This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world’s books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that’s often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book’s long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google’s system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google “watermark” you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can’t offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book’s appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

The Progress of SIN, or the Travels of Ungodliness.

Wherein the Pedigree, Rise, (or Original) Antiquity, Subtilty, Evil Nature, and prevailing Power of SIN is fully discover'd; in an Apt and Pleasant Allegory:

Together with the great Victories he hath obtained, and abominable Evils he hath done to Mankind by the Help of the Devil, in all his Travels, from the beginning of the World, to this very Day. As also the Manner of his Apprehension, Arraignment, Tryal, Condemnation, and Execution.

Christian Reader,

Having written a small Treatise, entitled The Travels of True Godliness which (as I hear) hath found a kind Acceptance amongst all sorts of Protestants, whether Conformists, or Nonconformists, so I hear this hath met with the like; the sole or main Design of it being to beat down Sin, by setting forth the abominable Nature and Evil thereof, together with the Wiles and subtle Stratagems of the Devil, to deceive the Souls of Men. I have in it made use of the same Method I did before, viz., Presenting all I have said Allegorically; which way (I find) the Holy Ghost by the Prophets, and the Lord Jesus Himself much delighted in, and made use of; for all he spoke unto the Multitude, was by Parables, &c. And indeed had I not Warrant from God's Word thus to write, it seemed the Occasion}
The PREFACE

Occasion of Offence to all sorts of people; not reflecting on any Man's Person, whether High or Low, &c. And therefore I hope none will be offended with me though all kind of Sins are justly exposed, and Sinners reprehended though, (may be) some will quarrel with my very Title, and object, How can Sin be said to Travel to and fro? &c. To which I answer, Notwithstanding Sin be a Domestick Enemy; yet as Satan is said to go to and fro in the Earth, &c. to tempt, intice, and draw Men into Sin, being a cunning Observer of every Man's Temper, Calling and Inclinations; so Sin, upon this Account, we presume may be presented as a Traveller also.

I shall say no more, but leave it to the Blessing of GOD, whose Glory I seek, and desire to promot in all Things.

Reader, Tbo' 'tis true, there are Books (tho' many'st say) enough already; yet some say they would not be without this, and it being out of Print, it is once more presented to thee by him who only desires an interest in thy Prayers, at the Throne of Grace;

THE PROGRESS OF SIN:
OR THE TRAVELS OF Ungodliness.

CHAP. I.
Shewing the Pedigree, Rise, Antiquity and Original of SIN.

Although Sin, in a proper Sense, is a Non-Entity; rather the Depravation of a Being, than a Being at all: Yet it would be well for Thousands, yea Millions of Thousands, if there were no such Being for Sin in their Hearts, nor in the World as there is. What Sin is, the Holy Apostle shews, viz. The Transgression of the Law, &c. Doing what God forbids.
The Progress of Sin: Or, for bids, or not doing what God requires; or doing of it in another Manner than he in his holy Word directs, is alike Evil. And in these three Things doth Sin consist: These are the principal Parts of the Ugly Body, or Hateful Monster, who is the Subject of this ensuing History. And we hope none will be offended with us because in this Allegorical Discourse Sin is represented as a Person; since the Apostle himself gives it the Name of Body, and also attributes the Members of a Body to it: Who shall deliver me from the Body of this Death; &c. And in another Place he positively calls Fornication, uncleanness, inordinate Affections, evil Concupiscence, and Covetousness, &c. Members of this Body: Besides, what is that Old Man which he speaks of elsewhere, and stirs up the Godly to put off, but Sin, or the evil Habits thereof, which are corrupt, according to the deceitful Lusts.

Now, that we may the better perform this great and profitable Work we have taken in hand, it will be needful, first of all, to discover the Pedigree, Rise, Antiquity, and Original of this abominable Enemy of all Mankind.

First, Negatively; 'tis evident Sin is not of nor from God: He that is Holiness and Goodness it self cannot be the Author directly, nor indirectly of Sin or Ungodliness. A good Tree cannot bring forth evil Fruit; much less can any Evil proceed from the holy God; from whomsoever therefore Sin derived his first Being, or had his his Original, it is impossible he should be from the Glorious Creator of Heaven and Earth; for whatsoever God Created was Good: Every thing that had its Being from him hath some Good originally in it; but Sin hath not, nor never had any Good in it; but is altogether Evil; the Evil of Evils, and therefore not from God.

Yet we must grant that Sin is of great Antiquity, and hath been a long time in the World; yea, some there be who think it had his Conception or Original before Man was Created, because some of the Angels fell by Sin before that time; but how, when, and by what Means Sin entred into them, who were such Holy and Glorious Creatures consider'd in their first Estate is as I judge beyond what any Mortal is able to demonstrate, therefore we shall state his Original where the Apostle doth: By one Man Sin entered into the World, Rom. 5. 12. that is to say, Sin was Conceived, and had his Birth or Entrance into this World by Means of our first Parents; but if it be ask'd by whom he was begotten, I answer, By Apollyon, King of the Bottomless Pit, called the Old Serpent, the Devil and Satan; it was by his Subtilty they were Beguil'd, who whilst they stood in the State of Innocency, were as a most chaste, beautiful, and undefiled Virgin, whom because he could not force, he cunningly enticed to his foul and unclean Embraces: yea, and upon their first yielding to this Curled Serpent, was begotten this vile and evil Enemy: Hence the Devil is said to be a Liar, and the Father of it; and
The Progress of Sin: Or, on this Account, Sin maybe fitly called the Spawn of the Devil; 'tis Originally his Offspring, a Brat of his Begetting, and also bears a lively Image and Representation of him.

Obj. But this you will say was the original or first Sin.

Answ. 'Tis true, and must also be granted, That Original Sin, was the Original of all Sin; for from that first Sin, by the help of the Devil, and Man's evil Heart, doth all manner of Sin proceed.

Original Sin hath been prodigious fruitful: for it would make a Man admire to consider, what a multitude of filthy Brats, or spurious Offspring have proceeded from that First born of the Devil; yet all are but as it were Members or Parts of, and tend to make up the said Body and evil Monstcr; and this truly, of the Production of Sin, was Apollyon's Master piece; for by the help and means thereof, he hop'd and resolv'd to erect his Kingdom; for since he could not be a Ruler (nor in a higher State than a Servant) in the Upper World; (no, nor remain an Angel any longer there) he was resolved to be a King and Ruler in these lower Regions; and to set up a mighty Kingdom in this World, in despight of God himself; whom he sought thereby to be revenged upon, for that great Affront and Indignity cast upon him (as 'tis thought) he conceived, who being Created, in a higher and more glorious State than Man, should be commanded to be a Servant or Ministering Spirit to Man; and he was doubtless moved moved also, with Malice and Rage against the Creature; Man; whom he saw God had lately formed and placed in Paradise, and made Lord and chief Ruler of the whole Universe; and to the end that he might, I say, effect or bring this his Grand Plot or Enterprise about, which was to Eclipse God's Glory, and utterly ruin Man-kind: He saw there was no other way to accomplish it, but by the Production of this cruel and merciless Enemy, Sin; and having craftily obtained his devilish Design, so far that the hellish Monster was conceived and brought forth; immediately, as soon as ever he entered into the World, even before he was one Hour old, he began to act his Diabolical, Cursed, and Damnable Pranks: so that by his first Essay or Entrance on his fearful Work or Enterprise, he gave sufficient Proof to all that should ever live on Earth, of his Strength and Cruelty, and what all Mortals must expect from him. 'Tis strange to consider, That a Brat just born, and as one would think, wholly inexperienced, should be cloathed with so much Power, and be fill'd with so great Malice; for just as Apolloym Mid-wiv'd him into the World, he let fly his Sting, and thereby at once gave a Mortal Wound to the whole Lump of Mankind; not only all that then lived, but also all such who should in After-times live upon the Earth: The Nature of that woeful blow, it may not be amiss if I farther open and explain, before I proceed; since we all, to this Day, feel it, and groan under the said Misery and dismal Effects thereof:
But e'er I do this, let it be obser'vd, that Sin at once, in a great Measure, did effect what Apollyon craftily, in both Respects, had purposed before to bring about: For, hereby he caused Man to cast off his ever Blessed and Glorious Sovereign, from whom he had his Breath and Being; nay, not only so, but he begat a Strange-ness, and irreconcilable Enmity in the Heart of Man to the ever Blessed God, which is a most dismal thing to consider of; neither could any other Enemy ever have done this Evil and Curst Deed, but Sin only. Nay, and as he made Man to become God's Enemy, so he also caused God to become an Enemy to Man; (there being nothing so hateful and contrary to his Pure and Holy Nature than Sin), inso much, that now that Blessed Union that was between God, the Holy Creator, and Man his once happy Creature, is broke.

So that from hence you may see, This Enemy flew, as soon as ever he was born, into the very Face of God himself: This was his great Cry then, and is still to this Day, God shall not Reign, but I will Reign; and Apollyon King of Dark-ness, he shall Reign and Rule in the Hearts of all Men on Earth. Moreover, that by that one All he most wickedly defaced God's Glorious Image, which was graciously stamped upon the Soul of Man; and basely corrupted those Noble Facultics, who, as I may say, were the Attendants, Bosom-Friends, and continual Companions of this high-born Soul, whose Names were) if I mistake not) these following, viz.

1 Fudg-
The Travels of Ungodliness.

1. Judgment; alias Understanding, a very grave and wise Counsellor; but now become Blind, and filled with Ignorance and Darkness.

2. Will, a Free and Loyal Friend to the King of Heaven and Earth; and one always ready to stir up this precious Soul to that which was for her Good, and her Sovereign's Interest; untill he was by this Enemy depraved, and wretchedly corrupted, being wholly brought over to promote the Interest of Apollyon: For now in the Will there is a vile and total Averseness to the Will of God; for being filled with Pride, he never seeks to exalt himself, and all who adhere to him, above God, his Holy Word and glorious Sovereignty.

3. Memory, who before continually put the Soul in mind of all things God had commanded her to do; and whatsoever he had prohibited or enjoined her not to do; but now so corrupted by his Enemy, and made so vile, that what she should remember she forgets, and what she should forget, that she remembers.

4. Affections, and indeed there were none more basely corrupted and drawn away from God, than these, before Sin prevailed, or entered into the World: They were like a most Chaste and Undeiled Virgin; but now so corrupted and carnal, that they are more discordered than any of the rest: Before they were always set upon God, and took Delight and Complacency in him he being their only Object. But now the World, the Flesh, nay, this Hell-bred Tyrant, & Sin, is sweeter, more precious and lovely to them than he.

5. Co-
The Progress of Sin: Or,

5. Conscience, one who kept the Records, was always faithful to the Soul before the unhappy Production of this Enemy of God, and made all the House to rejoice, and break forth into singing, by the Nature of his sweet Testimony, or Witnesses he always gave in, for, and in behalf of the Soul; but now so vile and depraved, that when he should reprove and charge the Soul with its Evils, he is asleep; sometimes he condemns for want of good Eye-sight when he should justify; and at another time justifies when he should reprove and condemn. Nay, he is so far drawn aside to the Interest of the Prince of Darkness, that when some Men persecute, and put the Saints of God to Death, he tells them they do God Service. These are some of those things that this vile Enemy did in part effect, by that one. Blow he struck our first Parents, tho' not at all; for he brought in, or did beget another most cruel Tyrant, who had Reigned ever since with great Force and Rigor, subduing all under his Feet; his Name is Death. This King of Terror had never been, had not Sin given his Being to him; in a Word, you may perceive, he became an immediate Plague to the Soul of Man, a Depriver of every Faculty, and a Destroyer of the Body, as well as of the Soul: For it was he also who let in Sickness, and all manner of Diseases, which the Bodies of human Creatures are subject to, with Spiritual Death, and Curse of God.

Lastly, Hell, or the Lake of fire, comes to be prepared by his means: 'Tis he I mean, who who brings in Eternal Death. There had been no Hell, had it not been for Sin.

Sin's worse than Hell; I digg'd that horrid Pit, 'Tis Sin that casts poor Sinners into it; No Lake of Fire, no Tophet had there been For Souls of Men; no Death but thorough Sin.

CHAP. II.

Shewing how Apollyon, Prince of Darkness, having a Design to send Tyrant Sin, as his Grand Agent, to Travel into all Quarters of the Earth; be (First), Gave him his Commission. Secondly, Warning of his Enemies. Thirdly, Directions how to overcome and destroy them.

The Pedigree, Rite, Original and Antiquity of this cruel and Hell-bred Enemy, Sin, having briefly been open'd to you: Apollyon having now nourished and brought him up fit for his Turn, Work and Service; and finding he had already so wonderfully succeeded in his first and main Enterprize, he saw he would be a true and faithful Friend to him, and a rare Foot Fool or Stirrup for him, to mount or raise him up to his long'd for Sovereignty; and finding him, by this time, grown to some considerable Maturity, resolved to send him abroad, to Travel into all Quarters of the Earth, to manage the Affairs of his Infernal Kingdom, greater his Power, and actually subdue all Enemies under his
The Progress of Sin: Or, his Feet, in all Nations, Countries, and Kingdoms of the World. But before the Tyrant entered upon this woful Journey, we will suppose the Devil gave him his Commission, and Instructions, how to proceed in all his Achievements; to whom he addressed himself after this manner:

Sin's Commission, received from the Devil.

My most dear and beloved Child, the true Image of thy Father, and choice Darling of Hell, and the only Hope of this Infernal Lake, whom my my Lord Lucifer, Belzebub and other inferiour Princes, as Belial, Satan, &c. do adore: Hearken to thy Father who begat thee, and gave thy being to thee: Thou art my Creature: What care I, though the Powers of Heaven hate thee; I will, in despite of all thy mortal Enemies, make thee Great, raise thy Honours, and Crown thee as King and chief Ruler throughout the whole Universe; and all who will not obey thee, and yield Submission to thee, I will raise all manner of Mischief upon, make them miserable, and tread them under thy Feet. Thou seest how successful already thou hast been, and what a mighty Conqueror thou art become in thy very Nonsense: Thou hast, at one Blow, defeated all the Hopes of this new-born Mortal, and crushed him to pieces in the very Bud. He that was, the other Day, the Darling of Heaven, who swam in Pleasures, and was mounted so high in
The Travels of Ungodliness, in Sovereignty, Glory and inconceivable Grandeur; shining as a Star of the first Magnitude; possessing perfect Union and Communion with his Creator, is now by thee, by the Power of thy Hand, and Success of thy Arms, made miserable, and become so hateful to him whose Delight he was that he hath cast him off, and turned him out of Paradise.

Ah, how I laugh to see it! How is he become the Reproach and Scorn of all the Princes, and mighty Host of this unconquer'd Lake? What care I, though there is much bitter Enmity put between me, and the Woman's Seed? Do I fear what Hurt any one, that shall proceed from her can do to me? If thou in thy Nove age hast done such mighty things, and overcome this excellent Creature, when all his Internal Powers were utterly averse to us and no ways inclined to favour our Interest; What shall any of her Off-spring do to our hurt, much less break my Head, or destroy thy Sovereignty, since now we have got so strong a Party to our side, in their own House? Thou hast been so happy in this late mighty Victory, that the Powers of that Noble Soul, possessed by this Creature, are at once brought over to us.

I have a Purpose to send thee to Travel to and fro in the Earth, until thou hast gone thro' the whole Universe: And to my Joy, I find all People are prepared by thee, and made willing for all their Faculties are inclined to entertain thee; so that I have no cause to doubt of an happy Progress. I am sure thou
The Progress of Sin: Or, thou wilt find a ready Welcome in all Places, not only amongst the poor, and baser Sort; but amongst the mighty and noble Ones of the Earth.

And now therefore know, that I am thy Prince and only Sovereign; and I do here give thee a Commission, a Passport ready drawn, and signed for thee by all the high and mighty Lords of these dark and vast Regions; with certain Instructions how to carry thyself in all thy Travels. I have also prepared for thee two great Wings, that sometimes (as need shall require) thou mayst fly to and fro, and be as swift as Thought. The vast Deep shall be no Lett to thee: Thou shalt pass from Port to Port, from Place to Place, from one Land and Kingdom to another without Ship or Gally, and shalt never need to stay for Wind nor Tide. I will also teach thee to transform thyself into any Form or Shape, at my Pleasure: And to hide thy Sring, and ugly Village, I have provided thee a Cloak, which thou shalt have Power and Skill to alter, or change the Fashion of, as will best suit thy Occasion at any time. Be thou sometimes a Dog, to fawn; a Dragon, to devour; a Dove, to seem innocent; be a Serpent or Fox, for Subtility; a Lyon, for Strength; and in all thy Travels, observe the Constitutions, and natural Inclinations of all People. Build rather thy Nest among Willows that bend every way than on Tops of Docks whose Heads are ready to be Laid. Fly with the Swallow, close to the Earth, when Storms are at hand; but keep Company with Birds.
Birds of greater Talons, when the Weather is clear; and never leave them, till they look like Ravens, Creep into every Bosom: Fear not to approach the Courts of Emperors, Kings, Princes and Noble Ones of the Earth: For I will cause thee to find Favour amongst all Ranks, Degrees, and Conditions of Men, I will teach thee to get in at their Eyes, Ears, Mouth; nay a Thousand Ways thou shalt have to invade them, and to spread the Wings of thy Infection over them. Make every Head thy Pillow to lean upon, and use it like a Mill, to grind Mischief. When thou meetest a Dutchman, teach him to Stab; when a Spaniard, how to Betray present an Italian with a fair Damself, and teach him to Poison; when thou meetest a Scot, teach him False-heartedness; when with an Irishman, teach him to Forswear himself; great Men hard, they are my very good Benefactors; and their Example hath commonly a when an Englishman, to do all this. Pursue great Influence upon those of a lower Rank, Hauat Taverns, there thou shalt find brave Youths easily overcome. Erect Store of Play-Houses, for they tend greatly to the enlarging of my Principalities; there I keep my Market, and vend my Ware more abundantly, or offer my rotten Goods to sale, burnished up bravely to the Eye, enough to bewitch all who lack Under-standing, to doat upon them.

Be sure to beset (on every side) the younger Sort; for if thou canst get Possession of their Hearts
The Progress of Sin: Or,
Hearts timely: thou wilt find it easy to keep them safe enough, and make them thy constant Slaves and Vassals to the end. And when thou meetest with them afterwards, shew them the Glory of this World, allure them with thy Pleasures, and hold forth thy Golden Apples to them: But if that sorry Fellow, Conscience, at any time, gets Power to frighten them, promise them late Repentance, and assure them of long Life; and thereby thou wilt soon overcome them.

When thou meetest with the Rich, tempt them to trust in it, set their Hearts upon it, and to make their Bags of Gold and Silver their God; and to grind the Face of the Poor, and force them to sell their Commodities cheaper than they can afford them, and not give them a Penny to relieve their Necessities: For thereby thou wilt subdue them both at once; for the one I am sure of, and the other will be so hunted with one of thy Offspring, called Carping-Care that if Light-Finger doth not overcome and tempt him to Steal, the other will break his Heart, and force him to take the Name of God in vain, and not think of any thing else, than what will tend to the strengthening of thy Hands, and conduce to my Interest in him.

When thou comest to meet with such, who are naturally inclin'd to Ambition, or have an eager Desire and Thirst after Honour, suit thy Bait accordingly; teach them how to contemn their God, their Conscience, their good Name, the Law and Religion too, that so they may the better better mount the Hill of Ambition and Earthly Grandeur.

When thou dost approach to a melancholly Person, entice him to be alone, and not to open his Mind to any Body, as he renders his Life; also perswade him, No Body in the World can tell what his Distemper is, and make him believe he is damned: Nay tell him, there is no way, but to Hell he must go, and then we shall between us, perhaps, entice him to hang, drown, or poison himself, or cut his own Throat, and so we shall destroy many of these silly Souls and that way enlarge our Kingdom.

When thou meetest with an old Man make him conceited, vain-glorious, fretful, and very peevish; fill his Head with Tales and old Stories; and to put them off the better, tempt him to add to them.

When thou comest to married People make one jealous of the other: If a Man have a beautiful Woman to his Wife, trouble his Thoughts without just Cause; because she is fair, make him conclude she is false, and every one that looks on her, perswade him he loves her. If she speaketh him fair, let him believe she feigneth; if she behave her self dutiful, make him think she then doth counterfeit. When she goes abroad, fill his Head with Fear, and make his Heart pant. If she be neatly dressed, perswade him tis to allure and please others. If she be homely dressed, tis because she knows that he will keep House that Day.
The Progress of Sin: Or,

If by any Means we can but kindle this Spark in either of them, to be jealous-headed, we shall do our Business effectually.

Be sure do what you can to make Discord between every Couple; when one is hot, let not the other be cold; suffer not one to throw Water upon the Fire which the other kindles; for by this means we shall set the House on Fire, and then warm our selves with the Smoke thereof: Teach them to live either below what they have, or else above what they have; and if they have Children, I will give thee Instructions about them hereafter, when thou enterest the Country of Non-Age: If they go behind-hand, thou must stir up the Husband to lay all the Cause thereof on his Wife, and let the Wife charge the Husband wholly with it; do what thou canst, be sure, in the Morning and Evening, to prevent Prayer; for that I fear more than all the Pope's Holy Water.

