, and these verses have reference to those better things, both the kingdom of grace, and the kingdom of glory, and the happiness of true believers in both. We are here told, I. How the kingdom of grace shall be introduced by a plentiful effusion of the Spirit, v. 26, 29. We are not at a loss for the meaning of this promise, nor in doubt what it refers to, and wherein it had its accomplishment, for the apostle Peter has given us an ample and full explanation and application of it, reminding us that when the Spirit was poured out upon the apostles, on the day of Pentecost, (Acts ii. 1, &c.) that was the very thing which was spoken of here. by the prophet Joel, v. 16, 17. That was the gift of the Spirit, which, according to this prediction, was to be upon all, and not upon any man more than another, nor upon any more than for another accomplishment of the promise of the Messiah. Now, 1. The blessing itself here promised, is, the pouring out of the Spirit of God, his gifts, graces, and comforts, which the blessed Spirit is the Author of. We often read in the Old Testament of the Spirit of the Lord coming like drops, as it were, upon the judges and prophets who were the forerunners of the Messiah, but now the Spirit shall be poured out plentifully in a full stream, as was promised with an eye to gospel-times; (Isa. xiv. 3.) I will pour my Spirit upon thy seed. 2. The time fixed for this is after-ward; after the fulfilling of the foregoing promises, this shall be fulfilled. St. Peter expounds this of the last days, the days of the Messiah, by whom the world was to have its last revelation of the divine will and grace in the last days of the Jewish church, a little before its dissolution. 3. The extent of this blessing, in respect of the persons on whom it shall be bestowed; the Spirit shall be poured out upon all flesh, not as hitherto upon Jews only, but upon Gentiles also; for in Christ there is no distinction between Jew and Greek, Rom. x. 12, 11. Hitherto the gifts of the Spirit were as common to Abraham, none but those of the land of Israel had the Spirit of prophecy; but, in the last days, all flesh shall see the glory of God, (Isa. lxi. 5.) and shall come to worship before him, Isa. lxvi. 23. The Jews understand it of all flesh in the land of Israel, and Peter himself did not fully understand it as speaking of the Gentiles, till he saw it accomplished in the descent of the Holy Ghost upon Cornelius and his friends, who were Gentiles, (Acts x. 44, 45.) which was but a continuation of the same gift which was bestowed on the day of Pentecost. The Spirit shall be poured out upon all flesh, upon all those whose hearts are made hearts of flesh, soft and tender, and so prepared to receive the impressions and influences of the Holy Ghost; upon all flesh, upon some of all sorts of men; the gifts of the Spirit shall not be so sparing, or so much confined, as they have been, but shall be more general and diffusive of themselves. (1.) The Spirit shall be poured out upon some of each sex; not your sons only, but your daughters, shall prophesy; we read of four sisters in one family, that were prophethesses, Acts xx. 17, 18. (2.) Upon some of all sorts of age; the gifts of the Spirit shall be filled with the Spirit, which intimates the continuance of this gift for some ages successively in the church. (2.) Upon some of each age; Your old men, who are past their vigour, and whose spirits begin to decay, your young men, who have yet little acquaintance with, and experience of, divine things, yet they shall dream dreams, and see visions; God will reveal himself by dreams and visions both to young and old. (3.) Upon those of the meanest rank and condition; even upon the servants and the handmaids; the Jewish doctors say, Prophecy does not reside on any, but such as are wise, valiant, and rich, not upon the soul of a poor man, or a man in sorrow; but in Christ Jesus there is neither bond nor free, Gal. iii. 28. There were many that were cold who revealed themselves by dreams and visions; both old and young, and we had no obstruction to their receiving the Holy Ghost. (4.) The effect of this blessing; They shall prophesy; they shall receive new discoveries of divine things, and that not for their own use only, but for the benefit of the church. They shall interpret scripture, and speak of things secret, distant, and future, which, by the utmost sagacities of reason, and powers of human understanding, they could not have any insight into, or foresight of. By these extraordinary gifts the Christian church was first founded and set up; and the scriptures written, and ministry settled, by which, with the ordinary operations and influences of the Spirit, it was to be afterward maintained and continued.
of grace. And here we are told who they are, that shall be delivered in the great day. (1) Those that sincerely call upon God; Whosoever shall call on the name of the Lord, whether Jew or Gentile, for the apostle expounds it so, Rom. x. 13, where he lays this down as the great rule of the gospel by which we must all be judged, shall be delivered. This is the reason given for the prophecy of the 13. and 17. verses, to show God's kindness to his servant, to pull him, desire toward him, dependence on him, and, as an evidence of the sincerity of all this, a conscientious obedience to him; for without that, crying Lord, Lord, will not stand us in any stead. Note, It is the praying remnant that shall be saved remnant. And it will aggravate the ruin of those who perish, that they might have been saved on such terms, if they had believed the things that were called to God. The deliverance is sure to the remnant whom the Lord shall call; not only with the common call of the gospel, with which many are called, that are not chosen; but with a special call into the fellowship of Jesus Christ, whom the Lord predestinates, or prepares, so the Chaldee. St. Peter borrows this phrase, Acts ii. 39. Note, Those only shall be delivered in the great day, that are now effectually called from sin to God, from self to Christ, from things below to things above.

CHAP. III.
In the close of the foregoing chapter, we had a gracious promise of deliverance in mount Zion and Jerusalem; now this whole chapter is a comment upon that promise, showing the manner of the great deliverance wrought by the destruction of the church's enemies, and how it shall be perfected in the everlasting rest and joy of the church. This was in part accomplished, in the deliverance of Jerusalem from the attempt that Senecachbur made upon it in Hezekiah's time, and afterward in the return of the Jews out of their captivity in Babylon, and other deliverances wrought for the Jewish church before that and Christ's coming. But it has a further reference to the great redemption wrought out for us by Jesus Christ, and the destruction of our spiritual enemies, and all their agents, and will have its full accomplishment in the judgment of the great day. Here is a prediction, I. Of God's reckoning with the enemies of his people for all the injuries and indignities that they had done them, and returning them upon their own head, v. 1... II. Of God's judging all nations, when the number of their iniquity is full, and appearing publicly, to the everlasting confusion of all impious sinners, and the everlasting comfort of all his faithful servants, v. 9... 17. III. Of the provision God has made for the refreshment of his people, for their safety and purity, when their enemies shall be made desolate, v. 18... 21. These promises were not of private interpretation only, but were written for our learning, that we through patience and comfort of this scripture, might have hope.

1. FOR, behold, in those days, and in that time, when I shall bring again the captivity of Judah and Jerusalem, 2. I will also gather all nations, and will bring them down into the valley of Jehoshaphat, and will plead with them there for my people, and for my heritage Israel, whom they have scattered among the nations, and parted my land. 3. And they have cast lots for my people: and have given a boy for a harlot, and sold a girl for wine, that they might drink. 4. Yea, and what have ye to do with me, O Tyre, and Zidon, and all the coasts of Palestine? will ye render me a recompense? and if ye recompense me, swiftly and speedily will I return your recompense upon your own head: 5. Because ye have taken my silver and my gold, and have carried into your temples my goodly pleasant things. 6. The children also of Judah, and the children of Jerusalem, have ye sold unto the Greeks, that ye might remove them far from their border. 7. Behold, I will raise them out of the place whither ye have sold them, and will return your recompense upon your own head: 8. And I will sell your sons and your daughters into the hand of the children of Judah, and they shall sell them to the Sabeans, to a people far off: for the Lord hath spoken it.

We have often heard of the year of the redeemed, and the year of recompenses for the controversy of Zion; now here we have a description of the transactions of that year, and a prophecy of what shall be done when it comes, concerning several events, that comes soon, and at the end of time it will come once for all.

1. It shall be the year of the redeemed, for God will bring again the captivity of Judah and Jerusalem, v. 1. Though the bondage of God's people may be grievous, and very long, yet it shall not be everlasting. That in Egypt ended at length in their deliverance into the glorious liberty of the children of God. Let my son go, that he may serve me. That in Babylon shall likewise end well. And the Lord Jesus will provide for the effectual redemption of poor captivated souls from under the dominion of sin and Satan, and will proclaim that acceptable year, the year of jubilee, the release of debts and servants, and the opening of the prison to them that were bound. There is a day, there is a time, fixed for the bringing again of the captivity of God's children, for the redeeming of them from the power of the grave; and it shall be the last day, and the period of all time.