We must make the Fountain muddy, and then the Spring cannot be clear: Discords and Confusion in a Family, does as much strengthen my Kingdom as any thing in the World.

You cannot think, how I am pleased, how greatly it delights me to see Men and their Wives live at Strife and Variance.

When thou meetest with a single, or unmarried Person, perplex his Mind continually about a Wife, and render his Life not worth Regard without one: If thou canst tempt him to Uncleanliness, do; I will stand his Friend in the Matter: But if he will marry, let him more mind
The Travels of Ungodliness.

Find Portion than the Person; let his Inquiry be what Money he hath, or what Grace he hath, as you love me. We must also find such a one for him as may be a Plague to him, as Job's Wife was to him: Never let him and the Temper of the Woman; Nor whether or not, be a suitable Help-meet, that she doth but please his Eye, and bring gold and Silver into his Coffer.

When that doth attend a choleric, or passion Man raise his Anger to Madness; if thou cause his Mind to swell high and so full there may be no room left for any good word or Motion: Make him in his Fits, like spider's poison'd Toad; so that Reason, Modesty, and Humanity may fly from him, as Repulsced from a House that is all on Fire; let it contamely, without any Distraction, or Rest, bad to Friend or Foe, Alien or Familiar; him also add Violence of Hands, savage or furious Behaviour, like the troubled Sea, when cannot rest; Whose Waters ait up Mine and are fuming and foaming like a muddy Quan-ty, a distorted Countenance, sparkling Eyes, Language; and let him not come to him, nor speak a Word to his nearest Friends two or three Days; pay, fix him up in Grand Fit to run away, though there was no site for the Fend; and if thou canst persuade to throw the Leaves out of Window; tear his Eyes, and Inno, and spin Cloaths to pieces, or break China Ware. But know, we are now Observers of the Temper and various
The Progress of Sin: Or, Passions of Men; in some Anger hath a quick and sudden Motion, but presently ceases. This they call Choler: And they think it is an Influence of some angry Planets; let the Fools have thir Fancy; but I must tell thee, 'tis a Child of thy begetting; but this is like Fire in Stubble, soon kindled, and soon goes out; or like Gunpowder, which no sooner thou puttest Fire to it, but flies in the Faces of their dearest Friends. These they say are the best natur'd Men; but they may thank us for that Excuse.

There is another sort, whom thou canst not so suddenly move; but when Passion is raised, it takes deeper hold in their Memory: And this Fire is not so easily kindled, so neither is it easily put out: If thou dost but do thy best, 'twill prove like Fire in Iron, which hardly taketh, and long abideth.

A Third sort there be, in whom thou mayst kindle this fiery Passion suddenly, and retain perpetually; not desisting without Revenge. These are like Fire which ceaseth not without the Ruin and Waste of that Matter where it hath caught. Mind thy Instructions; for this Engine thou mayst destroy Thousands.

There is yet another kind of People, whom thou must attack, whom I perfectly have hold for my mortal Enemies; and they are or Saints, about whom we have held divers Councils in Hell, how to destroy. Thence they, who are also failed: the Warnings Sealed.

Most Noble Prince, if thou canst beguile, deceive, and subdue this sort, the Day is won.
The Travels of Ungodliness.

Thou must do it, or it never can be done. Therefore I conjure thee, in the Name of my Lord Lucifer Belzebub, and in the Name of all the mighty Thrones, Dominions, Principalities, and Powers of this Burning Lake, to use thy utmost Skill and Policy: For what thou dost upon these thou must do by craft, and after a more wary and clandestine Manner: For they have studied our Politicks, and are not ignorant of our Devices. Yet let me tell thee there are some who bear that Name and are accounted of their Company, who are our good Friends, and indeed, as serviceable to our Interest as most in the World.

But as touching Advice and Counsel, how thou shouldst prey upon those my grand Enemies, I shall forbear at present, it being a Secret that ought not to be revealed: I shall give thee therefore Instructions hitherafter, when thou meetest with them in the Town of Religion, how to betray and overcome them.

Moreover, there are divers other Ranks, Qualities and Conditions of People, with whom thou wilt meet in thy Travels, which I have not yet mentioned, viz. Noblemen, Counsellors, Lawyers, Doctors, &c. and all sorts of Mechanicks: But when thou enterest into the Town of Commerce, thou shalt have Advice and Directions how to handle them.

And now, because I am sensible of the great Weight and Importance of this grand Enterprise; and how by the Travels I am like to lose or win all, I am resolved to accompany thee.
The Progress of Sin: Or, continually to the End of the World. I will go with thee, and be as a Servant to thee. And I must tell thee also, I have got the Skill to transform myself into any Shape: If need be, I can be an Angel of Light, and become devilish Godly: We must both sometimes be very Religious, for else, how should we set up our Spiritual Kingdom; for such a one I have, and shall have, as well as a fleshly: And the Advantage thereby to us is, and will be, very great; otherwise we should never have spent so much Time, and held so many grand Cabals in Hell, about contriving, ushering in, and establishing this our Ecclesiastical State in the World.

Lastly, that we may not lose Time, I shall only admonish thee of divers grand Enemies, which thou must be aware of, and throughly be revenged upon, or all our Design will prove, in a great Measure, fruitless: I shall therefore, &c. thou begin thy Travels, give thee their Names.

The first is a Paper Enemy, a contemptible Ever to look upon; and yet I dread him more than all the Powers of Heaven and Earth. May it please your Greatness, to a Book; not a Play-Book, no, no, that is an Engine of my own forging: Not a Conjuring-Book; for that same thing hath often made me brave Spirit: Nor is it a Song-Book; no, nor a Book of Philosophy, nor Physics; but, &c. the Bible. I would teach all the Plagues of Hell to light upon, if that would do: But I see all is in vain, for 'tis under the perpetual Care of Him, who who reigns Above, and cast me down into these lower Regions. We must do, therefore, what we can, to keep all Men ignorant of it; and not suffer them to have it in their Mother's Tongue: Or, if we cannot do that, then take off their Hearts from it so, that they may not read, meditate upon it, nor remember what is contained in it. For 'tis like a cruel Sword with two Edges; which, if they have got Skill to use it, it will destroy them utterly. Yet do not fear; for I can teach thee to use it so, as to turn the Edge of it against themselves, and wound them with their own Weapon. Besides, I will shew thee how to magnifie some other Books, and unwritten Verities, meer Inventions of our own devising, above it; and raise up others to cast it away as a dead Letter, and also to wrest it, and to make a Noise of wax of it, and cause Thousands to believe, that it doth not belong to Lay-People to read it; and forewarn them not to study it, on their Peril.

The second Enemy I must adviseth thee of, is the Theology; a Holder-forth, a Preacher forth; that gives himself up wholly to Study, to bring both thee and I to flamme; nay, to destroy thee utterly. This Fellow prys into Your Secrets: But I will teach thee, how, one or another, to be revenged upon him.

The third Adversary is a Spirit, some call him the Holy SPIrITS. I must confess, he is a powerful Enemy; and I cannot deny but he hath been sometimes too hard for all the mighty

B 3  Powers
The Progress of Sin: Or, Powers of this burning Lake. Whenever therefore he breaks in upon thee, with his Sword'd arm in his hand, he will slay thee at once; nay, such cruel Hatred he hath to thee, that no other Death will satisfy him but to crucify thee, which grieves my Heart to think upon. Therefore, beware of him, and keep the Door shut (where thou hast Possession) against him. Moreover, I shall teach thee many other ways to quench his Heart, and hinder his prevailing Power upon Men's Hearts; yea, tire his Patience, and grieve him so that he shall not strive against thee, nor appear for their Help any longer.

The fourth is a rare and beautiful Damned her Name is Grasa, and she hath also several Sisters: as Faith, Hope, Charity, &c. It grieves me so think, thou shouldst at any time be worshipped, and utterly vanquished by any of the Feminine Gender. But thou wilt sustain great Loss, I perceive, by her Means; for she has a cruel Train of powerful Enemies to torment, us continually, attending of her: Yet I shall teach thee how to mar her Beauty, and spoil her Growth.

The fifth Enemy is called Knowledge of God, but I think there is no great Fear of him; for the greatest parts of the World, I doubt not, we shall keep in Ignorance, in beast-like, popish Darkness: But if he gets in, he will do great Hurt, by discovering all our Intrigues, &c. The sixth is only Morality: I hate him. Man hates a Toad. Yet, as we will, one Matters, he shall do us a great Kindness; for he is not very well known, and so we will cause divers silly Creatures to trust in him for Life and Salvation. That way we shall bring some foolish Blades to Hell, with mighty Hopes of Heaven in their Noddles.

The first is a scurvy, obstinate Fellow, called Enlightened Conscience; a mere Tell-tale, one that never will be bribed; nor doth he fear Frowns, nor regard Flatteries. I doubt he will prove a Plague to thee in all thy Travels; but I will shew thee hereafter how to deal with him.

The sight is an Engine of War; an Enemy that has made the very Foundations of Hell it self to shake: I think they call him Pharaoh; but he can do little Hurt without Faith: And I will teach thee many rare Devices to make him ineffectual: There are some Prayers that need not fear, viz. such as some use with Beads, &c. Prayer always prevails according to the Nature, Holiness, Truth, Sincerity, Industry, Skill and Care of the Person who use, him. Besides I fear not the Prayers of unfaithful Persons.

The third is Repentance, but fear him not; it comes not in timely, or approaches alone, without his dreadful Retinue, whom I tremble at. Thoughts of, which are these following, Godly Sorrow, Holy Revenge, Venomous Deity, Spiritual Indignation, Filial Fear, Heavenly Chast Self-Clearing, pious Zeal, &c.

The fourth Enemy is, Consideration, who is the Ringleader to all the Mischiefs, Troubles,

The Progress of Sin: Or, Wars and Disquietments, raised up in any Kingdom; and were it not for him, I would not fear any Adversary on Earth; therefore, thou must prevent his coming to the Assistance of the Parties thou dost encounter with, which thou may'st do by filling their Minds with the Cares of this Life; also render him odious; make them believe he is a dangerous Fellow, have made many a brisk Youngster a meer Mope; causing them so hang down their Heads like Bullrushes; to fold their Arms, and to spend their Days in Tears and Sighing; and hath caused many to go besides themselves. Moreover, thou may'st drive him away, by sending the Party to some Play or Tavern, or such like Diversion.

The Eleventh are, Truth and Justice, both implacable Enemies to our Empire; but I am resolved to do what I can to make them wander like Vagabonds in the open Air; for Truth shall find no Lodging, unless it be with a Mute; and Justice, thou shalt throw her down in the Street; and Equity shall not enter. We will so handle her, that few or none shall know her when they see her; they shall indeed have her bare Name, but not her Nature; for I have ready at hand in every Kingdom, a Multitude of such braggart Catchpoles, that I hope they effectually will cur her Business: Let her fly to Heaven; what hath she to do on Earth? and as for who bears that Name, we will turn her Sword against our Enemies (and as much as in us lies) to spare our Friends.
The twelfth Enemy is one whom they call True Godliness, who hath been travelling up and down, a long time to undermine my Kingdoms. He is made up, they say, with right Faith and holy Life; but I am glad he meets with no better Entertainment. Now, my grand Design by granting thee this Commission, is to spoil his Enterprise; and finally, to vanquish him out of these lower Regions. Ponder well what hath been said, and bestir your self; Fly round fro. East, West, North and South, before all Mortals; my Instructions will serve for every Age, and will suit with all Climates and Countries throughout the whole Universe; but chiefly I aim at the latter Times. Be gone and raise my Honour, and let my Renown break forth in all Quarters.

Cloath my ambitious Children with Ornaments of Gold, and crown them with Glory and Honour; fill the Voluptuous with Pleasure, and the Delights of this World. Let the Envious and Cholerick, have all the sweer Revenge their precious Hearts cast desire; glut them with Rapine, Massacre, and Murder. Set one Man against another, Husband against the Wife, the Wife against the Husband; Parents against their Children, and Children against their Parents; and teach Masters to be cruel to their Servants, and Servants to rob and feast from their Masters; promoting Lying, Swearing, Whoring, Blasphemy, Atheism, Flattery, Drunkenness, Cruelty, Pride, Hardheartedness, and all manner of Dishonesty. Raise up Wars and Commotions.
The Progress of Sin: Or in every Kingdom; let all before thee be put to Fire and Sword. Introduce Superstition, Heresie, false Doctrine, and gross Idolatry, Visit all in thy Journey; the Young, the Old, the High, the Low, the Rich, the Poor, the King on the Throne, the Beggar on the Dunghill Let Truth, Righteousness, Justice and Equity, Conscience, Charity, Fidelity, Simplicity and Modesty be banished all the Regions of the Earth. Thou art my great Emisary, and hast thy Parent of Assignment and Grant, from me the great Prince of Darkness, whom thou must daily honour, and under whose Standard continually advance thy Colours, and spread the Flag of my Authority; by which, not only the Lodgings and outward Gates of all Courts and Cities of the World, but also the inward and inmost Chambers and Closets therein will soon fly open, and give way to this strong Commission. Thou hast the World, the Flesh, and me the Devil; Nay, all Devils and infernal Spirits for thee, to side with thee, and take thy part. All Men are ready to receive thee, no Tradesmen, nor others, can well live without thee; but be sure remember, that never be satisfied to take up thy Quarters in their Barns nor Stables, nor in their outward Courts nor Castle Yards, but command the best Room they have, viz. their Hearts; and be sure where thou comest there sway the Scepter, and make them all subject to thee, and become thy Servants and Vassals for ever: Let me see thee bring Millions of Millions into these dark Regions, to dwell with us an everlasting Burning.
The Travels of Ungodliness.

CHAP. III.

Shewing how the haughty Prince and bloody Tyrant Sin, the grand Agent of Apollyon, began his Travels: Also what a strange Retinue do accompany him; and his great Success in the beginning of his actual Enterprize.

This Hellish Monster, having thus receiv'd his Commission, immediately resolved (you may conclude) for his Journey.

But before we come to speak of his present Travels, it is necessary to give you a Description of his Person, and Retinue; together, with a brief History of his first setting out; and abominable Transactions in ancient Times.

First, as to his Person, he is the strangest Monster that ever you heard or read of, for he consists of a compleat Composition of all manner of Sins and Ungodliness; and though he be but one entire Body, yet he hath a multitude of Members, and lives separately in every one of them; so that each Member may properly be said to be him, as if he was solely or entirely there. 'Tis not proper to say he is a Sinner; for he is got into a higher Orb than that Phrase can reach; for he is Sin, not filthy, but Filthiness in the Abstract; not proud, but Pride; not covetous, but Covetousness, &c.

Secondly, He being in the Holy Scripture compared to a mighty King, though a cruel Tyrant, whose Power and Authority is very great
The Progress of Sin: Or, great; it will do well to shew you what a Retinue he always hath to accompany him in his Progress, for it cannot be supposed he travel alone. The 1st is Apollyon King of the Bottomless Pit. The 2d Intolerable-Guilt. The 3d Abominable Pollution. 4 Horrible Shame and Ignomy. 5 Deceitful Heart. 6 A Defiled Conscience. 7 Famine. 8. The Sword. 9. The Pestilence. 10. Death, who is always just at his Heels; and Hell, with the dreadful Wrath and Curse of an angry God, pursues him very close from which there is no escaping.

Moreover, The rich Presents the Traveller carries along with him, to allure, entice, or ensnare the Souls of Men, are chiefly Sinful Pleasures, Riches, Honours, and Length of Days. But stop here; Apollyon is near, and seems to be in a great Rage that his Emissary is not gone.

Apollyon. Haste, haste, thou Mighty Champion, prepare for thy Journey; subdue the World actually under thy Feet; fear no Enemy that seeks to undermine or counterwork thee, I like not Delays; lose no time; put the Mandates of thy Sovereign into present Execution before I raise all the Power of this unconquer'd Lake to fall upon my Enemies; and consume all Mortals at once.

Upon which the cruel Enemy set forth, Apollyon following him close at his Heels, to assist him in every Enterprise; and so it fell out, just as he began his Journey, Cain and Abel were offering Sacrifices; and having Intelligence of both their Dispositions, he made up to Cain's Door, and there lay couching down, like a hurtful Beast, ready to devour; and secretly whispered into his Eart to spare the best of his Substance to enrich himself; and so intimated to him, that all that he offered to the Lord was lost, and would never be rewarded; and Faith not being in Cain's House, he hearkned to this cursed Stranger, and did accordingly; yet he brought his Offering, left he should displease his Father Adam, who, it is thought at that time was High-Priest, which Office, afterwards, fell to the First-born in the Family. But when Cain saw his Offering was not accepted and his Brother's was, this Enemy being near, knocked at his Door.

Cain. Who is there?

Sin. Have you, Sir, any room for a Traveller.

Cain. What are you?

Sin, A Friend, one that loves you dearly, and am troubled to see how you are abused, and basely dealt with, by your younger Brother; Can you bear the Thoughts that he should be in the Favour of his Maker, and be the only Darling of his Father, and you slighted and contemned in this sort?

Cain. By this I cannot but think, thou are indeed a Friend, and dost bear good Will to me; pray come in:

And he presently lodg'd him in the best room he had: Neither do I read of any Opposition made against him, by any in the House.

He had no soonr receiv'd him but immediately (by secret Instigations and Instructions from Apol-Iyon, who was glad to see him entertain'd) be apply'd himself to him after this manner.
The Progress of Sin: Or,

Sin. Let this Villain Abel be the Object of thy Hatred: Never speak friendly to him more in Love; but let thy Wrath out against him to the uttermost: Shall he be accepted? What's he? Art not thou better than him? He will e'er long (though thy younger Brother) become thy Lord and Master, and Ruler over thee; and thou shalt be made a meer Underling.

Cain. I am truly of your Mind; my Father and my Mother's Heart, I find are already taken from me, and set upon this cunning Supplanter.

I hate him with a perfect Hatred; neither can I endure to see him. Thus Cain was fill'd with Wrath, and his Countenance fell, i.e. be clouded himself full of Rage and Discontent.

Sin. Most Noble Cain, Heir of the World; I have a Business of great Importance to impart to thee.

Cain. Sir, What is it?

Sin. I am a Servant to a mighty Prince, whose Power and Kingdom, 'tis like, thou hast not heard of: And he hath a dear and cordial Love for thee; and hath sent me to thee, with certain Instructions, to put thee in a way to be rid of this your Cantic Bro'ther; and I will assure you 'tis high time, for he is now at Prayer, and begins to grow more and more in favour, &c.

Cain. I am glad to hear this News, but which way can the thing be done?
Sir. You will never be at Peace, nor have any ground to conclude your Father will make you his Heir, or indeed, ever regard you; until he be rid out of the World: But if this be once done, all is your own.

Cain. But how shall I do to get rid of him?

Sir. Why, since there is none yet can employ secretly to do it; do you kill him, and then declare he murder'd himself, being overcome with Melancholy, or blown up with Pride and Self-Conceit upon his late ambitious Thoughts, in aspiring after Rule and Government. I'll warrant you, Sir, this will hide the Fact, and you shall never be discovered.

Presently, upon this Motion, Conscience step in, and spoke as in this manner.

Conscience. Sir, do not this Evil Deed, he is your only Brother; and his Blood will cry for Vengeance.

Sir. What dost do my Cain? Why dost thou make a Pause?

Cain. I am hinder'd by a timorous Fellow in my house, whom I know not; some Body I think hath sent him hither, on purpose to be a Plague to me.

Sir. Regard him not, I will undertake to set him, and spoil his telling Tales. Go call thy Brother forth, and walk together in the Fields. Be sure carry it lovingly to him, lest he mistrust thee; and I warrant you he will talk with you about Religion, and condemn your way of Worship and though he be your younger Brother, yet I will undertake to reach thee; and if thou wilt be a Fool, and suffer it, do.

Cain. I will try that, so far I am resolv'd to take thy Counsel.

Immediately, away he went and called his Brother forth; and they walked together in the Field.

Cain. Brother, what a vast Fabrick is here? This World, in which we are placed, is full of great Wonders, and excellent Rarities; and all after our Father Adam is dead, will be ours; all the Rights, I mean, and Glory thereof, and my Heart, Brother, is wonderfully pleas'd with the Thoughts of it; I desire no greater Glory, nor Happiness, though I have heard my Father talk of a future State beyond the Grave, that exceeds all things here below.

Abel. Brother, this World, and all the Wonders we do behold, doth shew forth the Glory and handy Works of Jehovah, our blessed God and Creator, whose we are, and whom we should serve; for he is a jealous God, and executes Righteousness and Justice in the Earth; and is a Rewarder of all those who diligently seek him.

Cain. You are a Fool, I do not believe there is any Reward for Justice and Righteousness, nor Vengeance for Ungodliness.

Abel. Brother, It grieves me to hear you speak after this manner; for I have had Evidence of his Mercy, and favourable Acceptance already. I am afraid, truly, you are misled by some Enemy; the way you go in Brother, is not good; think upon the world to come.
Cain & Abel Conversing to Gather

Cain Slaying Abel, his Brother
The Progress of Sin: Or,

Cain. Wisdom is only with you; I see now you are swollen up with Pride; leave off your talking of a World to come, for I believe none.

Abel. Brother, you shew a very wicked, naughty, and unbelieving Heart; I am ashamed to hear your Discourse.

Some Things of this Nature, we may suppose they might discourse of: And Cain being after moved to Wrath thereby, took the Devil's Counsel and rose up and murdered him.