2. It shall be the year of recompenses of the controversy of Zion. Though God may suffer the enemies of his people to prevail against them very far, and for a long time, yet he will call them to an account, for all their ill treatment and captivity, Ps. lxviii. 18) will lead those captive, and lead his people captive, Rev. xiii. 10.

Observe, 1. Who they are that shall be reckoned with; all nations, v. 2. This intimates, (1.) That all the nations had made themselves liable to the judgment of God for wrong done to his people. Persecution is the reasoning, crying sin of the world, that lies in wickedness itself is set against godliness. The enmity that is in the old serpent, the god of this world, against the seed of the woman, appears more or less in the children of this world; marvellous not if the world hate you. (2.) That whatsoever nation injured God's nation, they should not go unpunished; for he that touches the Israel of God, shall be made to know that he touches the apple of his eye. Jerusalem was cut off, said the Lord, upon all people, Zech. xii. 5. But the neighbouring nations shall particularly be reckoned with; Tyre and Sidon, and all the coasts of Palestine or the Philistines, who had been troublesome neighbours to the Israel of God; (v. 4.) when the more remote and potent nations that laid Israel waste, are reckoned with, the impotent malice of those that lay near them, and head forward the affliction, (Zech. i. 15.) and made a hand of it, (Ezek. xxvi. 2.) shall not be passed by. Note, Little persecutors shall be called to an account as well as great ones; and though they could not do much mischief, shall be reckoned with according to the wickedness of their endeavours, and the mischief they would have done.

2. The sitting of this court for judgment. They shall have judgment, they shall have sentence, (Ps. liii. 5.) may together receive their doom. They shall be brought down into the valley of Jehoshaphat, which lay near Jerusalem, and there God will plead with them. (1.) Because it is fit that criminals should be tried in the same country where they did the fact. (2.) For their greater comfort, when they shall see the business which they have so long endeavoured and hoped for the ruin of, in spite of all their rage, made a praise in the earth. (3.) For the greater comfort and honour of God's Jerusalem, which shall see God pleading their cause. (4.) Then shall be re-acted what God did for Jehoshaphat, when he gave him victory over those that invaded him, and furnished him and his people with matter of joy and praise, in the valley of Berachah. See 2 Chron. xxv. 22. (5.) It was in this valley of Jehoshaphat, (as Dr. Lightfoot suggests,) that Sennacherib's army, or part of it, lay, when it was destroyed by an angel. They came together to ruin Jerus. dem., but God brought them together for their own ruin, as sheaves in the floor, Mic. x. 4.

3. The plaintiff called, on whose behalf this prosecution is set on foot; it is for my people, and for my heritage Israel. It is their cause that God will now plead with jealousy. Note, God's people are his heritage, his peculiar, his portion, his treasure, above all people, Exod. xix. 5. Deut. xxxii. 9. They are his demesne, and therefore he has a good action against those that trespass upon them.

4. The charge exhibited against them, which is very particular. Many affronts they had put upon God by their idolatries; but that for which God has a quarrel with them, is the affront they have put upon his people and upon the vessels of his sanctuary.

(1.) They had been very abusive to the people of Israel, had scattered them among the nations, and forced them to seek for shelter where they could find a place, or carried them captive into their respective countries, and there industriously dispersed them, for fear of their incorporating for their common safety. They parted their land, and took every one his share of it as their own; nay, they have cast lots for my people, and sold them. When they had taken them prisoners, [1.] They made jest of them, made a scorn of them as of no value, whom they would not release, and yet thought them not worth the keeping; they made nothing of playing them away at dice; or they made a dividend of the prisoners by lot, as the soldiers did of Christ's garments. [2.] They made a gain of them; when they had them, they sold them, yet with so much compunction, as if they sold their flesh for their price, but sold them for their pleasure rather than their profit; they gave a boy taken in war for the hire of a harlot, and a girl for so many bottles of wine as would serve them for one sitting; a goodly price at which they valued them, and goodly prerogative for a son and daughter of Israel, to be a slave and a drudge in a tavern or a brothel. Observe, the treatment which sin so commonly spent upon them. The spoil which these enemies of the Jews gathered by injustice and violence, they scattered and threw away in drinking and whoring, such is frequently the character, and such the conversation, of the enemies and persecutors of the people of God. The Tyrrians and Philistines, when they seized any of the children of Judah and Jerusalem, either took them prisoners in war, or kidnapped them; they sold them to the Greeks, (with whom the men of Tyre traded in the persons of men, Ezek. xxvii. 15.) that they might remove them far from their own border, v. 6. It was a great reproach to Israel, God's first-born, to be his free-born, to be thus bought and sold among the heathen.