See the Reverend Mr. Ainsworth upon this Matter. *

* Cain spake unto Abel his Brother; but what they said, is not set down. The Hebrew Text hath borne a Pause in an ordinary; implying (faith he) further Matter. The Greek Version adds, Let us go out into the Fields: And Thargum Jerusalem added the same, and much more; viz. How Cain, when they were in the Field, should say, There was no Judgment, nor Fire, nor other Wrath to come, nor

Thus this Enemy prevailed; and, in a second Attempt, overcame the Fourth Part of the World. But see how Sin and the Devil deceived Cain: The Murderer was soon discovered; for lo, on a sudden a mighty Cry was heard: Vengeance! Vengeance! But who is the Searcher of Blood, cries, Where is thy Brother? Nothing can be hid from his Eye. Neither shall not go unpunished: The Voice of thy Brother's Blood cries to me to the Ground. Guilt for his Sin with the dregs Wrath of God: And

...Reward of Justice, nor Vengeance for Wickedness, etc. All which Abel said, and then his Brother slew him. It seems it (faith he) to imply a Dissemblance of Cain's Hatred in that Friendship of his Brother, and he found Opportunity to kill him, etc. Ainsw. An. on Gen. 4, 5, 6, 7. pag. 22.

The only two sins that might have proceeded from him, 6. To deny the Fath, by saying, from not where he was. 7. And after all, not for Mercy, but rather desairesh of the Punishment, than convinced of the Sin: And so fell into the Condemnation of the Devil.

To kill, or rather stifle his Conscience (if any was left in him) Sin and the Devil forced him away from the Presence of God, Ainsworth hath it), from God's Word, showing Worship, to dwell in the Land of Egypt and to divert his Thoughts, married a wife, and built a City: which might also be in to better Security from his Fears, etc.

After
After this, Sin proceeds farther on his Progress; and, as he subdued all Cain’s Seed in general, so more especially, he overcame Lamech. First, by violating the Law of Marriage: Secondly, in committing of Murder: And thirdly, in glorying in it: I have killed a Man, &c. If he that killeth Cain, shall be punished seven fold; then he that killeth Me, seventy seven fold. It seemeth (saith an eminent Writer) to be a insolent Contemp of God’s Judgment, and a trial of his Patience towards Cain, &c. Time would fail me, to shew distinctly, the sin, by his Subtility, generally prevailed these Days, by alluring the Hearts of Men and Women with Mystical Instruments, and other Passions and Sensual Delights, and Profits of this World. Yet God to preserve a godly Seed, that he might have a Church in all Ages, and faithful his Priests to Adam, gave Eve another Son instead of Abel, whom Cain slew, whom he called Seth, who was born (saith Ainsworth) not till one Hundred and thirty Years after the Creation. This Seth begat Enos, so he is called the Greek, in Hebrew, Asheth; that is by Interpretation, sorrowful, sick, miserable; To him is thought, from the Consideration of a woful State of those Days. For, it seems, Sin prevailed wonderfully (as worthy Historians make report) by prophane Calling the Almighty, and by calling Idols by the Name of the Lord, and by making Images and Presents of Him. So high had Apollo raised his Throne, in those Times that duced under his Feet, and became mere Vassals and Slaves to him. Yer-Godliness, soon after, and one most choice and renowned Champions who bravely overcame this bellicos Enemy, and walked with God three hundred Years. But the Lord, seeing how Ungodliness everywhere abounded, took this holy Person from these Lower Regions, to dwell with Him Above. But Sin, as on Eagle's Wings, pursu'd his Progress, and like a devouring and unsatisfied Monster, resolved to destroy the whole World again at once, or provoke the dreadful God of Heaven to do it; which, in a short Space after, he almost effected, by corrupting the Earth, i.e. the Inhabitants of the Earth; nay, and the Earth itself, (faith Ainsworth) with the abominable Pollution of that Generation, was defiled; which agrees with another Text, Isa. 24. (Sin is of an infectious and poisonous Nature, fully compared to the Plague of the Leperosy) the Earth was defiled under the Inhabitants thereof. And this Corruption is especially applied to Idolatry, and depraving of God's ture. Worship, as appears by other Scriptures; Exod. 52. 7. Deut. 32. 5. Judg. 2. 19. which was the grand Design Apolloiyon laboured to effect by this his Hell-bred Agent. Nay, and the Discase was Epidemical: All Flesh was defiled, and their Way, corrupted; that is, their Faith and Religion, and their Manners, Works, and Course of Life also, &c. Every Imagination, and Thought of their Hearts, were only Evil, and that continually, all were in love with, receiv'd and harbour'd this cursed Enemy: Every Door was open, and all Hearts prepar'd to embrace him, and bid him welcome: Every Faculty of their Souls being depraved, and overcome by him, so that none but Sin and the Devil was regarded and subjected to by them of that Congregation.

God and Godliness were bad in great Contempt.
The whole World is become but a Mass of Filth and detestable Corruption. The Sons of God, i.e. Men of the Church, or Children of God were, by the Power of this Enemy, brought to mix or mingle themselves by unlawful Marriage; &c. with the Daughters of Men, viz. The Offspring of Cain, the cursed Seed. Nothing but Violence, Oppression, injurious and cruel Dealing over-spread the whole World. No Fear of God, nor Regard of Man; Rapine, Spoil and Murder abounded in all Places; and yet they seem'd to live free from Fear, and in the greatest Security imaginable; Buying and Selling, Building and Planting, Marrying, and being given in Marriage.

But now see what followeth: The Vengeance of God pursues the Traveller: Heaven could not bear longer with such prodigious Wickedness; and therefore, that God might show his Wrath upon those who had cast off; from whom they had their Bread.

40. The Progress of Sin: Or,
Two Floods I read of; one was caus'd by Sin,
That was external; the other flowed within.
Noah, escap'd the First, such favour found;
But afterwards, by This, was almost drown'd.
The former Flood of Water did extend
But some few Days: When will the other end?
They both destroy'd; But Sin is far the worst:
And 'tis more general too, than was the First.
Waters shall drown no more, a Sign God hath giv'n
When shall we see a Rainbow after Sin?

After this, as the World multiply'd, and increas'd in Number; so did Sin grow in Strength and Policy. And the Children of Men went to build great Babel, which was a crafty Device, of Apollo and Lucifier. But God defeated that Counsel, and confounded their Language, and then were they forced into all the Quarters of the Earth. But this Traveller pursu'd them all, where ever they went, and made them generally subject to his Authority, and become Servants to Lucifier, &c. for he drew them to Idolatry, and defiled them with all manner of gross Pollution and Sensuality. Inasmuch, that four great Cities, viz. Sodom, Gomorrah, Admah, and Zebaim, were evenly laid waste by him, and became an eternal Monument of God's fearful Wrath. For an unendurable Enemy filled their Hearts, and set them on War with Unnatural Lusts; (viz. Whoredom, Adultery, Sodom and Buggery) [i.e. the Men using the Natural Use of the Women, burn'd in Lust towards another, even Men with Men, which is unseemly and abominable] in the destruction destroy'd them with Fire and Brimstone from Heaven; which made them at last, when it was too late, cry out:

Curst be the Day, that we let in This Cruel Enemy;
O is it be, this Monster Sin,
That makes us thus to cry!
Those Planets were good, which use to shine;
But we, too late, do cry:
For we shall bear worse Pains than these,
To all Eternity.

Yet God rais'd up a few in every Age, to wax against Sin, and undermine his Kingdom, as Abraham and Lot; but Lot in one Encounter was worsted (tho' a brave Champion in his Days for True Godliness) afterwards justification, and then Jacob, who was a Prince with God. But that which proved effectual for the weakening of Sin's Power, was the Covenant concerning the Woman's Seed; which was a fresh renewal to these Patriarchs, After this God rais'd up Joseph, and his Brethren. This Joseph proved a mighty Man of Valour: For notwithstanding the Power and Policy of Apollo; and all the whole Infernal Lake, this Heavenly Warrior could not be made to yield: He neither regarded Frowns nor Flatteries; and the main Ground of his constant Resistance was because he saw what a hateful Enemy Sin was: in God's Light: How shall I do this great Wickedness against God? That was the Weapon

by 42 The Progress of Sin: Or, by which he overcame; yet nevertheless, his Brethren, tho' they took up Arms against Sin, were sorely wors'ted by him, and particularly, being moved with Envy, sold poor Joseph into Egypt, but God was with him: and he came off, at last a Glorious Conqueror: (tho' the Enemy, by Policy, once put him to Flight: when he lived in Pomp, and Glory, in Pharaoh's Court, he learned to Swear, By the Life of Pharaoh;) but by Means of Conscience, a Noble Officer for the Prince of Light, Joseph's Brethren did recover the Fall Sin gave them, for he made them cry out, We were verily guilty concerning our Brother, &c. From these Mens Loin's, afterwards, a great Army arose or sprung up; who did wonderful Exploits against this malicious Traveller and Champion of Hell; they having at first, upon the Death of Joseph and his Brethren, a brave and Victorious Captain to Command them, called Moses; yet these possessed but a small Spot of Ground, in comparison of the whole Universe: And as touching the greatest part of the world, Sin wholly Ruled and Tyranized over them, and they became mere Slaves and Drudges to the Devil; so that of them we shall take but little Notice, but speak somewhat of Moses, that Man of God, the Prince and and Chief Leader of Israel.

This Man, at first was under dangerous Circumstances; being brought up among Friends and Servants of Apolloh: who to notice him to his Party, offered him all the Advantages and Honours of Pharaoh's Court; and thought, thought, if he had deserted his Prince, and took up Arms for the Enemy, he might at Pharaoh's Death have been Crown'd King of Egypt: But he having a mighty Shield in his Hand, and being also otherwise compleatly armed, put the Enemy to flight, and chose rather to suffer Affliction with the People of God, than to enjoy the Pleasure that this cunning Deceiver offered him for a Season. But upon this, a sore and grievous War fell out between the two Seeds: For Pharaoh by no Means would tolerate or give Liberty to True Godliness to live amongst them. But for this their Wrath and Enmity, he with the Egyptians, paid dear; for Sin, with implacable Malice, so hardened his Heart, that notwithstanding Ten terrible Plagues, he would not suffer the Children of Israel to go and worship their God: Therefore Jebovah at last destroyed them all in the Red-Sea.

Now after the Overthrow of the Egyptians, he stirred up all his Powers to corrupt the Seed, and prevailed also exceedingly; insomuch that many of them turned Idolaters, and forsook the True God. Now, some time before this, Jebovah, to convince them of the Afflictive Condition they were in, by enterprising this Enemy, he gave forth a holy and ever Law in a burning and fiery Mountain; and by reason of the Depravity of their Hearts, and Weakness of their Hands thro' the Flesh, his Law greatly strengthened Sin and laid them and the whole World under Guilt, and many were
The Progress of Sin: Or, were cut off by the hand of Justice. For Temporal Death, as was Eternal, was denounced as the Punishment of every Transgression and Disobedience thereof.) Yet God, that Sin might not thereby triumph and vaunt himself above measure, graciously added another Law; that by the Types, Shadows, and Sacrifices of it, they might, by the Help of Faith, see a Remedy; which was by the Death of the Messiah, who was promised long before.

And now from that Time, until the coming of Christ, 'tis needless for me to speak further of The Progress of Sin, or, The Travels of Ungodliness; the fearful Exploits he did to the seven Nations of the Land of Canaan, whom he utterly destroy'd and gave up to God's Sino-revenging hand; and also how by his Subtilty he overcame the Children of Israel in the Wilderness, and when they came into the Land of Promise, of which you read at last in the Sacred History; and Time would fail me to run through.

Moreover, he laid all Kingdoms of the Earth wringing in their Blood, and to groan under his heavy Yoke and Tyranny. In a word, many Millions of Souls fell by his Hands, and divers grievous Plagues and Judgments, for his sake, were inflicted upon poor Mortals, almost everywhere. Some who were his Enemies and Lovers of Godliness, he stirr'd up his Enemies to starve to death, to burn alive, saw under, and throw into Lions' Den's to be torn in pieces, and others to be stoned: So that all those opposed opposed him; or would not give him Entertainment, were forc'd to wander about in Sheep-skins, and Goat-skins, being destitute, afflicted and sor-mented: and that which was most lamentable, was to find many Thousands of them who professed themselves to be God's People;) nay, and Leaders amongst them, (so grievously deceived by him that they became his meer Vassals, and Acted much of the sad Tragedy upon the Holy Seed; insomuch, that Abab, who was a Prince in Israel, told himself to him to work Wickedness.

Neither did those who were his professed Friends, and Servants, speed much better in this World: For he caused many of his Admivers to Sacrifice their poor Children to Molech, which was to throw them into a fierce Fire, and burn them to Death: They burnt their Sons and Daughters, faith sacred Writ, and Sacrificed them unto Devils, and shed Innocent blood, &c; and others she stirr'd up with Wrath and Malice to fight against, and destroy one another; that to every part of God's Law might be violated and trodden under his Feet; and Jehovah, to revenge himself upon them, for the Love and Kindness they shewed to his Murderer, 'brought the Sword, Famine and Pestilence, and other amazing Judgments upon them.' So, that by this Tyrant's Means, were many made Father-dels and others Widows: Nay, no Misery, that Man's Heart can imagine, or moral Creatures be capable to suffer, but he with Vengeance brought in upon Adam's Seed, throughout the whole Universe. Nay, and he so blinded their Eyes, Eyes, that, in some Nations, he caused many People to worship the Sun, Moon, and Stars; and at first, the Devil himself; whom they called an Evil Good, because he tormented them: and they durst do no less than adore him, for fear he otherwise, would destroy them.

Thus did this Enemy Tyrannize after a most lamentable manner: Neither was there any able (finally) to overcome him, but the Man Christ; by which Means he did even almost what he pleased, destroying Body and Soul too; and none could get out of his Hands, but they who look'd unto Jesus; who was Promised, and long look'd and waited for. Now, these things considered, the Coming of the Messiah must needs be acknowledged an inconceivable Blessing to Mankind; who were thus spoiled, torn in Pieces, and fearfully tormented by this cruel Enemy. And indeed, great was the Expectation and Breathings that were amongst those who were sensible of that dismal State the World and their own Souls, were in.

But hold! I must stop again; for I hear the Saviour and Glorious Messiah, and Prince of Righteousness is come! Blessed News indeed! Sing, O Heaven; and Rejoice, O Earth! Glory to God in the Highest, and on Earth Peace and good Will to Man!

But what Provision is made to entertain Him? Do they not look out some stately Palace for Him? And do not Thousands and Ten thousands swarm about him, to congratulate his Arrival, with all the Expressions of Joy imaginable?
The Travels of Ungodliness. 47

noble? For, O the Worth of his Person, the greatness of his Glory, and the Nature of that Work, he is come to! Never before appeared such a Saviour and Deliverer! Now the Destroyer of Tyrant Sin, with the Devil and all the Powers of Hell, is come! He is come! Ay, but where doth he lodge the first Night? Is the best Chamber shewed Him, and a Down-Bed ready made and prepared for him?

No, no, Sin hath got the chief Room in the Inn; I mean the Heart; and the Heavenly Prince is forced to go into the Stable, and take up his Lodging in the Manger. Oh! do not they deserve to be deceived and ruined for ever, who hug, delight in and kindly entertain their Enemy, he that seeks to destroy them: (who, whilst he smiles in their Faces, secretly designs to cut their Throat;) and slight after this their only Friend; nay, their Right and Lawful Prince and Sovereign, whom all their Fathers, Holy Men, and Blessed Prophets prophesied of, rejoicing to think of this Day? And shall He be turned into the Stable? What He, who hath Millions of Holy Angels to attend Him; whom the Glorious Seraphims, and Cherubims do adore and fall down before. Is this the Welcome and Entertainment, which poor Mankind do allot Him who was the Joy, and the Delight of his Heart? And for whose sake, He is come to revenge Himself, and utterly overcome Sin, and so destroy the Works of the Moreover, after this, the glorious Prince was most basely and evilly entreated by Appolyon and his Emissaries: For this crafty Enemy blinded the Eyes of the poor Jews, in such sort, that they would not know him, nor believe he was the Messiah, and Mighty Saviour, promised to their Fathers; and hereby Sin got such hold of them as to stir them up to load him with all manner of Infamy; calling him a Wine-bibber a gluttonous Person, &c. a Friend to Publicans and Sinners; nay, caused some of them to cry out, He had a Devil and is Mad; and, that He cast out Devils by Beelzebub the Prince of the Devils: And all this they did and much more, to make him odious in the Eyes of the People, that so none might fly to him for Help and Salvation from this bloody and devouring Enemy. And at last the whole Infernal Lake conspired together to stir up the High Priest and Chief Rulers; (having filled their Hearts with Envy and curled Hatred) to accuse him with Blasphemy, Sedition and Treason; that so he might as a Notorious Criminal or Malefactor be put to Death; which thing indeed he came on purpose to do, viz. to Die, tho' it was hid from them; for had Appolyon known that the Death of Christ was the only way to destroy the Power of Death and the Grave, and utterly spoil and bring down his own Kingdom, he doubtless would never have promoted that Work.

But so it was, that Creature, Man being, the Power and Subtilty of Sin, 'brought under the Breach of God's Holy Law, which de omn...

ceth Death upon every Transgressor thereof; by which Means the whole World became guilty before God of the highest Treason, &c. owing more than Ten Thousand Talents to Divine Justice, and had nothing to pay: Now, the Lord Jesus, out of Infinite Love, offered Himself as the Creature's Surety, to undertake and answer all the just Demands of the Law, and make a compleat Compensation to Justice for all the Wrong Man had done, by yielding to this belleish Tyrant, to the manifest Violation of the Law, &c. And since, without shedding of blood there could benoRemission of the horribleCrimes

Life, that so by Death he might make an end of Sin, as tohis condemning Quality, and destroy him who had the Power of Death, which is the Devil; and deliver them, who through thefear of Death, were all their Life Time subject to

That Work must needs be carry'd on indeed,
When Heaven and Hell about it are agreed:
Tho' different Ends in those great Agents are,
Yet in the thing they both agreed were:
That Christ should be of his dear Life depriv'd,
Tho' Hell alone the guilty Ab contriv'd,
Yet God indeed from all Eternity,
Knowing what Rage and curs'd Malignity
Would be in their base Hearts, resolved then
He would permit and suffer those vile Men
To bring his Purpose and Decree to pass, Which for our Good and his own Glory was
The Progress of Sin: Or,

How wonderful was the grand Enemy by this mischievous Design baffled and overcome. For that very way that Sin and the Devil thought utterly to destroy the Hopes and Help of poor Mortals, God took to save and deliver them for lo, after three Days, the glorious Prince arose again from the Dead, to the great Terror and Confusion of all the Powers of Darkness; but after this, Sin mightily prevailed, and but a very few Persons obtained Deliverance for he caused the Jews to require a Sign, and the Learned Greeks to seek after Wisdom (to Natural and Mortal Philosophy, about that Time seemed to be the great Idol of the World, it being in the top of its Glory); and by these Means the Gospel became a Stumbling-block to the one and Foolishness to the other; and such who did receive the Truth, by the Rage and Subtilty of Apolloyn were expos'd to sore and grievous Persecutions: For now, nothing but Blood and Slaughters, the Enemy raised upon all those who listed themselves under Christ's Banner; so that in the space of Three Hundred Years, Millions of Christians were tortured and barbarously murdered, and all by the Means and Indigations of this Cruel Enemy.

Nay, and should we proceed to shew, before and after these Times, the many Ways, and cunning Stratagems the Wicked devised to continue, enlarge and establish Apolloyn's Hellis Kingdom, it would fill great Volumes.

1. They endeavoured to blacken the Followers of Godliness, with all manner of horrid Crimes
The Travels of Ungodliness.

1. Crimes imaginable, to the end, that all ignorant People might not be won, or brought over to close with them; but contrariwise loath and hate them, and be moved without Remorse or Pity, to reproach, persecute and inflict all manner of Cruelties upon their poor frail and innocent Bodies; for they put the Christians, as some observe, into Bearskins, and then set on the Dogs for to worry them.

2. He caused many, who seem'd Lovers of the Gospel, and Professors of it, to cast it off, and embrace the Vanities of the World; nay, to Worship Idols, and Sacrifice to them.

3. He raised up Multitudes to foment most abominable Errors and Heresies in the Church: By which means the Truth suffered greatly, and the Devil got much Ground; and strengthened his Kingdom, which is signified, in part, by that great Flood the Dragon cast out of his Mouth to drown the Woman and her Seed who kept the Commandments of God, and had the Testimony of Jesus Christ. But this was not all, for Apollon had a greater Design in this Age of the World on foot, which was two-fold: One was to introduce Mahomet, and compile the Turkish Alcoran; by which means Millions of Millions have been deceived to this Day; a strange Hodgepodge, ridiculous and self-pleasing Religion, (if it may be called a Religion.) This began about the Year Six Hundred.