(2.) They had unjustly seized God's silver and gold; (v. 5.) by which some understand the wealth of Israel. The silver and gold which God's people had, he calls his, because they had received it from him and devoted it to him; and whosoever robbed them, God took it as if they had robbed him, and so they were therefore held to be all one, and accordingly these who were driven away the estates of good men for well-doing, will be found guilty of sacrilege; they take God's silver and gold. But it seems rather to be meant of the vessels and treasures of the temple, which God here calls his goodly pleasant things, precious and desirable to him and all that are his. These they carried into their temples as trophies of their victory over God's Israel, thinking that therein they triumphed over Israel's God, nay, and that their idols triumphed over him. Thus the ark was put in Dagon's temple. Thus they did unjustly; "What have you to do with me," (v. 4.) with my people; what wrong have they done you? What provocation have they given you? You had nothing to do with them, and you do not think it needful for you to be offended against God's people in the land, and these offended and harnessed, that are harmless and inoffensive: Will you render me a recompense? Can they pretend that either God or his people have done them any injury, for which they may justify themselves by the law of retaliation, in doing them these mischiefs? No, they have no colour for it. Note, It is not a new thing for God's people to be called upon and obliging to their neighbours to find them very kind and unenviously, and for those who do no injuries to suffer many.

5. The sentence passed upon them. In general, (v. 4.) "If you recompense me, if you pretend a quarrel with me, if you provoke me thus to jealousy, if you touch the apple of mine eye, I will swiftly and speedily return your recompense upon your own head." Those that contend with God will find themselves unable to make their part good with him. He will recompense them suddenly, when they little think of it, and have not time to prevent it; if he take them to task, he will soon effect their ruin. Particularly, it is threatened, (1.) That they shall not gain their end in the mischief they designed against God's people. They thought to have moved them so far from their border, that they should never return to it again, v. 6. But (says God) "I will raise them out of the place Whether you have sold them, and they shall not, as you intended, be buried alive there." Men's selling the people of God will not deprive him of his property in them. (2.) That they shall be paid in their own kind. They shall be paid back again, and the interest added; "I will sell your sons and your daughters into the hands of the children of Judah, you shall lie as much at their mercy, as you have been at yours." Isa. lx. 14. Thus the Jews had rule over them that hated them, Esther i. 1. And then they shall justly be sold to the Sabbeans, to a people far off. This (some think,) had its accomplishment in the victories obtained by Maccabees over the enemies of the Jews; some think it looks as far forward as the last day, when the upright shall have dominion, (Ps. xlix. 14.) and the saints shall judge the world. It is certain that none ever hardened his heart against God, or his church, and prospered long; no, not Pharaoh himself, for the Lord has spoken it, for the comfort of all his suffering servants, that vengeance is his, and he will repay.

9. Proclaim ye this among the Gentiles.
Prepare war, wake up the mighty men, let all the men of war draw near, let them come up: 10. Beat your plough-shares into swords, and your pruning-hooks into spears: let the weak say, I am strong. 11. Assemble yourselves, and come, all ye heathen, and gather yourselves together round about; thinketh cause thy mighty ones to come down, O Lord. 12. Let the heathen be wakened, and come up to the valley of Jehoshaphat: for there will I sit to judge all the heathen round about. 13. Put ye in the sickle; for the harvest is ripe: come, get you down; for the press is full, the fats overflow; for the wickedness is great. 14. Multitudes, multitudes in the valley of decision: for the day of the Lord is near in the valley of decision. 15. The sun and the moon shall be darkened, and the stars shall withdraw their shining. 16. The Lord also shall roar out of Zion, and utter his voice from Jerusalem: and the heavens and the earth shall shake: but the Lord will be the hope of his people, and the strength of the children of Israel. 17. So shall ye know that I am the Lord your God dwelling in Zion, my holy mountain: then shall Jerusalem be holy, and there shall no stranger pass through her any more.

What the psalmist had long before ordered to be said among the heathen, (Ps. xcvi. 10.) the prophet will have in like manner to be published to all nations, That the Lord reigns, and that he comes, he comes to judge the earth, as he had long been judging in the earth. The notice here given of God's judging the nations, may have reference to the destruction of Sennacherib, Nebuchadnezzar, Antiochus, and the antichrist especially, and all the proud enemies of the Christian church; but some of the best interpreters, ancient and modern, (particularly the learned Dr. Pocock,) think the scope of the verses is to set forth the day of the last judgment under the similitude of God's making war upon the enemies of his kingdom. and his gathering of the harvest of the earth, both which similitudes we find used in the revelation, ch. xix. 11.—xv. 18. Here we have,

I. A challenge given to all the enemies of God's kingdom, to do their worst; to signify to them that God is preparing war against them, they are called upon to prepare war against him, v. 9. —11. When the hour of God's judgment is come, effectual mobilisation of all the natural forces, prepare war; muster up all your strength, wake up the mighty men, call them into your service, excite them to vigilance and resolution; let all the men of war draw near, let them come and enter the lists with Omnipotence if they dare; let them not complain for want of weapons, but let them beat their plough-shares into swords, and their pruning-hooks into spears. Let them resolve, if they will, never to return to their husbandry again, but either to conquer or die; let none plead unfaithfulness to bear arms, but let the weak say, I am strong, and will fight. God fighteth in the midst of all his hosts of almighty power bid defiance to all the opposition of the powers of darkness, let the heathen rage, and the kings of the earth take counsel together, against the Lord and his Christ, let them assemble and come, and gather themselves together; but he that sits in heaven shall laugh at them, and, while he thus calls them, he has them in derision, Ps. ii. 1, 4. The heathen shall be wakened to the sense of their being dead, that they may come up to the valley of Jehoshaphat, to receive their doom. (v. 12.) may come up out of their graves, come up into the air, to meet the Lord there. Jehoshaphat signifies, the judgment of the Lord. Let them come to the place of God's judgment, which perhaps is the chief reason for the using of this name here, but it is put before another name, that the Lord's Name and his judgment may be remembered. Perhaps it is with reference to this that Christ's coming from heaven at the last day is said to be with his mighty angels, 2 Thess. i. 7. These are the hosts of the Lord, that shall fight his battles when he shall put down all opposing rule, principality, and power, when he shall judge among the heathen, Ps. cx. 6, 8. Some think these words, (v. 9, 10.) Prepare war, wake up the mighty men, are not a challenge to the enemies' hosts, but a charge to God's hosts: let them draw near, and come up. When God's cause is to be pleaded, either by the law, or by the sword, he has those ready, that shall plead it effectually; witnesses ready to appear for him in the court of judgment, soldiers ready to appear for him in the field of battle. They shall beat plough-shares into swords, if need be. However, it is plain that to them which is given to be strong, the harvest is ripe; the harvest of the earth, the harvest of the kingdom; and his gathering of the harvest of the earth, both which similitudes we find used in the revelation, ch. xix. 11.—xv. 18. Here we have,

II. A charge given to the ministers of God's justice, to appear and act against these daring enemies of his kingdom among men. And therefore cause thy mighty ones to come down, O Lord; (v. 11.) when they bring their forces into the field, let God bring his, let the archangel's trumpet sound a charge, to call together his mighty ones, his angels. Perhaps it is with reference to this that Christ's coming from heaven at the last day is said to be with his mighty angels, 2 Thess. i. 7. These are the hosts of the Lord, that shall fight his battles when he shall put down all opposing rule, principality, and power, when he shall judge among the heathen, Ps. cx. 6, 8. Some think these words, (v. 9, 10.) Prepare war, wake up the mighty men, are not a challenge to the enemies' hosts, but a charge to God's hosts: let them draw near, and come up. When God's cause is to be pleaded, either by the law, or by the sword, he has those ready, that shall plead it effectually; witnesses ready to appear for him in the court of judgment, soldiers ready to appear for him in the field of battle. They shall beat plough-shares into swords, if need be. However, it is plain that to them which is given to be strong, the harvest is ripe; the harvest of the earth, the harvest of the kingdom; and his gathering of the harvest of the earth, both which similitudes we find used in the revelation, ch. xix. 11.—xv. 18. Here we have,