4. To usher in, and set up, a more Visible, Spiritual or Ecclesiastical State upon Earth, than ever
The Progress of Sin: Or, ever he had before since the Beginning of the World, attended with external Glory, and outward Grandeur, which in the Apostles' Days, he had laid the Foundation of; but till the Sixth Head or Imperial Power was removed, he could not thoroughly affect nor establish (which set out between Four Hundred, and Five Hundred Years after Christ); And to the End, he might accomplish it, Apollonius saw it would, be necessary, to get the hellish Enemy to do his Work for him; who in the Scripture is called The Man of Sin. And though I represent him here as a Servant, yet the Devil thought to make of him a Lord, yea, a Lord of Lords: nay, not less than a God; and to exalt him far above all that are called Gods; yea, above the God of Gods; and to set him in the Temple of the Church, to shew himself to be God, which is to assume that to himself, which only belongs to the ever Blessed God. This is he who hath been brought in after the Woking of Satan with all Power, Signs and Lying Wonder; and with all Deceivableness of Unrighteousness in them that Perish, &c. This is he whom they call Head and Husband of the Church the Vicar of Christ over the whole World; God's Vicegerent; Peter's Successor; the Head and Center of Unity; but, in Scripture called Antichrist; the Man of Sin; the Son of Perdition; the Beast that came out of the Earth with Two Horns like a Lamb, but a Voice like a Dragon; the False Prophet; the Idol Shepherd, an Evil Servant; and indeed the only Unioeval Head.
of this False Church, or Ecclesiastical State, that Apollyon hath introduced, or set up, by the Help of Sin, in the world, to deceive, ruin, and destroy the Souls of Men.

Sin now begun to brandish his Victorious Sword, and vaunt himself in his Diabolical Sovereignty. If you are for Religion, or will be Religious you shall have one that shall suit your Sensual Appetites, and will agree with your Worldly Interest. For when Apollyon saw that the inward Life, Power, and Efficacy of the Christian Religion, was generally gone; and yet the People affected the Name of Christ, and would not be satisfied without some Way, Mode, or Manner of Worship, then he began to erect this false Form and Image of Christianity, or set up Counterfeits Godliness; And since Men knew not what belonged to the inward Beauty and Glory of Grace and True Godliness, he was resolved to make it up in an Outward and External Manner, that it might appear amiable to all such that had no more than Fleshly Eyes to see with.

The Enemy at this Time roared like a mighty and over-grown Monster, and sent out Bulls threatening to destroy, and devour all, who would not worship the Beast, and his Image or receive his Mark in their Foreheads: Nay, in good earnest those who would not sacrifice their Reason, Conscience and Religion, to the Lust and Ambition of this Tyrant, and adore his Golden Image, were not to be suffered to Buy nor Sell, nor indeed to Live, and therefore be devised, 54 The Progress of Sin: Or, devised, by the Help of Apollyon, all sort of cruel Tortures and Torments, to be inflicted on all manner of People, both Young and Old, High and Low, Rich and Poor, Bond and Free, who refused to Worship Gods of Gold, Silver, Brass, Iron; nay, and a strange Idol, he had made of a Wafer-cake, by which Means, they murdered many Thousands, if not Millions of Thousands, of the poor, innocent Saints and Servants of God, in such sort, that every Street of the great City Babylon, became like a meer bumbles, to quarter out the Limbs of Men, Women and Children; Ten, Twenty, Thirty, Forty, an Hundred, nay, two Hundred Thousand Souls have been sacrificed at one time; I mean, before they did give over; as witness the Irish Massacre, &c. Some he caused to be burned, some to be roasted alive, some their Skins flayed off, others hanged by the Hairs of their Heads, Poisoning, starving drowning; and any other kind of Death Apollyon could devise, were the poor Saints and Lovers of True Godliness put to, and that by such who called themselves Christians.

But, since we have brought him down very near to the Days wherein we live; and also, bear he is still upon his Progress, wandering up and down in as eager Pursuit of his Hellish Enterprize as ever; let us now give over, and treat of his Present Travels in this and other Nations.

C. H. A.
CHAP. IV.

Shewing how Peccatum, alias Sin, came into a Country called Non-age: And of the strange Projects he played there.

We having brought down our History of this Cruel Enemy, to these latter Times, 'tis very necessary to give you some Account of his present Travels, and shew what Progress he makes among the People of this Generation. And that we may do it the better, we shall begin with his Entering into a great, though weak Country, called Non-age; (he having Intelligence from Apollyon, that a great Number of feeble People, of a small Statue, were two or three Years ago, by common Fate, though through much Difficulty, come into this Kingdom, and for a short time were to abide in the said Country; he was resolved to visit them): But the Prince of Darkness, understanding that this Enterprize was of great Importance, and might tend very much, if well mannaged, to the increasing, strengthening, and enlarging of his Kingdom; or otherwise prove to the great Hurt and Detriment thereof; first called a Council in Hell, to advise what was fittest to be done at this T junktare: And having held their several Consultations, and come to Agreement, Apollyon, with winged Speed, repairs to Peccatum, alias Sin, to suggest, by secret Suggestions to him, what was agreed upon, and
The Progress of Sin: Or, to instruct him how to proceed and manage his Affairs in the County of Nongage, &c. whom he addressed himself to, after this manner:

Most Dear and Mighty Peccatum, the great Lord and Conqueror of the World, and Maul of all Mortals; the Envy of Heaven, and Chief Darling of Hell; seeing thou hast been always true to our Interest, and has raised up our Kingdom above all Kingdoms of the Earth; and made my Glory, Fame and Grandeur to spread abroad far and near; I have some few Instructions to impart to thee, of great Importance, upon thy entering into this Country; to the end thou mayest prepare or make ready a great People, for my Service, and to fight under my Banier: For those whom I now send thee to, thou must Train up from the raddles (as my great Servant and beloved Emperor Mahomet doeth his Janizaries) that they may be well in-ftructed in our Politicks, and skilful in all Stratagems of War against God, Christ, and True Godliness; with all this Retinue. This is the Time for thee to work, and the best Age of Mankind to work upon: 'Tis good to sow our Seed timely, and to take Possession, before we are supplanted by our Enemy; for it is easier to prevent a Disease than to Cure it; or to keep an Adversary out, than when he is in, to get rid of him. And one thing to my Joy, I will tell thee, between thee and I: A long time ago, before any of this Army entered into these Parts, thou in a good measure didst their Business for them; for as they come into these Regions,
The Travels of Ungodliness.

Regions, they bring with them Triumph of thy Conquest over them: For thou didst indeed originally season and leaven their Natures for me in such sort, that they resolve to take, and under whose Banner they are inclined to fight. Yet nevertheless there is much Work for us to do left in their tender Age, by Means of that they call godly Education, their Hearts secretly should be drawn away from us, or prepared to receive contrary Seed, (to the overpowering of the Leaven thou hast infused into their Natures) by seasoning their Hearts with Grace of such Principles, that will prove very destructive to our Interest. Therefore to prevent all the Danger that may arise, thou must choose Tutors for all this young and hopeful Progeny, for have a great hand in the Education of them; which if we can work about, we shall do our Business Effectually: Neither is there any Ground to question the Accomplishment hereof if thou takest these Directions and rare Prescriptions, devised and forged for thee:

"But considering the divers Ranks, Degrees, Qualities, Descent, or Pedigree of them, thou must find out suitable Tutors accordingly, but all of thine own Offspring.

Now no sooner had Sin received his Instruction, but he fled away as on Eagle's Wings, and suddenly invaded the whole Country of New-Age. And to the End he might fully effect his filthy Intrigue, he was resolved to work Matters so about, that a great Part of the Weak and Feeble Inhabitants might be Tutor'd by Mrs. Ignorance, to whom Apollyon directed his Speech after this sort:

Apol. My dear Cousin and Friend, I have a great Number of pretty Boys and Girls for you to Tutor, and bring up for me in the Country of Norse: Will you undertake the Charge?

Ignor. Most Dread and Mighty Apollyon! You know I never yet declined any Drudgery for you, which lay in my Power: My Lord, I am ready to obey you.

Apol. I assure you Madam, I kindly accept of all your former and latter Services, and cannot but acknowledge you have done strange Things for the Advancement of my Kingdom, and greatning of my Power in the World.

And now Noble Peccatum, this Candlewoman, Madam Ignorance, is your Child, your Natural Offspring, your own Flesh and Blood, nay a Limb or Member of your Body: Therefore I charge you to help and assist her in this Great Work; for I should be glad, if she had the Education of all the Children in the whole World, I have such a Veneration for her.

Peccatum upon this immediately laid about him, and indeed wonderfully succeeded in this his first Attempt, by the Help of the Prince of Darkness: Insomuch, that abundance of those poor Souls, whereof none were above the Age of Twelve or Fourteen Years, were trained up ingross Ignorance, and Blindness of Mind; understanding little or nothing of God, Christ, or the Gospel; no, nor of their own woful State and

and Condition (the Enemy both formerly and latterly had brought them into) and this he effected many Ways.

First, by keeping their Parents, and such who were to instruct them, under the Power of Fortish Ignorance; so that they who should be as Eyes to the Blind, and Feet to the Lame, had no Eyes to see, nor Feet to go themselves.

2. He presented to many Parents the great Charge of putting their Offspring to School; persuading them (they being poor, and low in the World) they could not be at the Cost, that they bestowed a great deal more needlessly upon Cloathing and feeding of them, than their Learning would come to.

Now, the Reason why the Enemy is so greatly set against Learning, is this, viz. left by their attaining to the Knowledge of Letters, they should take to read the Holy Bible, which he dreads exceedingly; because when understood, it vanquisheth (at once) his Darling Ignorance.

3. He endeavours to prevent their Learning any Pious and Orthodox Catechism, that is wholly taken out of, and grounded upon the Authority of the Holy Scripture.

4. By hindering them, as much as possible, from discoursing; or asking Questions about God, Christ, and Religion, &c. Also by causing Parents to be careless about, or rather against their going to the Church, where the Word of God is truly and powerfully Preached and the Sacrament duly and truly Administered.

5. by
5. By taking off the Children's Hearts from any thing that concerns their Souls, or a Future State, by filling their Heads with the Vanities, Toys, and Troubles of a Childhood's Stare.

6. By presenting to Parents (who understand more than they intend to practise) the Knowledge of God a dangerous thing; and that they who are most spiritually wise, were like to be most miserable in the World.

7. By persuading some, that the Matters of God, and Religion, only belonged to Ministers, &c., and that others should only mind their Trades, &c., as if the Trade or Calling of God lines did not belong to all Parents and Children to endeavour to learn and understand them, it being the main business that all Mortals were sent into this World, to practise and follow.

8. By presenting the Example of all generally, within Doors and without, abroad and at home before their Eyes; and there being little or nothing minded (as the poor Children could see by any, either Parents or Companions) of a Sublime or Heavenly Nature; but contrariwise, the Evil Motions and Lusts of this Enemy was wholly followed; who having subdued the Strong, or conquered the Chivalry (by the powerful Hand of his Darling Ignorance) and doth hereby easily invade and overcome the poor and feeble Infantry; and that, partly by the Means of that Evil Example they have continually before their Eyes.
The Travels of Ungodliness. 61

9. By tempting them (and others much older than they) to conclude, That they shall have time and opportunity hereafter, and better advantages to learn those great things, which the Enemy tells them are too high and sublime for their tender Age to pry into, understand or make Judgment of. And thus the Devilish Enemy keeps some, nay, a great part of the poor inhabitants of the Country, or Town of N., wholly Ignorant of those things, which truly concerns them; and in their Childhood, he ought to look after; left Satan by fortifying himself, or taking Possession to early in their Hearts, makes them afterwards with much Ease, to become his mere Slaves and Vassals. And said it is, to see what Work Sin makes on Little Ones.

10. And lastly, Sin and the Devil keeps them in ignorance, by causing many of them to be trained up under a Blind, Erroneous, and, Soul-deceiving Ministry, and many in Popery; and in some Nations the Children of Godly Parents taken away to train them up in that Idolatry.

But, Alas, Sin hath not only this Blind Tutor to instruct the poor beguiled Progeny, but another as bad as the (and as you heard, of Apollyon's ownchoosing too (viz. One Pride, to whom he also gave Instructions of a pernicious Nature; whereby some Thousands of them are wholly overcome, brought under the Power of this Deceiver, and undone for ever. This Varlet, it seems, is the Natural Offspring of
The Progress of Sin: Or, of Lucifer, and doth not a little resemble him; and sith it is, That any Little Ones, of humane Race should be brought up and tutor'd by her; she being one that the Lord greatly hateth, and will destroy at last, all such who give themselves up to learn of her.

Now the way that Sin takes to effect his Design, by this bellish Incendiary, is, first To stir up poor Little Ones, according as he finds their inclinations, before Ten Years are gone over their heads, to delight in fine Cloaths, and get into the newest Fashion, though never so Foolish and Antick. And secondly, By sly Suggestions to allure their Parents to please their Children, and feed their Natural (though unlawful and pernicious) Appetites herein: And that they may fully declare they are the real Slaves to Lucifer, and this his Darling, they betimes tend their little Daughters to School to learn to Dance, as Herodias did; and to teach them the rare Art of Naked Breasts and Soulders, Antick and Fantastick Garbs, Spottings, Patchings and Paintings, Towers, Bulls, Shades, Curlings and Grillings, and other Curiosities of Hell's devising; as to deck their Fingers with Rings, their Ears with Jewels, and their Necks with rich Bracelets or Necklaces of Gold and Pearl; whereby they seem rather like little Morrice-Dancers than the young Offspring of Christian People. And thus being bravely drest up, and the Sparks of Pride kindled in them, they go with stretched out Necks, and haughty Hearts, that in a short time

time they are too high and proud to know (almost) any Body; and no marvel, when they were never taught to know themselves.

And then, presently upon this, in comes Marian Wanston, to teach them other rare Inventions; viz. How to make Set-Faces, to Cringe Alasmodo de France, the sober Smile, the quaintest Dishab; to humour Discourse well; to get Raw-ing Eyes, and cast Amorous Glances, to read Love Romances, and frequent Play-Houses; and also to provide store of rare, though obscene, Draughts, or Pictures, decked with all sorts of Allurements for the better Execution of After-Actions, and the secret Discharge of Venus's Lascivious Mysteries, painted with the true Colours of Ovid's Works; as the Disguising of Naked Gods, and Venus dallying with Adonis, Tarquin at Sirfe with Lucrétia, Hero sporting with Leander, and such like wanton Objects; with pretty Conceits to encourage the Unwilling, and warm the cold Humour of their raw Age.

But to proceed: Indulgence and Fond Love, as it appears, have their Charge and Instructions from the Prince of Darkness; to Tutor divers of them; and thus the Enemy effects thro' Subtilty, by infusing the base Seed into their Parents Hearts; Of which those two Varlets, Indulgence and Fond Love were gendered. Now those Parents in whom they bear sway, are taught to indulge their Children in all manner of Vices and evil Courses. Such dear and tender Love; (or rather Hatred) they have have towards their poor Offspring, that great Faults and filthy Enormities and wink'd and conniv'd at; and they must not be struck, nor hardly frown'd on, by any Means, lest discouraged and made Moans of: Besides, should they whip, or severely chastise them, and they die soon after, how would it wound their Conscience? (Tis no Matter what becomes of their Souls,) they are not troubled about such Matters: Their great care is to see they are well fed (though it be like Lambs for the Slaughter) and bravely clothed and cockerd'd up in these Ways they naturally Love. And though they should Lie, Curse, Swear, or break the Lord's Day, and play when they should attend upon God's Word, or read the Holy Bible, it must with a gentle Reproof, or none at all, be passed by; remembering when they were at their Age they did the like themselves. The fond Father dares not tell the Child's Fault to the Mother, if she has any Brains nor the fond Mother, the Father, lest he be angry; and to save the Child's Soul from Hell, sends his Head to the Wall, or rather with Discretion, wisely chastiseth him with a smarting Rod, till the Blood comes. Alas!
Alas! these seem to me to be the worst Tutors of all because they lay in Fuel for every hurtful and devouring Fire; or prompt on, and flourish every cursed and hateful Vice, and open'd a Door for whole Legions of Devils to enter together, and make miserable Slaughter of the poor undone, Progeny. These bring the Parents to Shame, the Family to Beggary, the Child to the Gallows and his Soul to Hell. Have not some nay, many, cry'd but at Tyburn against their Parents, for their Indulging them in their Sins, and Cockerimg them up in civil Ways to let him do what he pleased (with Correction:) As afterward this Cocker'd Son, in a fit Drunkenness, offers Violence to his Mother, killed his Father, wand't mortally two of his Sisters; and would have ravished another. Well, said Solomon, These Things shew'd: He that Sparereth the Rod, hateth his Son; but he that loveth him, chastiseth him be\n\n\nmee. Prov. 29, 7. With-hold not Correction from the Child; for if thou beatst him with a rod, he shall not die, Prov. 23, 13.

D Nay,
Nay, these two bloody Monsters, Indulgence and Fond Love, led in another destructive Tutor; who taught them to Lye, Distinguish, and Equivocate: So, that in a short time, there was no believing hardly a Word the poor Children spoke. For, having told two or three notorious Lies, and escaped with a little Chiding, without Correction, they grew very Impudent and Vile, not caring what they said to excuse themselves, when taken in other Faults. And not only Hate-Truth, but Stubborn, and Self-Will also, by this very Means came to be their Tutors; also to help Apollyon (the Sooner) to make a perfect Conquest over them, and give Sin full Possession: For hereby they became very Rebellious, contradicting their Parents, making Mouths at them, not regarding what they commanded them to do; unless in a good Mood; but would pout and be Sullen, or else crossly answer again, and strive to have the last Word.

And thus, by the Temptations of Sin, together with the Natural Evil Disposition of their own Hearts, and Assistance of these Cursed Tutors, Apollyon gave them Wings to fly whithersoever their unbounded,Stubborn, and Self-pleasing Wills led them; till they became fit Inhabitants for the City Sensuality.

But the Enemy seeing many of the Young Progeny in the Country of Noe-Age, were of base, poor, and ignoble Race and Pedigree; their Parents not knowing well how to live themselves, without Pilfering and Stealing;
The Travels of Ungodliness. 67
one Light-fingers was let in, who became Tutor to this fort, and some others also, who were sent to her from Pride, Wanton, Indulgence and
And-Love: whom she taught the rare Art of Thievery. First. How to rob Orchards, to pull Quills out of the Wings of poor Geese, to milk Cows, &c. and then for Poultry, to rob Hen-roosts, and to do it neatly, that their Keckling might not Alarm the rest: And afterwards, when they became good Proficients in their Alphabet, they learned harder Lessons, viz. How to rob their Parents, Masters, and Mistresses:
And at last, The curious Art of Cheating, and Picking of Pockets; yea and Locks too: And to the end they may perform this with the more Dexterity, they are quickly brought acquainted with the chief Masters of that Society, and learn the Canting Names used by the whole Corporation of Thieves and Beggars; as Mum-pers, Mi-kins, Pads, and Rum-Padders, Clapperdoggons, Bulk and File, &c. Now these being little of Stature, are useful to the Company, because they can get in at Windows, and at other Places, where the older Thieves cannot enter: And also, because of their tender Age, they are not suspected; or if taken, are like upon that account to have more Pity shew'd them. So that having great Encouragement, in a little time, they become perfect Masters of their Hellish Craft, and thereby are quite overcome by this bloody Enemy.

The last Tutor Apollo, chooses for the young Progeny, in the State or Country of Non-Age, is his Beloved (though Erroneous and Blasphemous) Daughter, Mis-belief, alias False-Faith: And indeed they are not a few of them, that are educated by her: For by Reason their Parents were utterly drawn aside from the true Orthodox and Apostolical Faith, or Ancient Religion, and led into the By-ways of Schism, Herezie, and Error, their poor Offspring are trained up in the same Destructive and Pernicious Ways: So that they hardly hold, or are established, in one Fundamental Principle of true Religion: by which means they became Papists, Atheists, Ranters, Arians, Socinians, Quakers, Shakers, Muggletonians, and the Lord knows what. And of late, many of them have staked in Pastorism, and the hellish Notion of the Deists, denying all revealed Religion. Thus, and by divers other Ways and forbidden Devices, both Apolloyn and Sin invade with their mighty Force and Militia of Hell, the Poor, Weak and Feeble Inhabitants of the Country of Non-Age; till at last, they come generally under the Education and Tutoring one of Hate-good, who teaches them all their hellish Mysteries: as to condemn all Godly Counsel and Instructions; nay, and to scoff, reproach, and jeer all that are truly Religious; and not only to deride, and flout at them; but to roll out their Tongues and point at them; and also to make and sing prophane and sirkhy Songs of them. But by the Providence of God, two great Matrons of good Parentage, being cast in amongst them, one called Civility, and the other Modesty; both of the Town of Morality, who took the Charge and Care of Tutoring some few of them; brought them up under very good Discipline, according to their Light and Knowledge. But these I hear to, when they came into Youth, were utterly corrupted, spoiled, and overcame by the Power and Policy of this bloody Monster.

Yet, as God would have it, there were a few Honorable and High-born Worthies, who were sent on purpose by the Prince of Light, to Tutor some few of this young Progeny; or else the Enemy had made a perfect and compleat Corsair of them all. These Names were these, viz. Christiana, True-zeal, Good-Deed, Special Grace, Sobriety, Temperance, Prudence, &c.

But Sin had got Tutors for most of them, so that, and so corrupted them, that they were gone out of the Country of New-Age; and had took up Arms for Aposyphon before the good and Virtuous Ladies came. I think it may not be amiss here, to give you two or three Instances of some that worshipped, and overcame this hellish Tyrant.