III. The vast appearance that shall be in that great and solemn day; (v. 14.) Multitudes, multitudes in the valley of decision, the same which before was called the valley of Jehoshaphat, or of the judgment of the Lord, for the day of the Lord is near in that valley. Note. 1. The judgment-day, when the Lord shall come, to judge all the world, has been made known and spoken of, as nigh at hand. Enoch said, Behold, the Lord comes, as if the Judge were then standing before the door; because it is certain that that day will come, and will come according to the appointment, and a thousand years with God are but as one day; things are ripening space for it; we ought always to be ready for it, for our judgment is at hand. 2. The day of judgment will be the day of decision, when every man's eternal state will be determined, and the controversy that has been long depending between the kingdom of Christ and that of Satan, shall be finally decided, and an end put to the struggle. The valley of the distribution of judgment, (see the Chaldee,) when every man shall be brought to the things belonging to the body. The valley of threshing; so the margin, carrying on the metaphor of the harvest, v. 13. The proud enemies of God's people will then be crushed and broken to pieces, and made as the dust of the summer threshing-floors. 3. Immemorable multitudes will be gathered together, to receive their final judgment. As the destruction of Sodom we read of the valley of Hinnom-Gid and the city of Hamonah, (Ezek. xxxix. 15, 16.) both signifying the multitude of the vanquished enemies; it is the word here used, Hamonim, Hamonim, expressed by way of admiration. O what vast multitudes of sinners will divine justice be glorified in the ruin of at that day! A multitude of living, (says one of the rabbins,) and a multitude of dead, for Christ shall come to judge both the quick and the dead. 4. The amazing change that shall then be made in the kingdom of nature; (v. 15.) The sun and moon shall be darkened; as before, ch. ii. 31. Their glory and lustre shall be eclipsed by the far greater brightness of that glory in which the Judge shall then appear. Nay, they shall themselves be set aside in the dissolution of all things; for damned sinners in hell shall not be allowed their light, being cast upon the children; and glorified saints in heaven shall not need their light, for God himself will be their everlasting Light, Isa. lx. 19. Those that fall under the wrath of God in that day of wrath, shall be cut off from all comfort and joy, signified by the darkening not only of sun and moon, but of the stars also. The different impressions which that day will make on the children of this world, and the children of God, according as it will be to them. 1. To the wicked it will be a terrible day. The Lord shall then speak from Zion and Jerusalem, from the throne of his glory, from heaven, where he manifests himself in a peculiar manner, as sometimes he had done in the glorious high throne of his sanctuary, which yet was but a faint resemblance of the glory of that day. He shall speak from heaven, from his holy and his sion angels, (some understand it,) the holy society of which may be called Zion and Jerusalem, for when we come to the heavenly Jerusalem, we come to the innumerable company of angels; see Heb. xii. 22, 25. Now his speaking in that day will be to the wicked as roaring, terrible as the roaring of a lion, for so the word signifies; he long kept silence, but now our God shall come, and shall not keep silence, Ps. l. 3, 21. Note, The judgment of the great day will make the ears of those to tingle, that continue the implacable enemies of God's kingdom. God's voice will then shake terribly both heaven and earth, (Isa. ii. 21.) yet once more, Hag. ii. 6. Heb. xii. 26. This denotes that the voice of God will in the great day split open the bowels of the earth, and put even heaven and earth into a constitution. When God comes to pull down and destroy his enemies, and make them all his footstool, though heaven and earth should stand up in defence of them, and undertake their protection, it shall be all in vain; even they shall shake before him, and be an insufficient shelter to those whom he comes forth to contend with. (Note.) As blessings are to be the sweetest blessings, and enough to make heaven and earth sing, so terrors out of Zion are the sorest terrors, and enough to make heaven and earth shake. 2. To the righteous it will be a joyful day. When heaven and earth shall tremble, and be dissolvéd and burnt up, then will the Lord be the Hope of his people, and the Strength of the children of Israel; (v. 16.) and then shall Jerusalem be holy, v. 17. The saints are the Israel of God, they are his people, the church is his Jerusalem, they are in covenant and communion with him: now in the great day those blessings shall be satisfied; The Lord will be the Hope of his people. As he always was the Founder and Foundation of their hopes, so he then will be the Crown of their hopes. He will be the Harbour of his people, (so the word is,) their Reception, Refuge, and Home. The saints in the great day shall arrive at the desired haven, shall put to shore after a stormy voyage; they shall come to be for ever at home; with God to their Father's house, the house not made with hands. (2.) Their happiness shall be confirmed; God will be in that day the Strength of the children of Israel, enabling them to bid that day welcome, and to bear up under the weight of its glories and joy. In this world, when the judgments of God are abroad, and sinners are falling under them, God is, and will be, the Hope and Strength of his people; the Strength of their heart and their Portion, when other men's hearts fail them for fear. (3.) Their holiness shall be completed; (v. 17.) Then shall Jerusalem be holy, the holy city indeed; such shall the heavenly Jerusalem be, such the glorious, without spot or wrinkle, or any such thing. Jerusalem shall be holiness; (so the word is;) it shall be perfectly holy, so that no unclean thing shall come into it. The gospel-church is a holy society, even in its militant state, but will never be holiness itself, till it comes to be triumphant. Then, no stranger shall pass through her any more; there shall enter into the new Jerusalem any thing that defiles, or works iniquity; none shall be there but those who have a right to be there, none but its own citizens; for it shall be, The Lord is in the midst, Num. xvi. 33. All in all this may be manifested and magnified; So shall we know that I am the Lord your God. By the sanctifying and glorifying of the church God will be known in his holiness and glory, as the God that dwells in his holy mountain, and makes it holy by dwelling in it; and they that are sanctified and glorified, are so through the knowledge of him that is the Lord their God. Those know the Lord best who have of God is, [1.] An appropriating knowledge; they know that he is the Lord their God, yet not theirs only, but theirs in common with the whole church, that he is their God, but dwelling in Zion his holy mountain; for though faith appropriates, it does not engross or monopolize, the privileges of the covenant. [2.] It is an experimental knowledge. They shall find him their Hope and Strength in the worst of times, and so they shall know that he is the Lord their God. Those know best the goodness of God, who have tasted and seen it, and have found him good to them. 18. And it shall come to pass in that day, that the mountains shall drop down new wine, and the hills shall flow with milk, and all the rivers of Judah shall flow with waters, and a fountain shall come forth of the house of the Lord, and shall water the valley of Shittim. 19. Egypt shall be a desolation, and Edom shall be a desolate wilderness, for the violence against the children of Judah, because they have shed innocent blood in their land. 20. But Judah shall dwell for ever, and Jerusalem from generation to generation. 21. For I will cleanse their blood that I have not cleansed: for the Lord dwelleth in Zion.
These promises with which this prophecy concludes, have their accomplishment in part, in the kingdom of grace, and the comforts and graces of all the faithful subjects of that kingdom; but even there their full accomplishment in the kingdom of glory; for as to the Jewish church, we know not of any event concerning that, which answers to the extent of these promises; and what instances of peace and prosperity they were blessed with, which these may be supposed to be a hyperbolical description of, they were but figures of better things reserved for us, that they, in their best estate, without any other might be joyful. 1. It is promised that the enemies of the church shall be vanquished and brought down, v. 19. Egypt, that old enemy of Israel, and Edom, which had an inveterate enmity to Israel, derived from Esau, these shall be a desolation, a desolate wilderness, no more to be inhabited, they are become the people of God's care; so the Hebrews were, Isa. xxxiv. 3. No strength or wealth of a nation is hence against the judgments of God. But what is the quarrel God has with these potent kingdoms? It is for their violence against the children of Judah, and the injuries they had done them; see Ezek. xxv. 3, 8, 12, 15.—xxvi. 2. They had shed the innocent blood of the Jews that fled to them for shelter, or were making their escape through their country. Nothing is more precious to God, and so precious to his people, than it is to be preserved from it, and not a drop of it shall be shed, but it shall be reckoned for. In the last day, this earth, which has been filled with violence against the people of God, shall be made a desolation, and it and all the works that are therein, shall be burnt up. And, sooner or later, the oppressors and persecutors of God's Israel shall be brought down and hid in the dust, now they will at length be brought down and laid in the flames. 