One Mary Warren, born in May, 1651, aged Ten Years, had a blessed Work of Grace begun upon her, and gave clear Evidence of a Victory, as she had got over Sin and Satan. Some ask'd her whether she was willing to die? She replied, Ay, very willing, for then I shall sin no more: For I know the Christ's Blood hath made Satisfaction for my Sin, &c.
The Progress of Sin: Or,

At another time, in her Sickness, she said, That Satan stood at her left Side, and God was on her right, and opened the Gates of Heaven for her.; and Satan (saith she) shall not hurt me, though he sought to devour me, like a Roaring Lyon; whether I live or Die, it will be well with me; God is satisfied through his Son Jesus Christ, for he hath washed my Sins away in his Blood, or to that effect. At another time she said, The Lord is pleased to let me lie under many Pains,

---Yet will I wait upon him; for he is my Stay, and the Hope of my Salvation: My Pains are nothing to the Pains of Hell, which will never end: And Christ, he suffered great deal more for me than all this is: He was bruised, buffeted, and spit upon; and they put a Crown of Thorns, and put upon his Head, and gave him Vinegar to drink. (But I have several things to take, though I cannot relish them). They came out against Christ, with Swords and Staves, and he did not open his Mouth against them, but rebuked Peter for cutting off the High Priest’s Servant’s Ear; and bid him put up his Sword into his Scabbard, (and said) Shall I not drink of the Cup my Father hath prepared for me, &c. Though my Pain are very great, yet I am full of Joy and Comfort: I was full of Comfort before, but I am fuller of Joy this Hour than I have been yet: It is better to live Lazarus’s Life, and to die Lazarus’s Death, than to live Dives’s Life. He had Delicates, and afterwards would have been glad to have had Lazarus dip’d his Finger in a little Water, and cool his Tongue.

Though
The Travels of Ungodliness. 71

Though the Lord gives Satan Power over my Body, yet he hath promised he shall not hurt my Soul. (The Devils could not enter into the Herd of Swine, till Christ had given them Leave.) And though he stood at my left Hand, and Faith, I was in filthy Rags; yet the Lord stands at my right Hand and Faith, I am as a Brand p'ucked out of the Fire, and he will put on me his Robes of Righteousness.

Another Child, about Eleven Years Old, as he was praying, to this Effect, That she might not look for any thing to rest on, or trust upon for Justification, whereby to stand Righeous before God, but only in Jesus Christ alone, who died for her at Jerusalem, and rose again the Third Day for her Justification.

When Prayer was ended, she told her Father, Now I believe in Christ, and am not afraid of Death. Behold, Faith in a Babe, makes the Enemy fly.

Another poor Child, that went a begging from door to door, who lived in the Parish of Nunnington-Butts: The Boy was a very Monster of Wickedness (faith my Author) for he would call filthy Names, Curse, and Swear, &c. yet a gracious Man, out of Pity, took him as his own, and put him to be educated by Mrs. Christian; and it is wonderful to hear what Power that poor Child got over Sin and his Master Apollo; for in a little time he taught him to pray fervently, and to seek after the Knowledge of Jesus Christ: And he proved so good a Proficient, that he, with much Abhorence, cried out... out of himself, not only for his Swearing, Lying, and other evil Vices he had been guilty of, but also was in great Horror for the Sin of his Nature, and Vileness of his Heart, and Original Corruption. And he did not only pray much himself, with strong Cries and Tears, but begged the Prayers of others for him, whom he knew feared the Lord. And at last (though filled full of Doubts, about his Eternal State) he came to take a little hold of that Promise. Come unto me all ye that are weary and heavy laden and I will give you rest. But O! How did this poor Boy admire and bless God, for the least Hopes, &c. and at last came to great Satisfaction of his Interest in Christ, and Victory over his cursed Enemies, Sin and Satan; and remained in a Holy and pious Frame, being filled with inward Joy until he died.

Moreover, I could give you a certain Account of one Caleb Vernon and divers more that were in their Non-age, perfect Conquerors over the Powers of Darkness, and one or two of them not above three or four Years old; but because some are not easily brought to believe such things, I will say no more.

Yet notwithstanding, though some few of this poor Progeny, in the State of Non-age, were thus enabled by good Education, and the Grace of God, to vanish the cursed Enemy; yet Oh what fearful Slaughter and Spoil did he make of the rest, raging raving, and roaring about like like a hungry greedy Lyon, rendring and tearing them in pieces, not shewing any Pity,
The Travels of Ungodliness. 73

Pity, nor in the least regarding their tender Age: So that in every Town and City may be seen the said Examples of his Conquest and Merciless Cruelty; by their Ignorance, Pride, Lying, Swearing, Stubbornness, Rebellion, and all other Evil Habits, Sin has infused into them, besides many evil, dangerous and pernicious Heresies; So that we may, say, with sorrowful Hearts, That the Country of Non-Age is subdued and brought under the Power and Kingdom of the Prince of Darkness: Most Parents bring up their Children to enlarge his Territories.

O Vile and Cursed Monster wilt not spare
The poor and little Babes, who newly are Arriv'd into these dismal Shades of Night?
Must they first be the Prey of Hellish Spight?
What never satisfied? Is this thy Rage?
Destroy whole Millions in their tender Age?
Look'st, ye Parents, who these Stories hear?
And let your Soul dissolve into a Tear,
That bring up Children for the Hellish Friend;
And never seek their Souls for to defend
From Sin, which will destroy 'em in the End.
Shewing how Tyrant Sin, in his Progress, travel'd into Youthshire; and of the fearful Conquest and Slaughter he made there.

After Peccatum had actually subdued the Country of Non-Age, like a cruel and blood-thirsty Tyrant, that delights in nothing but Rapine and Murder, he greedily follows his Prey; and therefore with great Speed, and no less Fury (Apollyon being enraged at the Loss he sustained, in not having made a perfect Conquest in the said Country) but contrariwise basely worsted a few weak, contemptible Soldiers;

He in the next Place came into, and invaded the whole Country of Youth-shire; where dwelt abundance of young Men and Maidens, some of which had cruel Marks on them of his former Conquest, when they remained in Country of Non-Age; but by reason of their reverend and grave Matrons before-mentioned, divers of them being in this, as well as in those Regions, he was afraid of being supplanted, and therefore resolved not to lose those by Negligence, that he had beguil'd and overcome by Craft and Subtilty; nor was he quite without hopes of regaining some of them in Youthshire, which he lost in the Country aforesaid; and observing many of the Inhabitants together and and perceiving their natural Inclinations (by the Instructions received) he salutes them after this manner:

Gentlemen, and you young Ladies, are you willing to entertain a Traveller, and walk a little way with me?

Upon this they all seemed, at first, to make a pause, till one (whose wanton Looks betray'd the Inclinations of his Heart) answered, Sir, What are you?

Sir, Sirs, I will assure you, no Enemy to those youthful and vernal Joys, Delight, and Pleasures, which your sweet and spightful Nature is so much set upon; but I am he whom you stand in great want of, in order to the greatening, raising and creating of your transcendent Felicity in this World, or making your Lives comfortable to you; for divers of you (I perceive) look sad and dejectedly, as if something troubled your Hearts, which I will teach you to cast at your Heells. If any of you will be Fools, and spend our Days in Sadness, who can help it? There is no need of it, if you will believe me; and I will assure you, Gentlemen, Millions in the World have, and still do, before such who talk of strange Joys and Delight, God knows where, which are only fond Conceits of melancholly Fools, who prate of things they never saw, and flatter themselves with a Crown of inconceivable Glory, that no mortal Creature ever enjoy'd: Those things are Fancies, besides, suit not with your Natures; nor are they now (I mean) pre-presently to be had: If you will embrace me, and make me your Friend, and Bosom-Companion, there's Nothing well which your Hearts can desire, but you shall have it; you that are for Riches, shall have them; I will teach you rare Devices to catch them; tho' 'tis said, They make themselves Wings, and fly away; yet, I can tell you how to clip their Wings, or if they ride like a St. George on Horseback, their Legs too rather than sail, and bring them with a Vengeance into your Coffers: So that you that are Gentlemen of mean Fortune, shall have no Cause to fear of wanting Money to spend at Taverns, at Games, and Whore-houses, for I am no Enemy to such fine Delights.
The Progress of Sin: Or,

For you that are for Pleasures, shall have your fill; my Revels are open to Chambering, Dancing and Wantonness; Dice, Cards, and Chickens, and all manner of Night Sports; as Kissing, Toy ing, and Courting, Hawking and Hunting, or whatsoever your Flesh best approves of; Gentlemen, you are welcome.

You that are for Honour, and would have your Names famous to Posterity, I will teach you the ready way to attain it: Who was it raised the Renown of Nebuchadnezzar, Herod the Great, the glorious Cesar, and mighty Ma danes? Did not I? If you be for Temporal Grandeur, 'tis I must mount you; and if for Spiritual Promotion, I cant fit you: For who crus'd Distrophes to love Pre-eminence, and set the Triple Crown on Peter's Successor, but my Self? If you are not willing, without Advice, to embrace me; go to able Counsel; or would you have Examples, I have both ready.

For Counselors, go to Mr. Carnal Reason, Flesh and Blood, &c. whose Judgments are grave and solid, safe and harmless; if it was not so, do you think so many Thousands, and them of all sorts, and some of the wisest, would so readily receive it?

Ask your Five Senses, and they will tell you, ye have enough to advise with: And then, for Examples, they are innumerable; but be sure, do not mistake me; I conclude not Joseph, Moses, Obadiah, David, Daniel, John, nor Timothy, whom I hope you will not be such Fools to follow: But not to keep you in the dark, there is all the Old World, and the greatest part of this, whom, if you imitate, I need proceed no further: If the Example of mighty Emperors, famous Heroes, and many noble Ones of the Earth, with the greatest part of the Residue of Mankind, will not affect you; then let the Pattern of some your Parents and Progenitors be your Copy; nay, and call to mind your own Experience: Have you not already had a Taste of my Dainties? Do they not please your curious Palates? Do I offer Things unpleasant? All the ways I lead in, are strew'd with Roses, and perfum'd with Myrrh, Frankincense, Aloe's, and Cinnamon: What say you, Sirs?

Upon this, smiling one upon the other, one quickly broke Silence, and spoke to this Purpose; Faith, Lads, this seems a brave jolly Fellow, he'll make Mirth for us, and be a fit Coni-
The Progress of Sin: Or,
Companion for such gallant Youngsters as we:
Come, let's embrace him, and close with these Suggestions. Let's lay the Reins loose upon the Neck of our Lusts, and make him to chuse our ways for us. But stay, faith another, I fear he will make us meere Spend-thrifts: for I assure you, I love not that wanton Fellow, Prodigality; though he be in high Esteem now adays, and beloved of many Ladies for his good Gifts, and followed by many rich Citizens Sons, who have raised his Grandeur by their Fathers Money, so as to purchase a Chariot for him; yet
I have heard it is drawn by four base Horses, viz Rashness, Luxury, Spreed all, and Folly; his Coachman being the Devil, and one (whom I hate) call'd Beggery, rides behind; and tho' his Chariot runs a thundring pace, and he seems secure, yet there's abundance of Folks, as Merchants, Mercers, Drapers, Silk-men, and Taylors, &c. pursues him with cruel Jong Bills, so that for his Fooling he is like to pay dearly.

Apolly'n perceiving this Youth's Temper, whisper'd in Peccatum's Ear, and said, This Fellow will make a good Niggard. And presently he put the Tyrant into another Habit; who, at a convenient Time met him; to whom he did impart such rare Stratagems, how to grow rich, and keep that which he had already gotten; which so won the young Muck-worm's Heart, that he joyfully embraced him.

What the Counsel was, seemed at first a Secret, but by after Carriage and Behaviour, it was guess'd at; for he became a sneaking, lean, ill-fac'd, lank-belly'd Rascal, grudging himself every good Bit he eat, and fed much upon Bread and Cheese, and Red-Herrings, &c, and oftentimes was seen to go to the Pump to drink his Morning's Draught; and in his Trading, he pinch'd every Body in his Weights and Measures; and would not lend nor give a Penny scarcely, though it was to keep his own Father out of Prison, and in Process of time he became a Usurer, where with his Bags of Gold and Silver we will leave him, and return to the other Company; who seeing which way their Fellow was gone, fell all a laughing, and with curled Oaths, and taunting Expressions, reproached him, because he was not for Rioting and Drunkenness, Chambering and Wantonness; and yet, poor Soul, as much in the Tyrant's Chains as they: But hark how they Sing and Carouse it; crying out to this deluding Traytor, We are your Servants, Sir; Hey Boys, One and All, One and All; let us cast away Sorrow from us, and take our Swing of Pleasure, and to Morrow shall be as this Day, and much more abundant.

Stay, said one amongst them, I am taken with a strange trembling; I doubt 'tis an Enemy that's doth count us, and that the whole Country is invaded; for some Body whispers strange things in my Ears, sad Wars doubtless in me are approaching; for I was educated by a most noble, virtuous Tutor, in the Country of Non-Age, called Civility; who Instructed me to fight against Vice, Rioting and Wantonness, and told told me of the Danger that was like to befall me as I passed through this Place; I must leave you, though it grieves me; my Conscience is that gripes me: Hark (said one of the Jovial Company) what Fool have we here? Conscience a Fanatical Fancy? Why are you troubled? Because, said he, I fear this Traveller will debauch us; for I hear his Name is Sin, the Bloody Tyrant, who destroyed almost all the Country from whence we came.

Apotheosis seeing this whispered one in the Ear whose Name was Shameless, and said, Discourse with him; I will help thee to Arguments, lest you lose him.

Shameless. His Name is Sin, you say; Is it an Evil to be merry; to drink a Glass or two of Wine with good Fellows, and court a fair Lady? Do not these things belong to our Age? And is it not the Alamode in all Countries amongst the greatest Gallants? But if you leave our Company, we will load you with Reproach and Infamy, that shall be harder for you to bear, than the Name of Young Huff, or Spendthrift: With that a wanton Lass amongst them, darted up, and shamefully abused him, calling him, Clown, Goodman Shameface, and Timorous, &c. And another took him about the Neck and kissed him; and with an impudent Face, said unto him, Come, my Boy, stolen Wine is sweet, and Bread eaten in secret is pleasant, &c.

I have deck'd my Bed for thee with Coverings of Tapestry, with carved Works and fine Linens of Egypt; and have perfumed it too with Myrrh.
The Travels of Ungodliness, 81

Myrrh, Aloes and Cinnamon: Come, go along with me, and let us take our Fills of Love until Morning, &c. The poor Soul being not able longer to resist such powerful Temptations, nor endure their base Reproach, was overcome by Sin, and straightway followed her, As an Ox goes to the Slaughter, or as a Fool to the Carriage of the Stocks, till a Dart struck through his Liver; as a Bird hasted to the Snare, and knows not it is for his Life. The jolly Company perceiving they had gained the Field, fell into a Laughter; triumphing in such sort, with fearful Damnings and Carousings, as if the Day was their own, and in a little time they should subdue all under Apollo's Scepter; so that, for a pretty while, nothing was heard but Oaths and Blasphemy; nor durst any gainsay them for fear of being knock'd down or Gab'd; and upon this, Sin being flush'd with Victory, ravaged all the Country of Wush-bshire, Town and Family, Male and Female; and those he could not overcome by Pleasure, he overcame by Profit; and those that fell not by the Lust of the Flesh, fell by the Pride of Life; so that it would even melt a Heart of Stone to see what Desolation was made in every Corner, Lust prevailing and enlarging her Territories; Youth being so generally blinded by the Deceit of this Enemy and Impostor, who vauntingly displayed the Flag and Banner of Law, Luxury and Looseness thro' the whole World; daily sending Millions out of this and other Places to inhabit the Country of Sensualit: Here you might see the Table of the Drunkards sit now, but The Progress of Sin: Or, but will scarce stand without holding anon; do but view with what Delight and Greediness of Appetite he influseth and exfuseth, pours out, and pour in; empties and fills to the surfeiting of his Body, and Beggary of his Purse, blotting his Name, and damning his Soul; but since he is casting up of his Accounts under the Table, let us be gone, least our Stomachs turn within us; but lo, at the very Door of our Exit, see what a Sight is here. The Monster hath brought in as Trophies of another Conquest, a Troop of Incestuous and Libidinous Persons, who consume the Day in contriving of their Lusts, and the Night in the Performance of the same; who have their Plots and Ambushes, their Circumventions and Deceits to entangle and draw in the Foot of the Innocent; the Rules of Reason, and the Laws of Nature and Nations being wholly set aside, obliterated, and unregarded by them in the Pursuit of their beastial, exorbitant and unbounded Desire. Thus, by all manner of Debauchery is the Country of Youthst be spoil'd by this cursed Enemy, and many Thousands of young Men and Virgins made his professed Vassals, by being prostituted as a Prey to Lust and Rapine: And how grievous is it to see such Stars of this low Globe; and those the most sprang'd, bright and fulgent above many, as Roses among Lillies, or the Quintessence of Beauty obscure shaddowed, eclipsed and utterly stained and darkned, being led to Dishonour, ransacked the richest Dowry of Nature, or robbed of the invaluable Jewel (I mean) their Chastity; even as a Bee of her Sting, left to bewail their Misery, and to curse those Tongues who drew them in, or beguiled them with their golden Words, which gilded over those bitter Pills they have swallowed, and must vomit up again by Repentance, or perish for ever.

Apollo's and his Agent, beholding the Victory they had made in Toulchire, being fill'd with Triumph, though not having made a perfect Conquest, fell a singing, to allure and secretly overcome the rest.

Come, brave Gallants, let'd by one who will Ravish each Sense; your Souls with Laughter fill. Come listen to me; I'll have you know, The Paths are pleasant in which I do go; No Crost, no Crook, no foul nor dirty Ways. You need to fear; why do you make Delays? But lovely Valleys, fill'd on every Side; Where Meadows lie adorn'd with Nature Pride; As Primrose, Cowslip, and the Violet: Nay, Flowers of all sorts most rarely set: Where Birds of every sort do sweetly sing, And warble forth their Notes as in the Spring. Come whiff the Dainties of these fragrant Fields; And see the Nest the Nightingale re-builds. Lastulous Wantsons in whole Swarms you see, Leave to my Sides like to a Prodigy. Your Venus Sports are lovely in mine Eye, And so indeed is all Debauchery. I do allow each one to get a Bride, If they'll but keep their Concubines side.

For
The Progress of Sin: Or,
For Cards and Dice, and for your Wench's call,
For I know how, my Lads to please you all.
To get the Art of Swearing, pray devise
More new coin'd Oaths; these are the Yields I prize;
This is the Way, 'tis here, my Journey lies.

The song being ended, the Enemy thought now he should soon get his Regiments full, and to perfect what was wanting in those Parts, in order to a total Conquest; and indeed many Volunteers daily lifted themselves to fight under the Prince of Darkness; some being allure'd by one Means, and some by another. But on a sudden the Leaders observed one throwing down his Arms, and running away, which caused a great Commotion: One cry'd, Knock him down, others, Stab him; and indeed, he was on a sudden sadly wounded in his Name, being rendred as the vilest Wretch on Earth; but at last, one of the Jovial Boys, call'd Impudence, being stirred up by Poccatum, spoke to him to this Effect:

Impudence. Friend, What is the Cause you desert us, and have thrown down your Arms

Convert. (For that, it seems, was his Name). I am convinced, That the Ways you go is Evil, and very dangerous; and that this Villain, whom you have entertain'd is the King's Enemy; nay, a most bloody and Cruel Tor; and therefore, I am resolv'd to be and obtain a Pardon, if possible, for what is past.

Impudence. Sirrah, Who is your Tutor?
The Travels of Ungodliness. 85

Convers. A very vertuous Lady, whose Name is Christiana.

Impudence. What Lessons hath she taught you?

Convers. Very good ones, 1. To find more Sweetnes in leaving of Sin, than ever I found in the committing of it.

2. To leave and loath every Sin, because 'tis so hateful to God, and contrary to his Nature and holy Law.

3. To live a holy Life, and do much good: and to make but little Noise of it.

4. To prefer the Duty I owe, above the Danger I fear.

5. How to sacrifice a stout and stubborn Will for God's Honour, rather than to do the Devil a Pleasure.

6. To bring up the bottom of my Life to the top of my Light, and that I should not Sin against my Light, least I Sin away my Light.

7. To chuse rather to be saved in a rough Sea, than to be drowned in a calm River.

8. To bear the Cross for Christ in Suffering, least I lose the Crown of Christ by sinning.

9. Likewise, to chuse rather to be afflicted with Lazarus on Earth, than to be tormented with Dives in Hell.

10. And to leave that Company here, that would bring my Soul to Destruction hereafter.

11. Also to chuse the worst of Sorrow, before the least Sin; because there is more Evil in that, than there is in the greatest Affliction.

15. To
12. To mourn most for those sins before God, that appear least before Men; for the outward Acts are more scandalous, yet inward-Lusts are more dangerous.

13. Hereby the taught me to be better inwardly in Substance, than outwardly in Appearance; for those who deceive others, with the false Shews of Holiness, deceive themselves with the false Hopes of Happiness.

14. To desire Grace not only to be saved but also to be sanctified; and to endeavour to have Sin crucified, as well as pardoned; and to be made holy on Earth as well as happy in Heaven.

15. To undertake all Christian Duties; yet wholly to rely upon God's Mercies; or to be much for doing, and yet seek to be saved only, in a way of Believing.

16. To speak well of what God is, and to think well of what God does; and never to complain of the Badness of the Times and Seafons, if I can but get God to be my Portion.

17. To be more in love with the God of the Altar, than with the Gold of the Altar; or to covet as much the God of Mercies, as the Mercies of God.

18. To look more at home than abroad, how 'tis with me, than how 'tis with others; and that the readiest way to know whether or no I am in Christ, is to no whether Christ it is me; because the Fruit is more visible than the Root.
The Travels of Ungodliness. 87

19. To set out for God in my Beginning, and to hold out with God unto my Ending; and that the best way to have the whole Harvest of our Lives sanctified by him, is to have the First of our Lives dedicated to him; who prizes more the Blossoms of Youth, than the Sheddings of old Age.

20. To value the Joys of Heaven, above the Vanities of the Earth.

21. She taught me also to remember, That whatsoever I do on Earth, 'tis eyed by the God of Heaven; and that after all my present Receiving, there will come a Time of future Reckonings. Besides that, there is no obtaining what is promised, without believing in Christ the Promiser; and that Inward Purity is the ready way to Eternal Plenty.

22. Moreover, that all the Time that God allows us on Earth, is little enough to do that Work God alloteth us: And that 'tis my chiefest Business to make sure of Future Blissedness.

Lastly, That I should sow such Seed whilst I live, as I would be glad to eat the Fruit of when I die.

Upon this, Impudence swore he would trample him and his Tutor under his Feet, if he would not return back.

But Apollo seeing that Force would do no good, rais'd up another, whose Name was Self-Conceit, to dispute and reason out the Case with him.

Self Conceit. Brother, What is the Cause you are so strangely alter'd of late, and have forsaken our Company?
The Progress of Sin: Or,

Conceit. Because I see the Way is dangerous in which you go; you are all blinded, in taking this Traveller, Perversum, for a Friend; for he secretly designs (I hear) to murder you all. Do you not read in the Bible, what Work Sin has made in the World?

Self-Conceit. You mistake yourself, and think that is Sin which is not: Don't think the golden Cup of Profit, Pleasures, and Honours, are such frightful things?

Conceit. Friend, You see the Bait, but not the Hook; the Golden cup, but not the Poyson in it: You taste the Sweet of Sin now, but see not the bitter Wrath and Misery that follows it. You are like our First Parents, that this Enemy cheated, who took Appetit in Exchange for a Paradise. For my part, I will not any longer Play like a silly Fish, with this Angler's Bait. What is the Pleasure of Sin here, when weighed against the pain for it hereafter? The Sweet will soon be gone; but the Bitter will last for ever. This Enemy is a Deceiver; whilst he kisses the Lips, he betrays the Soul into the Hands of the Devil.

Self-Conceit. Say what you will, that which you call pride, is Necessity. Would you not have young people to be clean and comely? and that which you call Covetousness, is but good Husbandry; and Drunkenness, but good Fellowship; and what is Wantonness, but a Trick of Youth?

Conceit. You deserve to be cheated, that put a Vizard your selves upon the Thief, that he might might not be known, nor taken. Sin is never the whit the least odious, vile, and abominable, because thus bravely drest up in fine and clean Linnen, and curiously painted. You do but strive to gild over the Poisonus Pills, or put on the Sheep's Cloathing upon the Wolf's Back: Friend, the soulest Hand may have on it the fairest Glove; and the richest Robes are sometimes put upon the filthyest Bodies.

Self-Concept. Well, Friend, I see you can talk: But since you are frightened from that Excess that we run to, pray abide with us; and take, now and then a little Liberty, a Sip or two with us, and don't leave us quite. A little Sin you may commit, without any Danger to your Soul.

Convert. The least Sin is a Breach of the Law, that lays You and I, and all the World, under the Wrath and Curse of God. What did Adam's Apple cost him? And what befell him that gather'd Sticks on the Sabbath Day? And Annasias, for telling of a Lye? The least Sin can't be attoned for, without Christ's Precious Blood. The smallest Sin is against an Infinite God; and therefore deserves an Infinite Punishment. Nay, and let me tell you, Little Sins make way for greater; neither is there any Sin properly little, in its own Nature: Besides, the smallest Sin, without Repentance, will damn the Soul. And since I have forsaken, by the Grace of God, my great Sins; I will never lose the Love of God for a Trifle; if it be a little thing, it is the easier left. If I should yield yield to him, that sets you upon me to do this, or that thing, because 'tis but a small matter, I should, in so doing, shew the greatest Unkindness to Christ imaginable, viz. wounding and piercing his Heart, and grieving his Spirit on such slight Occasions.

Besides, A little Leaven leavens the whole Lump. And if the Serpent can get in his Tail, he'll soon get in his whole Body. God's People have suffer'd great Torments, before they would commit the least Sin. And therefore, tempt me not; for I cannot stand under the Guilt of the least Iniquity.

Presumption. Come Brother, God is made up with Mercy, though, I do think, we may exceed, yet there is no Reason for you to be in this Heat: For God is a gracious and merciful God, and ready to pardon us at any time, when we confess our Sins to him. You see, God lets us alone in our Ways: He is not so severe, as you suppose.

Convert, Sir, God is as Just as he is Gracious, witness, his casting down the Angels that sinned, and in turning our first Parents out of Paradise, and drowning the old World. Also, he hath declared positively, He will not clear the guilty and Impenitent Person. And let me tell you, Mercy and Patience abused, will at last turn a Fury. When Mercy is despised, Justice is on the Throne. If God be Gracious and full of Goodness, Shall I sin against him? Shall I, because Grace hath abounded? No, I must, with Joseph, How can I do this thing, against God?
Vwin-Hope. Friend, Repentance will cure all at last, and that is no hard Work: And therefore, you need not keep such ado, and thus will you this jolly Company. Is it such a hard thing to return and confess our Faults, in entertaining him? Alas, 'tis but to beg Pardon, and cry,

Lord have Mercy upon me; and God will quit the Score, and forgive us, no doubt on it.

Convers. Is it an easy thing for the Blackmoor to change his Skin, or the Leopard his Spots, or for thee to raise the Dead? You talk vainly, and understand not what Repentance is. What is more difficult, alack! than Repentance? For, let me tell you, It is a Change, and calls for the Creating Power of God to work it: We must leave Sin; yea every Sin; nay, hate and loath it. This Tyrant which you plead for, must be trod down under your Feet and look'd upon (as indeed he is) the most vile and abominable Villain under the Heavens; And is it an easy thing (think you) to have those evil that which how you love?

Habits, he has infused into you, changed to as to love that which now you hate; and hate Nay, and it must now be set about: Now, God calls us to repent, 'tis not for us to say To Morrow. Are we certain God will give us Grace hereafter to leave that Sin which we now resolve to live in? Remember how many have cried out under the Power and Guilt of Sin, and yet could find no Room for Repentance. That Devil that tells you, It is an easy thing to repent to Day, will to Morrow assure you,
The Progress of Sin: Or, you, There is no Repentance for you, but you must be damned without Remedy.

Presumption. But still, for all this you may venture a little way with us: Come, go with us to the Harlot’s Door, though you will not go into her Bed. You may sit with us Drunkards, and take a Sip or two, tho’ you will not be Drunk. You may handle the Golden Wedge, though you do not steal it. You may wear Antick Garbs, and not be proud of them. Come, Boy, prithee gang along—

Convex. Stay, Sir, I am forbid to come near the very Door of the Harlot’s House; and to Abstain from all Appearance of Evil. I am taught to pray, Lead us not into Temptation: And shall I thrust my self into it? Besides, I remember how many have smarr’d by this Means: Also, my Heart is deceitful, and I dare not trust it upon the Devil’s Ground.

David said, He had not fate with vain Person, neither would be go with Dissemblers; and God has given me such Light and Grace, that your Company is hateful to me.

Then another spake, whose Name was Ignorance.

Ignor. Sir, God loves us, say what you will, though we take the Liberty of Youth; for we have many good Things in Possession, and what those have who follow your Ways: And if it was a dangerous thing to be led by the Traveller, sure so many Thousands would ver be so blind as to follow him; and some of great Name, Wisdom and Learning.
The Travels of Ungodliness.

Convers. Do you think that God loves the Great Turk, because he hath given him such vast Dominions, and lets him have all manner of outward Glory and Pleasure. Those of old, who burned Incense to the Queen of Heaven, said, Then they had store of all good things, and saw no Evil. Dives had a great Portion of worldly Blessings: But was that a Sign God loved him? And Lazarus was seemingly miserable; And was that a Sign God hated him? Think of these Things.

Do you not see, That Men let their Oxen feed in fat Pastures? But it's to feed them for the Day of Slaughter. God's Ways are not understood by your shallow Head. He punishes his own Children, whom he loves, with many Crosses and Afflictions here, on their outward Man; and plagues the Ungodly with spiritual Judgments; as Hardness of Heart, Unbelief, Blindness of Mind, and with a seared Conscience; and which is the worst of these 'Tis better to suffer here, than to suffer in Hell. And then to what you said last, Do you not read, The Way is broad, and the Gate wide, that leads to Destruction, and many go in thereat, Matt. 7. 13 14. Yea in Hope. Well for all this, you are but a Fool, to trouble your Head about such Matters to so soon; it may be time enough hereafter, when we are old, and have sucked in the sweet Proofs, Pleasures, and Honours of this World.

Convers. Sir, Does not God command us, now in the Days of our Youth to remember Him; and promise also, that They who seek him early
The Progress of Sin: Or, shall find him, Prov. 8. 17. 'Tis, Friend, the greatest Madness and Folly in the World, to put off God, and the great Things of Eternity, with May be's. We are call'd Now, and shall we say, To Morrow? This is God's Time, and shall it not be Ours? Shall Tyrant Sin have our Belt, and put off God with Dregs of our Days? Can we think, He will accept of such hereafter, when we are Old; who resolve to serve the Devil while they are Young? Is it not Now the Time to sow? What will you persuade me to defer it to that Time, when we should Reap? Will Tradesmen, or others, neglect their Markets and Fairs, and fly, They may provide themselves with such and such Commodities at any time; and yet cannot tell whether or no they may ever have the like Advantages and Opportunities, to store themselves with such things as they need? Sir, How many Thousands hath this Murderer deceived by the specious Pretence and Promises of Long Life, and Late Repentance? Nay, How many Thousands hath he thrown into Hell, who lie burning in unquenchable Fire, by this Device? If I neglect this Time, I know, not whether I may ever have another. Shall I be led away by a cursed Traitor, and fly in my Sovereign's Face, with Hopes he'll pardon me hereafter, when he hath made me no such Promises, but contrariwise, declares positively, if I do not I shall die, and deris eternally?

Faithful, You'll lose, I will assure you, your Friends' Fav'our, as well as Ours, who have been your sweet Companions.
The Travels of Ungodliness. 95

_Convert._ It's better to please God than Man. If I lose my earthly Friends, I shall have heavenly Ones. God is the best Friend, Sir. Is it not better to have the Love of the Prince than the Love of his Page? Friend, I had rather a Thousand Times lose your Favour, than the Favour of God and Christ.

The Company seeing they could not prevail with him to return, abused him fearfully, calling him at their Pleasure: But one of the Youths observing that the Convert had clearly worsted them, was mightily wrought upon, and he was resolv'd to leave them too: Which made Apol - Lyon grind his Teeth, and foam dreadfully, But 'twas all in vain: For God open'd his Eyes and Mouth, to speak to this Purpose.

_Illuminatus._ (For so was he called) Good Brother, How did you come to get Power over this cursed Pecatum, and the Prince of Darkness? I am perswaded, you are that young Man that I have read of in a little Book, call'd War with the Devil.

_Convert._ Thou say'st right; I am the very same Person.

_Illumi._ Why then, I understand by that, the Course you took; and by the Help of God I will go on in the same way. I perceive, Conscience was a great Friend to you.

_Convert._ Yes, when he was rightly inform'd, or had his Eyes enlightened by God's Word, he proved useful to me: But he could do nothing to the Purpose, till the Spirit and Grace of God was infused into my Soul.—Then said

_E.s._

_Illumi._
Illumi. I have had great Sorrow upon my Heart for my abominable Sin, since I have read concerning your Conversion. But I cannot believe.

Convert. You must cry to God as I did, for Faith, and ponder well the Promises of God; for I am persuaded thou wilt meet with a sharp Conflict: And indeed so it fell out. For,

Apollox set upon him most furiously: And not knowing but it may be of use to some, we will give you an Account of his Combate with him.

Apol. You have been a very great Sinner in entertaining this Traveller, who is a cruel Enemy to God; and now there is no ground to think God will forgive you, for his Wrath will overtake you suddenly.

Illumi. The Storm of God's Wrath (Satan) is over in Christ; he declares, He is merciful, and will not keep his Anger for ever. Jer. 3:12.

Apol. But alas you are ignorant of God and Christ, and he will take Vengeance on all such, doth not the Scripture say so?

Illumi. But, Satan, God has promised to Lead the Blind, &c. And in another Place, He calls simple Ones, and those that have no Understanding. Prov. 1. 21, 22.

Apol. But your Heart is hard and obdurate; you know not the Vileness of it, there is no filthier Creature under the Heavens; and therefore, you are certainly an undone Man.

Illumi. But God has promised to give me a Heart of Flesh, and take away my
The Travels of Ungodliness.

Heart: and if I loath myself for my Vileness he hath promised to wash and cleanse me from all my Sins, Ezek. 20 43, 36, 26.

Apol. But you have been as wicked as you could well be, and therefore art a damned Creature.

Illumi. Ay Satan, I cannot deny that, but yet God hath promised Mercy and Pardon to such who have spoken and done as evil Things as they could; and therefore there is Hope for me, Jer. 3: 10.

Apol. But all this while you do but compliment with me: You do not think indeed there is Mercy for you in God's Heart.

Illumi. I do not compliment, thou liest in that; though I cannot deny but I have, thri thy Temptations, been so foolish to to think to indeed. But God saith, His Thoughts are not my Thoughts, and hath also said, He will abundantly pardon me, if I will turn from my evil Ways, 55. 6. 7. 8. therefore 'tis no Matter what my Thoughts have been.

Apol. But, for all this, I shall be too hard for thee, and break thy Head e'er I have done Illumi. No, the Promise runs, You shall but bruise my Heel.

Apol. Ay, but you forgot your abominable Sins; remember the fearful lewd Life you have lived.

Illumi. Christ died for Sinners, and I flee to him.

Apol. But you have sinned against Light and Knowledge.

E.g. Illum
The Progress of Sin: Or,

Illumi. What, though I am but a Sinner, Satan? notwithstanding, and Christ died for Sinners.

Apol. But you cannot believe you are guilty of that Sin; and he hath said, Such who believe not shall be damned.

Illumi. But, Satan, if I cannot believe, yet I may believe God can give me Faith, and though I am now an Unbeliever, and so the worst of Sinners, yet I am but a Sinner, and Christ died for Sinners, nay Satan, for the chiefest of Sinners; and therefore I will not give up my Hope yet.

Apol. Hope! You have no Ground for Hope.

Illumi. No, Satan, that is false, I am sure.

Is not Christ's Death a Ground, nay, a good Ground for Hope? Who shall condemn? It is Christ that died, Rom. 8. 34. On his Blood and Merits will I rely.

Apol. What good can his Death do thee? How can he save thee, who could not save himself? I brought him to the Grave.

Illumi. Thou cursed Blasphemer! He laid down his Life freely, (none took it from him) to satisfy God's Justice, and rose again from the Dead the Third Day; and thereby triumphed over thee, and all the Powers of Darkness. And is not his Resurrection a good Ground of Hope?

Apol. But I do accuse thee, and will plead against thee: because thou hast been so base, my Servant, and an Enemy to him.
The Tracts of Ungodliness.

Illumi. I matter not that, thou art a vile Deceiver: The other Day thou didst endeavour to persuade me, my Sins were small, and that God would Pardon them at any time: And we they now so great and Saul, that Christ's Blood cannot wash them away? What care I, though thou dost plead against me, since Jesus Christ pleads for me? Is not the Intercession of Christ for Transgressors, a good Ground of Hope.

Apol. Thou hast no Grace, or not enough to bear you up in the Day of Trial; and therefore thy State is very sad.

Illumi. Christ hath Grace enough; and I depend not upon the Grace that is in me; but on that Grace, which is in Him: He is full of Grace, and 'tis in Him, that it might be communicated to all such as I am. And is not here a good Ground of Hope?

Apol. Thou wilt fall into Sin again, at some time or another, and I shall devour thee.

Illumi. God has promised in his Blessed Covenant, That Sin shall not have Dominion over us, Rom. 6. 14: and, That he will put his Fear into our Hearts, that we shall not depart from him, Jer. 31. 39. And is not his Covenant a good Ground for Hope? Nay, and he hath said, That he will bruise thee under my Feet shortly.

Moreover, He has promised, He will uphold me; And Christ hath prayed, That my faith will not; and I am sure, He was heard; because, he has confirmed all his Promises by an Oath: And is not here good Ground for me
The Progress of Sin: Or, to Hope, he that hath begun a Good Work in me, will perform it to the Day of Christ? Phil. 1. 6.

Apol. Thou art an Hypocrite.

Illumi. 'Tis the Father of Lies, that says it. Is there any Sin, that I have not been humbled for, and forsaken? Do I not desire to be Holy as well as Happy? Satan, I fear, nor have nothing more than Hypocrite, and therefore am no Hypocrite: But if I am an Hypocrite, I am but a Sinner; and Christ died for Sinners; and all Sins against Father, and Son, shall be forgiven to Men. But I am no Hypocrite, because all the Faculties of my Soul are in Arms against Sin, and against it universally; against the least, as well as the greatest.

Apol. I will cause strange Evils to befall thee.

Illumi. All Things shall work together for my good, if I love God, Rom. 8. 28. And though I lose my Life for Christ's sake, I shall find it: When the Storm comes, I will fly to Him.

Apol. Thou canst not go to God as a Saint, for thou art none.

Illumi. I will go to him then, as a Sinner: for that I am, thou say'st; and there are many Promises of Mercy and Pardon made to Sinners, as Sinners, as are made to Saints in such.

Apol. Would I could tear thee in Pieces, devour thee, at once, thou vile Enemy. Thou hast done, and wilt do me a great Mischief: my Plagues light upon thee.
The Travels of Ungodliness.

Illumi. What, Satan, are you angry? Alas for! you 'tis not All you would; but All you may, devour: Blessed be God, you cannot prevail against me.

By this time by the Shield of Faith, he so stoutly resisted Apollo, that he suddenly fled, and left the Young Man Master of the Field. But this so enraged the Enemy, that he made fearful Work amongst the rest of the poor Inhabitants.

Yet there was another Youth, that God graciously was pleased to work upon: who, in a little time, was filled with much Joy. But the Enemy perceiving he exceeded therein, set upon him with so much Fury, that he was puffed up with spiritual Pride in such a fort, that he was taken with a Phrensie, and for some time distracted: Which made many vain Persons to open their Mouths against the Ways of Godliness. But God, in a short time was gracious to him; and brought him into a sweet State of Peace, and Settlement of Mind: And so he continues, to the Praise of Infinite Grace.

Also, another, that lived not far off, who had been a grievous Sinner, was by the Word and Spirit of God, brought under a gracious Work; but, for want of Faith, was for some time under sad Despair: And Satan got such Power over him, that one while he was persuaded he had no Grace; another while, that he had sinned against the Holy Ghost: And sometimes, he thought every thing he did was Sin; insomuch, that he was afraid to Eat or...
Drink. But except these, and a few more, all generally in Yorkshire, were put, as it were, to the Sword. So that all the Country lay a Bleeding, or Weeping in their Blood, being fearfully mangled by the Hands of this merciless Monster, and cursed Traveller, Sin. So that, come where you would, in City and Country, you could hear of nothing hardly but horrid Oaths, cursing and swearing, whoring and damning, as if hell had been broke loose: Also, in most Places, and Company, where they came, those who would not run with them to the same Excess of Riot, were their meer Sport and Song, every one striving to out-do his Fellow; and so be, as it were, the Captain-General under Apollyon, prince of Darkness: Who was not content to fight with one Weapon only, by which he slew most, viz. by Fleshly Lusts and Debauchery; but also introduced many abominable Errors and pernicious Heresies, which destroyed divers others, who had escaped the gross Pollutions of the World.

Fond Youth, be wise! How sad it is to see
You carry'd thus away by Luxury;
And strive to lift your selves, with speed, to fight
Under Hell's Power? O 'tis a grievous Sight.
Why will you thus subject to Sins Commands,
As if your Lease of Life were in your Hands?
What, do you think Death will not come at all,
That you no more regard your fearfull Fall?
Or, do you think God will defer the Day,
That, by your Lusts, you thus are led astray?

You
The Travels of Ungodliness.