2. It is promised that the church shall be very happy; and truly happy it is in spiritual privileges, even during its militant state, but much more when it comes to be triumphant. Three things are here promised it. 1. Safety. That is put last here as a reason for the rest, v. 21. But we may consider it first as the ground and foundation of the rest. I will cleanse their blood that I have not cleansed, their bloody, heinous sins, especially shedding innocent blood; that filth and guilt they had contracted by sin, which rendered them unfit for communion with God, and made them obloquy to his holiness, and obnoxious to his justice; this they shall be washed from in the fountain opened, Zech. xiii. 1. That shall be cleansed by the blood of Christ, which could not be cleansed by the sacrifices and purifications of the ceremonial law. Or if we apply it to the happiness of the future state, it speaks the cleansing of the saints from all these corruptions from which they were not cleansed either by ordinances or providences; there shall be no sin there; there shall be no trace of sin in them there. Here, though they are washing daily, there is still something that is not cleansed; but in heaven even that also shall be done away. And the reason is, because the Lord dwells in Zion, dwells with his church, and much more gloriously with that in heaven, and holiness becomes his house for ever, for which reason, where he is, there dwells holiness, and all the works of holiness. Note, Though the refining and reforming of the church is work that goes on slowly, and still there is something we complain of, that is not cleansed, yet there is a time coming, when every thing that is amiss shall be amended, and the church shall be all fair, and no spot, no stain, in her; and we must wait for that day. 2. Plenty; v. 18. That is put first, because it speaks the reverse of the judgment threatened in the foregoing chapters. (1.) The streams of this plenty overflow the land, and enrich it; The mountains shall drop new wine, and the hills shall flow with milk; such great abundance shall spring up in this place of suitable provision, both for babes and strong men. It speaks the abundance of vineyards, and all fruitful; and the abundance of cattle in the pastures that fill them with milk. And to make the corn and fruitful, the rivers of Judah shall flow with water, so that the country shall be like the garden of Eden, flowers, water, and grass every where, and greatly enriched, Ps. lxv. 9. But this seems to be added particularly; the graces and comforts of the new covenant are compared to wine and milk; (Isa. lv. 1.) and the Spirit to rivers of living water, John vii. 38. And these gifts abound much more under the New Testament than they did under the Old; when believers receive grace for grace from Christ's fulness, when they are enriched with everlasting consolations, and filled with joy and peace in believing, then the mountains drop new wine, and the hills flow with milk. Drink ye, drink abundantly, O beloved. When there is a plentiful effusion of the Spirit of grace, then the rivers of Judah flow with water, and make glad, not only the city of our God, (Ps. lxvi. 4.) but the whole land. (2.) The fountain of this plenty is the house of God, whose streams of grace and comfort shall flow from it, as from the fountain of life. (Ezek. xlv. 1.) from under the threshold of the house, and the river of life out of the throne of God and the Lamb, Rev. xxi. 1. The psalmist, speaking of Zion, says, All my springs are in thee, Ps. lxviii. 7. Those that take temporal blessings to be meant in the former part of the verse, yet by this fountain out of the house of the Lord, the spirit of grace and the heart s joys and abounds in temporal blessings, we have so much the more need of, that we may not abuse them. Christ himself is this Fountain; his merit and grace cleanse us, refresh us, and make us fruitful. This here is said to water the valley of Shittim, which lay a great way off from the temple at Jerusalem, on the other side of Jordan, and was a dry and barren valley; which signifies that good things of grace, which we draw from Christ, shall reach far even to the Gentile world, to the most remote regions of it, and shall make them to abound in the fruits of righteousness, which had long lain as the barren wilderness. This grace is a fountain overflowing, overflowing, from which we may he continually drawing, and yet need not fear its being drawn dry. This fountain comes out of the house of the Lord; for those that would partake of the promised graces and comforts, must diligently and constantly attend upon instituted ordinances: and from the house of the Lord above, from his temple in heaven, flows all that good which here we are daily tasting the streams of, but hope to be shortly, hope to be eternally, drinking at the fountain-head of. 3. Perfection. This crowns all the rest; (v. 20.) Judah shall dwell for ever, (when Egypt and Edom are made a desolation,) and Jerusalem shall continue from generation to generation. This is a promise, and a precious promise it is, (1.) That the church of Christ shall continue in the world to the end of time. As one generation of professing Christians passes away, another shall come, in whom the same manifestation of grace shall be renewed every day, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it. (2.) That all the living members of that church (Judah and Jerusalem are put for the inhabitants of that city and country, Matth. iii. 5.) shall be established in their happiness to the utmost ages of eternity. This new Jerusalem shall be from generation to generation, for it is a city that has foundations, not made with hands, but eternal in the heavens.