You proud, lascivious Lads, that spend and sport;
Who know no measure, that regard no end:
For whose luxurious Dyes and Array,
You sell your Souls, and all you have away:
You little think your Bodies soon shall feed
The crawling Worms, which in the Dust do breed.
Dart down your Eyes, 'tis but two Yards deep Into the Grave, where you, e'er long, must sleep.
Behold, the Corps, and Skulls of those young Men,
That once walk'd here, and must arise again.
Come, cast an Eye, you Lads and Ladies Gay,
Upon the loathsome Filth, the Worms and Clay.
Your Eyes that are so curious to behold
The Body deck'd in Ornaments of Gold:
That, like two Orient Crystals gave their Light,
To look on Vanity both Day and Night:
Cast one Look down: 'Oh here's for you a Sight
Behold, I pray, your ancient seeming Mother,
For all the World do's not know such another;
Whose royal, burden'd, honourable Womb,
So many Noble Heroes doth intomb:
Where all the famous Heros do remain,
Who conquer'd many, but by Death were slain;
Whose glittering Swords ambition kept from Rust:
Their Glory ended here; they're turn'd to Dust.
O ponder well! Alas, your Time is short;
When Death will put a period to your Sport.
But that's not all; I've worse News to tell;
Forsake your Sins, or else you'll go to Hell.
The Wages of Sin, it Eternal Death;
Unless you do experience a New Birth.

CHAP.
CHAPTER IV.

Shewing how Tyrant Sin travelled into the vast Country, called Sensuality; wherein is discovered the Nature, Manners, and strange Customs of the Inhabitants; together with the Strength, Government, Trade and other Rarities found in a great City, situated in the same Regions; And of the prodigious and shameful Pranks he played there. As also, shewing the manner how three of the Inhabitants thereof made their Escape out of the said City and Country.

The Unweary Traveller, and Curled Enemy, Sin, (having passed through, and near quite overcome and laid waste, the Country of Nonage, and Youthshire) thought now, he had sufficiently stored the Country of Sensuality with Inhabitants, and therefore was resolved to travel again into those Parts, and give them a fresh Visit; but before we relate anything concerning his Projects here, it may not be amiss to give you a Description of the Country, with the Nature, Manners, and Customs of the Inhabitants.

First, Then you must know, that this Country is very large, (it is indeed, the biggest Continent in the whole World) the Latitude, Longitude, and whole Circumference thereof wonderful, and amazing to think upon: For in this Country lies the greatest part of...

vy, Tartary, with the vast Empire of Mahomet, or Kingdom of Turkey, Preslor John's Land, with the biggest part of America; and the East and West-Indies, and almost all Europe. Also in some Parts and confines thereof, lies the great City Babylon containing divers mighty Streets; with spiritual Sodom and Egypt, where our Lord was Crucified. Moreover, there is also a City, which bears the same Name the Country doth; of which we shall hereafter speak more particularly.

Now as touching the Inhabitants, the like you have hardly heard of: For this bloody Tyrant, Sin, it seems, had formerly been amongst them; and by his devilish Art and Subtility, had so strangely metamorphosed the People; that they are not at all (in many Respects) like rational Creatures; for they appear to have no more Reason than the Beasts that perish; nay, and are, for certain, so far degenerated from what once they were, for some of them (I find in Holy Writ) look like Lions, others like Dragons, Dogs, Tygers, Bulls, Wolves, Swine, Serpents, Foxes, &c, and many of them like Asses; and also all the parts of all these sorts of Animals.

There is one thing more to be noted (which is sad, respecting the People of this vast Country) viz. They are so mangled, and slaughtered by Sin, that some have no Eyes to see (he has put them out) not Ears to hear, what God by his Word or Works declares; nay, all their spiritual Senses, in many them, are quite lost;
lost; and their very Hearts and Consciences are defiled, so that from the Crown of their Heads, to the Soles of their Feet, there is nothing but Wounds and Bruises, and purifying Sores. Moreover, the Enemy hath stript them of all Soul-Raiment and Garments; that in the sight of him who hath Internal Eyes, they appear as Naked as ever a Child did new born: And yet they are so deluded, that there is not one in twenty of them ashamed; what Cover any have, is but like unto filthy Rags, or a Menstruous Cloth, or those Cloths that are taken off of old Ulcers, or filthy running and thinking Sores; and yet some of them vaunt themselves in Pride, and spot their Faces, as if they were peerless for Beauty.

But possibly some may enquire, What Food the Country does afford; I cannot, alas, but pity them, upon that very Account; for the Soil is very barren; for the Native Growth; the Product of the Country is such, that it yields no Food for their Souls, but Ashes, Husks, Chaff, and Gravel-stones, only some of the Ashes feed upon the Wind, and snuff up the East-Wind.

If you search Sacred Records, you will find 'tis really so: Doth not the Scripture say, The Wicked feed on Ashes, Chaff, and the Wind? Was it the Country was it, that the Prodigal Son went into? And what Citizen was that, but the whole Swine he fed with, and fain would have filled his Belly with the Husks they did eat? What are all the Pleasures, Honours and Riches

Of the World, but as Chaff, &c. compared with the Dainties of our Father's House?

Thus I have given you a brief Account of the monstrous Dispositions and Customs of the People of this great Country, where many live in Honour, and understand not; and therefore, are said to be Like the Beasts that perish: And I am sure you cannot go amongst them, but you will find (if you have not lost your Reason with them) those things so. Also, how like far and pamper'd Horses do some of them appear, every one (as the Prophet says) Neighing after his Neighbour's Wife.

But, since I told you of the City Sensuality that lies just as you enter into the Country, it is needful to speak first of the Gate; which is so exceedingly wide, that Ten Thousand may go in together, with much ease: Yet 'tis divided into five Divisions, (viz) The Five Senses; and the Way to it seems (to Fools) to be Drew'd with Roses: And before the great Gate, is all manner of Fleshly Allurements, to entice Travellers; for there stands a multitude of fair Ladies; some with spotted Faces, naked Breasts and Shoulders rowling their wanton Eyes; so that the Simple cannot but be taken with the Sight. And then to please another of the Five Senses, they are very Gentle, and as willing to come to Hand; and be play'd with as ever was Joseph's Mistress.

Also there stands continually at the Gate, the Weights of the City, with all sorts of rare and Flesh ravishing Musick; that makes such a melodious
The Progress of Sin: Or, lodious Sound, that the Ear is engaged presently.

And then, for the Sense of Smelling; there are the rare Perfumes of the East, Myrrh, Aloes and Frankincense.

For Tasting; you have a Company of good Fellows standing with Bottles of the best Spiced Wine, Brandy, and Tankards of Ale and Beer in their Hands, saying, Here is your rare Bait, come let us Drink, Carouse and be Merry. You may have also, for your Money, the most vicious Food that the World affords: A Baste of the best Sort is dear; but according your Purse or Pocket, and glutinous Appetite, you may be accommodated, provided you eat and drink to Excess: For otherwise, there is no Entrance for you at this Gate, thence you may gather the Inhabitants have not lost the Senses of the Body, though they have the Spiritual Senses of the Soul.

But to Proceed: The Gate that lets into the City, hath three Steps ascending: The first is the Concepcion of Lust; the second is Sweet and Fleshly Pleading. Contemplation there; the Third is, Free Confessit, and yielding up, which no sooner you get upon, but you are in the City.

Also, you must know the Strength Place is very great: It hath three very high and impregnable Walls. The Blindness of Mind; the second is Profit, the Third Unbelief.

Under the Wall lies a wonderful and dangerous Ditch, or Moat, which
The Progress of Sin: Or, the Inhabitants, who by striving to get out of the City, chance to fall into, 'tis a Thousand to Gne, if they ever get out again.

The Watch that keeps the Gate is Sin, with divers infernal Spirits, all well armed: Infomuch, that, without infinite Power, there is no Escaping.

At the farther end of the City, is a Gate also, as wide as the other, which stands always open; the Porter's Name is Death.

Moreover, behind that Gate, is an exceeding deep Lake, that sends forth nothing but a black sulphurous Smoak of Fire and Brimstone: And all that die in this City Sensuality go out at that Gate, and so fall into the Lake which burns more fierce than Mount Mepi, or Strombolo.

In the Heart of the Town, is a strong and wonderful Castle, where Apo1yon keeps his Court, which is called Hardness of Heart.

And one great Thing Tyrant Sin is employed about, is, to bring all the Inhabitants one after another gradually, as they enter the City, into this Castle.

He that is Keeper of the Castle, is one most active, a very impudent, and grim Fellow.

The Walk or Path to the Castle is enough; but at the Entrance of the Gate, four Steps, very fair, to set your Feet. The first is called, Extenuation of Sin, to great Sins small, and little Sin; to seem all. The second, to make, Excuses, vix, I was drawn in, My Heart is good, So...
The Travels of Ungodliness.

The third Step is called, Delight in Sin; and from hence 'tis defended, and pleaded for by such who get up thus high.

The fourth and last Step is, final Impenitency, then you are in the Castle, and are made Free-Citizens, having a Right to all the Privileges and Immunities, Trade and Traffick thereof.

On one side of the City, towards a Town called Religion, is a little Gate so straight that but a very few can get through: It is called Regeneration, and he that opens it, hardly one in a Thousand who dwells in the City, knows; whose Name is Faith, of the Operation of God.

Moreover, You must know, that in this City Sin keeps every Day a great Market, where he exposeth to Sale divers rich Commodities, on easie Terms.

For, first, Here you may buy Modesty of some, which is a choice thing for a Toy or two: The same Commodity you may have of others for a rare Antick Fashion, which, like Shop-windows, make a Shew of a richer Jewel to be had upon reasonable Rates within.

2. Say what you will, Chastity is sold at this Market very cheap,

3. There is to be sold those excellent Pearls of Temperance and Sobriety, for the value of one quart of good Canary, or rather than fail for a dozen of Beer, or Ale, or for a

How many, says worthy Downham, do openely profess their inward Uncleanness, by laying open to the common View their naked Breasts as tho' it were a Bill affixed to the Dorr-Posts, to signify to the Passers by, that a
The Progress of Sin: Or, within that Place dwells an unclean Heart; and that who soever will, may buy Honesty and Chastity at an easie rate.

Whores, says another, use to discover their Filthiness much in their Breasts; either in the Nakedness of them, or in those Ornaments they hang here. To what purpose are those Garments so pompous; those Stuffs so costly; those Guizes so sought after; these Colours so Fumaslech, so Shameless; these extravagant Patches so abominable; unless it be to cut the Throat of Chastity? says another.

5. And a Good Conscience, if there is any such Commodity in the whole Town, is to be had at the very same Price. The Love of mony is the Root of all Evil.

6. Peace and inward Tranquility of Mind to an easie Terms, if it be possible to find it among them.

7. Which is more than all the rest God Christ, and all the Blessings purchased by (Price of) his most precious Blood, with all Inconceivable Privileges of the Gospel, are esteemed by most of the Inhabitants of the Sensuality, worth one Lust; and therefore them but Drink, Damn, Swear, and Whore, add let who will take all such Things. Heaven is self free.
But to proceed, in this City sin also keeps a School: (you must needs think the People are educated with a Vengeance who have such a Tutor) but pray be pleased to hear what rare Arts they are, which he instructs them in.

1. He teaches all that are willing to learn of him, that deep Art of Witchcraft and Conjuration, but that is upon dear Terms.

2. He teaches the Art of Swearing, with all its Attendants.

3. The Art of Drunkenness and Gluttony; viz. how to drink Wine and strong Liquors abundantly; and to dress Meat, on purpose to provoke and make Provision for the Flesh.

4. The Art of ambition or sinful Grandeur

5. The Art of Covetousness, a great Mystery; for if well learned thou may'st be as greedy a Curmudgeon as any lives, and yet go for a liberal Person.

6. Here is taught also the curious Art of Bravery, viz. all the newest, nearest, and most rare Fashions, that can be had for Love or Money; but chiefly those which tend to stir up to Wantonness, Lust and lascivious Embraces; some of which you have heard already; but not only for the Body, but for your Houses and all things else.

7. The delicate Art of Painting, or beautifying the Skin, Face, Hands, and Hair, &c. as the colouring the Eye-brows, clapping on a false and

How you such an one weep for her Sins, when she tears would wash away the Colours; and so discover the Cheat. — The Painting the Face (faith, he) is the Deforming God’s Image and Workmanship, and injures Damnable.

8. The Mysterious Art of Perfuming, not only the Hair, but the Skin, Cloaths, Bedding, Linnen, and Wollen, &c. on purpose to please, Lust, and to keep up the Trade of the City.

9. The Art of Writing; and the Trade of this being a great part of the City Trade, how, seems, takes great care to instruct every sort of Dealers, that they might be better accident, if possible, than many others. So they directly to stand with Impudent Faces at their Doors, in the Twilight, bravely garnish the Gowning, &c. and this it is known they are; yet they are here but laughed at. Tradersmen in other Cities, at Night these other Persons Trade is over, the Ave.
The Travels of Ungodliness

Trade begins: She is set on Work, and maintained perhaps, by those that undo the other. Give Thanks, O wide mouth'd Hell; Laugh Lucifer at this; and Dance for Joy, all ye Devils.

But this sort, likely, take up their Dwelling in the Out Parts; but there are others who are taught to Trade more secretly; and for fear, left some People, who like not this Vice should have them in Derision; Apollo, to prevent their being discovered, teaches them to manage their being discovered, teaches them to manage their Works of Darkness subtly, after this manner.

If Gallants haunt the House, where she is, them she is taught to say, She is a Captain's Wife, or such like, that is gone into the Wars in another Country; and they come with Letters from her Husband, and if Merchants report to her, then to hoist up these Sails, i.e. She is a Wife to a Master of a Ship, and they bring News, That her Husband put in at the Straits, or Venice, or Constantinople, or at Alexandria, or Scanderbon, &c. If Shoorkers come to her, why, Then she has bought some Goods newly of them, and they come for their Money; but if the Stream runs low, that none but Apron Ladies, and Journey men launch forth, then she keeps a politicke Seamsters Shop; and she sells or starches their Linen: and a multitude of such Devices it is reported they have.

16. Here is taught also the Art of Cheating, Picking and Stealing.
11. The Craft of Lying, Dissembling, and Equivocating.

12. To omit many more, as the Art of Scoffing, Reproaching, and Villifying Virtue, here is taught the mysterious Art of Atheism; and if you please to read that most excellent Book, writ by Sir Charles Woolsey, well worthy of perusing, you may see what a kind of Catechism the Atheists teach.

13. Here is also taught the black and hellish Art of Incest, Sodomy, Buggery, and all manner of beastly and unnatural Lusts.

14. The Art of Sports; or all manner of unlawful Games.

15. The Art of Mirth, Music, and all kind of Flesh-ravishing Melodies, with filthy Songs and abominable Romances taught by ingenious Lads of Pecatum's own tur'ring.

That so he might their precious Time abuse,
He doth assist and guide the wanton Muse,
Which doth each day bring forth Romances vain,
The poison'd Frotch of their infected Brain,
Which only tend to nourish rampant Vice;
And to Prophaneness easy Yourb entice.

First, their Statutes are very ease to the Flesh, being wholly under the Law of Sin, Loosefulness, and Sensuality, and how they be otherwise, when Sin bears the only Rule and Sway; for 'tis he that reigns in mortal Bodies, whom they obey in every Motion and Lust whatsoever.
The Travels of Ungodliness. 177

The chief Judge that hears and determines all, Cases of Doubt and Controversie that may arise is Depraved Judgment; the other Magistrates are Wilful-Will, Deceitful-Memory, and Carnal-Affections; the Recorder is, Misled, Blind, and Evil Conscience.

As touching the Privileges of the City Sensuality, they are very many; though I shall mention but two or three.

1. The Inhabitants have free Liberty to trade in any Merchandize the City affords, and learn all the Arts thereof, if they please.

2. To break the Sabbath Day, and play at what Sports or Games they like best; or carouse it at Taverns, Ale-Houses, or Bawdy-Houses, &c.

3. To violate all the good Laws of God, Nature and Nations.

4. To bring up their Children in the same Craft.

5. To reproach and villain all that are godly or civilly Honest, &c

Lastly, to enter in at the wide Gate (whenever they die) and go into the Lake that burns with Fire and Brimstone, it being always open for them; but you must know, 'tis he that built this City; and is the chief Governor thereof who grants all these Privileges; and that is the Devil.

Now, as every City hath (likely) a Stock or Treasure belong to it; so hath this also, viz.

1. A Stock of Infamy, that can never be exhausted.
The Progress of Sin: Or

1. A Stock of Filth and horrid Pollution.

2. A Stock of Guilt, more than they can stand under.

4. The Treasure of a rotten, diseased, and loathsome Carcase.

5. A Stock of all the Threats, Plagues, and fearful Curses and Cominations, that are contained in the Old and New Testament.

Lastly, A whole heap of Wrath treasured up against the Day of Wrath, and Revelation of the Righteous Judgments of God, &c.

There is yet one thing more, that I shall note as touching the Inhabitants of this City, viz. They are all Soldiers, being trained up from their Childhood in all Arts of War, to fight under the Banner of the Prince of Darkness, against the great God of Heaven and Earth, Jesus Christ, and the Holy Ghost; whose Motions they are taught continually to resist also, against the Light of Nature. And lastly against all good Counsel, Reproofs or Exhortations, that any, in love to their Souls, do at any Time give them.

Yet, nevertheless, a poor Reader adventure to come to the Gate of the City to say Prayers, and give them good Instructions; and as it appeared, a great Number seemed to attend upon what he said; but some good Fellows (who were Students in the Art of Drunkennes) observing his Nose, when he had done, enticed him into the City, and got him to a Tavern, and made him beastly drunk, which one of the Sensual Ladies observing allured him by,
The Travels of Unwilling bewitching Stratagems to commit Folly with her; and I do not hear he has deserted the City ever since.

But at last, one Theologian, a godly Divine, was sent by his Blessed Master Jesus Christ to the City-Gate to preach the Gospel to them, Who cried without, and uttered his voice in the Streets, in the chief Place of Concourse, in the opening of the Gates, &c. How long ye simple Ones will ye love Simplicity? and Scorners delight in Scorning, and Fools base Knowledge? Turn ye at my Reproof, Prov. 1: 20. 21. 22. 23. &c. Unto you, O Men I call, &c. Oh, Therefore leave your Folly, and forsake your evil Ways; for that God whom you every day provoke, is like to a Consuming Fire, and his Wrath is kindled against you; therefore, if you do not acquit this Place, and flee to the City of Refuge, even now whilst it is called to Day, he will bring his Plagues and Fearful Judgments upon you.

But if any one of you bless himself in his Heart saying, I shall have Peace, though I walk in the Image of my own Heart; to add Drunkenness to Thirst: The Lord will not spare him; but then the Anger of Jehovah, and his Jealousie shall smock against that Man; and all the Curses that are written in this Book, shall lie upon him; And the Lord will blot out his Name from under Heaven.

Oh! You Monster of Wickedness; will you dare the Almighty? Can you prevail against the Bosses of the Buckler? Are you a Match for him? Can you stand before his Indignation?

F 4, come come to call you out of this Hellish City; i.e. to leave your sensual and beastly Lives, and accept of Pardon through Jesus Christ. Oh! is there none that will lay down their Arms, and close in with the Tenders of Grace: For though you are thus wicked, and have done as many evil things as you could, Jer. 3. 5. yet there is Mercy for you, if ye repent and believe in Jesus Christ.

Look about you, for the Lord's sake Fire! Fire! Behold the City is on Fire at one End; also besieged by the Wrath of God: You are all undone Men and Women, if you do not speedily fly out, save your Lives. You must turn, or die. How doth my Soul tremble to behold what is coming upon you? for a Fire is kindled (faith God) in my Anger; which shall burn unto the lowest Hell; and shall consume the Earth, with her Increase; and set on fire the foundations of the Mountains, Deut. 32. 92. And he spake to the same Purpose, with great Zeal, Courage, and Compassion; Tears standing in his Eyes, beholding their woeful Condition: But most of them did but laugh at him; and many abused him with shameful Speeches: Yet some few were wrought upon, and two or three, more especially, drew near to him, bewailing their Perishing State. But withal told him, the City was so strong, they knew not which way to escape.

Now, when the rest were gone, he told them there was a little Gate, called Regeneration; which if they could but find, they might get out: But they said, it was like, that Gate was lock'd. Well (said he) though it be, yet there is a Key which will open it, and that is Prayer.

Then they, with many Tears, and bitter Sobs, cry'd to the Lord; and at last they found the Gate, but it was a great while before they could find the Porter who is appointed to open the Gate, whose Name is Faith in Christ: But yet their Eyes being enlightened by the Spirit of Grace, they got through the first Wall, which you heard is Blindness of Men; then they came to the Second Wall, call'd Presumption, and looking about them, they saw divers other poor People just at their Heels, thinking to get away also: But when they beheld this Wall, they stood still; for between these two Gates lies a large green Field; (these green Fields are the Pleasures and Honours of the World) and those People were resolv'd to abide there, concluding now they are safe enough; resting wholly upon the Mercy of God; and so were kept in the City, under some common Illuminations of the Spirit, which is the Ruine of many thousands. For when their Consciences are awakened, and they begin to be sensible, in some measure, of the woful State of Fallen Man; yet, hereing of the infinite Grace and Mercy of God in Christ, they go no further, but remain in their Sins, and never strive after the Gate of Regeneration, and yet hope to be saved. But those three poor Souls (before mentioned) were under a more special and enough Work; for they call'd to mind how Theologues had open'd to them the Nature of The Progress of Sin: Or God's justice, as well as his Mercy; and that He would, in no wise, clear the Guilty; (and that they must therefore believe in Christ, and utterly forsake Sin; and be born again, or else could not see the Kingdom of God.) Therefore, they durst not presume, upon God's Mercy, whilst they remain'd in their Sins; not trust to latter Repentance, (which seldom proves true.) Then they came along, with the Porter, to the third and last Wall, call'd Unbelief; which they no sooner beheld, but their Hearts fail'd them: Wherefore they here stood still, and knew not what to do, fearing Apolloxa would come out against them, and swallow them up quick; (for his Eye was fix'd upon them all the while.) And now he behir'd himself to the Purpose; and indeed, threatened them, that if they endeavoured to go further, he would throw them over that Wall into the Most; out of which few ever escaped with their Lives.

Upon this they trembled: Yet looking back, they saw several Persons were coming up them; having also got over the Wall of Unbelief. But lo, on a sudden, they perceived Apolloxa coming upon those poor Creatures, and threw one, or two of them into the Pit, or Marsh of Despair; and Others he forc'd to retreat back again: But these three, having heard of the Virtue of Christ Jesus, and the Nature of Gospel Promises, took Courage: So that the gate that leads into this Wall, was open also: Yet they feared Power to venture through; for one of the more particularly, calling to mind his notorious evil, and debauch'd life, he having liv'd a long time in the city of Sensuality; perceiv'd the deep and dangerous Moat; (through the Gate) which, he concluded, he should fall into, and be undone for ever. But the other two encourage'd and strengthen'd him as much as they could. But alas! all would not do: And indeed they themselves were full of fears and doubtings. But it was not long before a most sweet and lovely lady, with her several daughters, (whom they had met with sometimes before, and receiv'd help from) appeared to them, whose name was Grace; who bid them not fear: For (faith the) here is my eldest daughter, Faith; if you can prevail with her, she will soon help you all through the gate of unbelief and over the Moat of Despair too. And indeed, none else can do it.

But Apollos understanding this immediately most furiously assaulted them; yet Faith by turning her shield against him, made him quickly fly away, and at last they were resolved to throw themselves upon the mercy of God, through the blood of Jesus Christ and adventure over: And if (faith one to the other) we perish, we perish; there is nothing but Death, if we go back, or remain here.

And thus they encouraged one another, and ventured in.

And Faith, that most noble offspring of God, through the holy spirit kept them from sinking; so that they all three escap'd.
And just as they got over the Moat, they espied a clear and lovely Fountain set wide open;
Zech. 14. 1. and Faith help'd them to wash, and bathe themselves therein; for they saw they were exceedingly polluted.

After this, they haste'd away, as fast as they could go, towards a little Town call'd Religion (which lies in the direct way to New Jerusalem). But, Oh! with what Difficulty did they pass along the Country? For the Enemy pursu'd them close; so that the First Day they escaped the Moat, they were for'd to mount a mighty Hill, call'd Opposition. And here they were stopp'd not only by Sin and Hellish Temptation, but the Country People also, were stirr'd up by the Enemy to turn them back, or hinder them in their Flight. Yet they got up the Mountain, and the next Day they fell down into a Deep Valley call'd Self Denial: So difficult a Passage it is, that but few are able to pass along: And yet there is no other way to New Jerusalem. And presently, upon this they came to a certain Stile, which they perceiv'd would also press them hard to't, to get over; it being call'd, the Stile of Carnal Reason. Yet they not confining with Flesh and Blood, made little of it.

But, Alas! They were nor gone much farther, before they came into an howling Wilderness: And here they seem'd for a while to be at a stand; there being so many Turnings, and By-ways: And the Enemy, to amuse them rais'd up several Subtil Impostors, to put them out of the right Path; one crying, This...

Way; and another, That. Besides, they were assur'd, the Wilderness had many deep and dangerous Pits in it; and 'twas also very dark and doleful; so that if they had not met some time before, with an able and sure Guide, doubtless, they had had perish'd in this Place. But Truth was their only Conductor; whose Counfel always (as 'tis contained in the Holy Bible) they resolved to take. So that they missed not their Way. But it seems, two or three Days after, they met with many Lions, and other Evils Beasts; yet they past securely along, they having no Power to hurt them; tho' (poor Souls) they were possess'd with great Fear. But Faith vanquish'd their Doubts, and desponding Thoughts.

But yet, the worst was not over: For lo on a sudden, they were beset with Thieves; who threatened to knock them on the Head, but were restrained. Yet they robb'd them of their Cloaths, and part of their Money. But they, calling to mind how wonderfully God had delivered them from Sin and Satan, matted none of all these Things: For now, to their inconceivable Joy and Comfort they came into the Sweet and pleasant way of the New Con-cnant. And at last, getting up upon the Top of an high Rock, called the Rock of Ages, they, were safe enough; where they had a full View (whenthey look'd downwards) of the miserable Country Sensuality, from whence they came and when they look'd upwards, they saw (to the ravishing of their Hearts) the Glory of the Heavenly
The Progress of Sin: Or, Heavenly Country they were going to, and where they will arrive in due time.

But here, at present, we must leave them; and pursue our History of the Travels of bloody Passover.

CHAP. VII.

Shewing how Tyrant Sin came, in his Travels, into the great Country of Commerce; where formerly stood a famous Town called Morality: And what fearful Work he made there.

Sin, that cruel Enemy, and Destroyer of Souls, having thus enlarged his Territories, and settled all things in the great City of Sensuality, and set Part of his Revenue and Attendance with many infernal Spirits, to watch Night and Day, to keep all in Carnal Security there; was resolved (in Company with Apollo) to travel further: And, in a short time, he came into the Country of Commerce; where I found, in former Times, that famous and honest Town, call'd Morality: Which he took up a Resolutions to ruin, and lay flat to the Ground; or, otherwise, by secret Policy, undo, or utterly beguile, or deceive all the Inhabitants. Now this Town (as I said) had formerly been in great Esteem, being a Place of good Trade, and many honest and well-meaning People dwelt in it; But this cursed Traveller, it appears, had been in it of latter Times, before now; and by his Subtilty, had made it a poor and and despis'd Village, and very thin also of Inhabitants. Yet was not satisfied, but designs to raze it, if possible, to the very Foundation thereof.

But since he is got into the Country, and hath also entered the Town; let us observe his present Enterprize.

First, He meets with one Person that is very rich; and him he entices to augment his Substance, to grind the Face of the Poor, by forcing them to sell the Commodities under the Market; he understanding their Necessities.

And then he stirred up another not to lend Money to any, though in never such Distresses, without Extortion, or unconscionable Interest. Nay, and will have a Pawn too, or else not a Penny to be had.

Moreover, some he entice to monopolize, or engross Commodities so into their own Hands, that none might sell of that sort, to gain any thing by them, but themselves.

Divers others, who, for a while, seem'd sober Persons, and might have liv'd still in the Town of Morality, in good Credit; he allure'd to Lusts and Wantonness; by which Means he sent them to dwell in the City Sensuality.

Likewise many that were poor, he teaches to break their Word and Promises; and, at last, about Bonds and Covemants; nay, and Oaths too; and never left them, until he by the Aid of the Devil had made Thieves of them, and sent them to stand upon the Highway.
The Progress of Sin: Or,

And hence he caus'd, in several Kingdoms, to be unrighteously, and subvert Law and Justice, by which Means sad Havock is made in the Commerce, and Town of Mora, throughout the World; which caus'd the Prophet to cry, oue of Aid;

For our Transgressions are multiplied before Time, and our Sins doth rise against us: For our Transgressions are with us; and as for our Iniquities, we know them.

In trepassing one is lying against the Lord, and departing from our God; speaking Contemn, and Revolt; murmuring and uttering from the Heart, Words of Falsehood.

And Judgments is turned away backward and Justice faineth offer off; For Truth is fallen in the Streets, and Equity compasseth her.

Yea, Truth faineth; and he that departeth from Evil, maketh himself a Prey; And the Lord saw it and is displeas'd Him, that there was no Judgment.

Many be provoked to borrow Money, and live high, when they know in their Conscience they are not able to pay it; and after they have run into many Means Debts, they make a Break of it; when they have not Five Shillings in the Pound, perhaps, to offer their Creditors.

Some others he causeth, when far in Debt, to confess Judgments, on purpose to cheat their Neighbours.

And that which is the worst of all he causeth many of latter times to shut up their Shops, to make People think they were engaged by

by the badness of the Times, and Trade; and so were forc'd to call their Creditors together, being willing, forsooth, to pay as far as they have; and that not above Eight or Ten Shillings in the Pound: When, in Truth, at the same Time, they were worth some Hundreds. Alas the whole Design was but to cheat others, that they might enrich themselves.

But by this Device, many honest People have been undone; and by such too, whom they little suspected, would ever have been led by the Devil, to become the worst of Thieves and Robbers: For they out-do those who stand on the High-Way; for these more secretly and insensibly, rob and undo the People they trade with. The common Thief is Men provide for; being aware of him, they know the better how to secure themselves.

Now, there are some of those Projects Sin plays in these Parts; whereby the Country of Commerce is strangely spoiled, there being hardly an honest Man in it: For now a-days, no Man knows who to trust, nor trade with.

But, should I open all the Ways, Tricks, and Inventions of Sin and Satan, by which the Town of Morality is invaded, and like utterly to be spoiled; it would fill a great Volume. The Truth is, 'tis sadly batter'd down; and the Streets are thin of People, as in a Plague-Time. Old Father Honesty, and Goodman Just Dealing, are both dead: So, that if you ask for either of that Name, no Body knows how to direct you. Commodities are prais'd
The Progress of Sin: Or, by the Seller, when he knows they are naught; and dispraised by the Buyer, when he sees they are good. Unlawful Profit is seek'd; and yet cries the Shopkeeper, I cannot afford it cheaper. And another, he cries, (nay and swears too, may be) He will not base a Farthing: And yet, perhaps, rather than lose his Customer, he takes many Pence, if not Shillings, less: And all the time they perceive not the Traveller, not Satan neither, standing at their Elbow, prompting them thus to do; and laughing to see what a number of true Slaves and Vassals he has got in this Country: For every one seeks to supplant his Brother.

I might further proceed; and shew, how Sin corrupts and prey's upon most Tradesman and others, in City and Country; and what subtil ways he hath found out to cover all their Cheats. But that my Bookseller hath limited my Number of Sheets: Otherwise, I had furnish'd my self with the Knowledge of such things, that might be very acceptable to many; though possible, offensive to some, who would not have their hellish Contrivances, in their Trades, detected. But however, I shall, at present, forbear.

Moreover, this hellish Traveller hath got another way to ruin such that dwell in the Country of Morality, viz. by making them think when they dwell here, they dwell in the Town called Religion; but, they call it Christianity, content with all revealed or supernatural Religion, or any point of Faith that lies above Reason: So that the Gospel and Doctrine of Christ are utterly cited, and imputed Righteousness is divided, and accosted Foolishness, by those deluded Morals, who wholly build their Hopes of Heaven upon the Discharge of the Duties of natural Religion; some of these are called Deists, and others of them Quakers; both these are of one Opinion, and basely wrong and mis-call Morality, and make a Christ of it.

Now Sin having done his worst in this Place; and almost quite ruin'd the Inhabitants, and left few of the ancient Houses standing (and them so defac'd too, that now it may rather be call'd Immorality, than by the Name it was formerly known by) travel'd farther.

CHAP. VIII.

showing how Sin, alias Ungodliness, came into the great City Babylon, and of the mysterious Exploits and mischievous Work he made there.

THE Tyramical Traveller, Sin, alias, Ungodliness, cameat last to visit an ancient City, which above Twelve hundred Years ago he had erected, after a new and mysterious Fashion, in the Confines of the vast Country Sensuality, and 'tis called Great Babylon.

Indeed, it was high time for him to haste to this City, it being the only Place of Security for him; for he may have a Pardon (they tell) on ease Terms, for all the Villany that he has done.

But
The Progress of Sin: Or,

But before I proceed to speak to the Trade, Customs, and Privileges of this great City, it may not be amiss to speak a little concerning the Situation of the Place, &c.

Know then, that the Palace, or chief Seat of the King of Babylon, is built upon seven Hills; where also hath been seven sorts of Governments. Also by another Mark the City is distinguished from all other Cities in the World, viz. 'Tis said to reign over the Kings of the Earth.

'Tis also called, The Mother-City, or Mother-Church; for you must know 'tis a spiritual City. Moreover 'tis adorned with all manner of outward Pomp and Glory, so to that there is not the like splendid mystical City in the world; and yet it is the City of Confusion; (is the Name of it signifies:) and also called, A great City.

'Tis in this City, that the Blood of the Saints and Martyrs of Jesus is found (which was in former and latter times) shed in great abundance; so that in every Street thereof the Blood hath run down like a great Stream.

As to its Foundation, it is (as they say) built upon St. Peter, not upon Christ; and yet Saint Paul saith, Another Foundation can no Man lay than that which is laid, which is Jesus Christ, 1 Cor. 3. 11.

But is this City Babylon indeed built upon Peter? Upon his Person it cannot; that is impossible to suppose: Upon his Doctrine, Controversy of Christ, and holy Example, it is not; it must be upon his Defection: You know he denied his Master. Oh! there the Foundation was
The Travels of Ungodliness, was laid; for the truth is, Apollyon and Sin raised this strange and mysterious structure in the Ruins of the outward Court of the holy City, and built upon Apostacy, Heresy, Blasphemy, Usurpation, Judaism, Paganism, Impious Decrees, Decretals, Canons, Ceremonies, Traditions, Superstitions, and Unwritten Verities, or rather, very Lies.

Moreover, the Walls of this City are strong, which are these following, viz. 1. Ignorance, 2. Atheism, 3. Sensual Pleasures, Honours, Riches, 4. Pardons, Absolutions, Indulgence, Inquisition, 5. Blood, Massacres, Persecution, Cruelties, Fire and Sword, &c. 6. Civil, Ecclesiastical and Universal Power, or pretended Supremacy over Emperors, Kings, Princes, Nobles, Churches, and all Nations and People of the Earth. 7. Infallibility.

It is needful also for you to know, that Pecatum hath much work to do in this Place; for as he (by subtil and mysterious working and Aid he had from Apollyon) did first erect it; so doth he still uphold, strengthen, and repair it; for it hath in these latter times gone somewhat to decay, by means of the great Wars that have been made against it by the Lamb and his Followers.

Now, that which Sin by Craft and Subtilty, hath done to raise its Fame, and enlarge its Borders, was partly the great Miracles (it is said) he wrought in midst of it, to deceive the poor ignorant, and Blind Inhabitants, which indeed were the strangest that ever were heard of in the World.
The Progress of Sin: Or,

But that which spoils all, is the Epithet the holy Apostle gives them, viz. by calling them Lying Signs and Wonders; what kind of Miracles they are, you have them recorded in divers Treatises; to which we shall refer you.

But this is not all his Business in this Place: for he is employ'd by Apollo to teach and instruct the People in many Strange Articles of Faith, that so he may appear a complete Mystery of Iniquity; Some of which here follow.

1. That the Inhabitants may swear, lie, say, and forswear themselves (if it be to promote the good of Holy Church) and yet be true Men.

2. They may contrive Rebellions, Murthers, and Treasons, and yet be as innocent as the Child unborn.

3. They may be filled with, and take a Trade of Extasis and Drunkenness, and yet be the Patterns of Sobriety and Temperance.

4. To commit gross Idolatry, and yet be the true Worshippers of God.

5. To commit Fornication and Adultery, and yet be spotless and pure in Heart, and good Catholicks.

6. He teaches the King of Babylon to elevate himself to the highest Principle of Pride, above Emperors, Kings, and Princes; nay, above Jesus Christ, and God the Father; and yet to be so humble, meek, and lowly minded, as to be content to be called, The Servant of Servants.

7. To slay, cut, and barbarously murder Men, Women, and Children, that dare not be wicked and blasphemous as themselves, and yet...

full of Mercy, tender Pity and Compassion, as an Apostle, Shepherd, Vicar, and Successor of the meek and lamb-like Jesus.

8. To cast the Truth to the Ground, deface God's Law, and burn the Holy Bible, and yet be the True Witnesses to it, and Maintainers of it.

9. To foment Wars and Broils in many Nations, and contrive the Ruin of many Kingdoms by Fire, Sword, and cruel Devastations, and yet be as harmless as Doves to all Mankind.

10. For a People to be confederate, and join in wish, and be guilt of all these unparalled Villanies and rapacious Murders, and yet be the Holy Catholic Church of God, the pure and spotless Spouse of Christ, his harmless Lambs, the only Orthodox Chritians, and true Followers of the Primitive Saints.

11. To say, the Church cannot err, though God and all the World knows there are not such great Errors in Principles, nor like-Enormities, cursed Actions, cruel and immoral Practices in the World.

12. But the greatest Mystery of all, Pecatum reaches their Priest, (viz.) by a Strange Charm of five Latin Words, i.e. Hoc est enim Corpus meum, to transubstantiate a Wafer-Cake into the real Body and Blood of Jesus Christ, and this Breathes God the Inhabitants 'eat, even Flesh

You must know, that here is also a Market kept every day in the Week; where there are many choice Commodities sold.

The Merchandise of this City are very rich; as you have them laid down in holy Scripture; viz. The Merchandise of Gold and Silver, precious Stones, Pearls, fine Linen, Purple, Silk, Scarlet and all sweet Wood, with all manner of Vessels of Ivory, and all manner of Vessels of precious Wood, and of Brass, Iron and Marble, and Cinnamon, Odors, Ointments, Frankincense, Wine, fine Flower, Wheat, Beasts, Sheep, Horses, Chariots, Slaves, and Souls of Men, &c. Rev. 8:18.

If you do but observe the last Commodity, you cannot but say they trade in things of great worth; for what is more precious than the Souls of Men.

Also here is to be had that staple Commodity of the whole City Babylon, viz. Pardons, and Indulgences of all sorts and sizes, for all; and all manner of Sins of whatsoever Shape, Staining or Complexion they be (on ease Tend) whether past, present, or to come; also a certain Release for Souls that have lain long in searching Flames of Purgatory.

Moreover at this Fair, or Market, are Shews or Sights to be seen; yea, such that the World cannot afford the like; or of the Cross on which our Saviour was the Tail of the Ass on which he Rode to Jerusalem; great store of the Virgin Mary's Milk, also the very Thread, Work-Basket, Scissors and Needles, which she used in making Christ's Seamless Coat, &c.

If Rome can pardon Sin, as Romans hold;
And if these Pardons can be bought and sold,
Were it a Sin to adore and worship Gold?

If they can purchase Pardons with a Sum,
For Sins they may commit in time to come
And for Sins past, who would not hast to Rome?

But Oh, the plaguy thing of being Poor,
For is it not a lamentable Story,
For want of Gold to lie for evermore
In Hell, or at the least in Purgatory
Out of which Place can never come the Poor;
No nor the Rich, without they'll waste their Store.

Lastly, The Enemy teaches the Inhabitants, of this great City the rare Art and Mystery of Equivocation; by which he is had in great Veneration amongst them.

Besides, he is you must know, a rare Politician, being the chief Agent to carry on, and contrive all the dark and bloody Intrigues of State amongst them.

But since I hear he is very busy to stir up and push on another great War against the Holy-Seed, and City of God, we will at present say no more of his Wonders and Strange Projects here; but follow him in his Travels, in carrying on his next grand Enterprize.

But to the Hearts of such who love Zion;
this let me more by the way(i.e.) is not doubted

G
The Progress of Sin: Or, by most of the Faithful, but that the Fall and utter Overthrow of this great Babylon is at hand and then shall Zion be delivered: And the same Hour there was a great Earthquake and the tenth part of the City fell; Rev. 11. 13. when she shall in her Heart, I sit a Queen and shall see no sorrow, nor have loss of Children any more; then in an Hour shall her Judgments come upon her.

C H A P. IX.

Shewing how Peccatum alias Ungodliness came against the Town of Religion (otherwise called Sion or the City of God) with a great Army of a mixt People and besieged it: Moreover, how he met with True Godliness, and a Noble Citizen of Mount Zion, called Thoughtful; and what Discourse passed between them, with the strange, politick and bloody Stratagems the Tyrant used to destroy the Holy City: Together with a Compendious Description of the Situation, Foundation, Trade and Privileges there of; and by what Means it holds out against all the Powers of Darkness.

Ungodliness having not yet done his Travails, though he had settled Matters pretty well in Great Babylon ranges about, and destroys wonderfully in every Kingdom and Nation, neither doth he spare any, where, either by Force or Fraud he can prevail; pitying no Degree of People, High nor Low, Noble or Ignoble Rich nor Poor, Old nor Young, is his Impudence, that he assaults the Prince upon the Throne, as well as the Beggar on the Dung-hill; insomuch that he (as it is said) hath got strange Footing or Entertainment in the Courts of Emperors, Kings, and many other mighty Ones of the Earth alluring them by his Policy, to take up Arms for him; and having by this Means gathered together a vast and prodigious Army, resolved to enter upon his last grand and main Enterprize, which was to besiege, attack, utterly raze, and lay desolate the Holy City; which, by gracious Providence, hath in these latter Times been rebuilt, &c. And now you must know, Tartars, Mahometans, Babylonians, Atheists, and a Multitude besides, brought out of the great Country and City Sensuality, with another sort of dangerous Enemies; of which we shall speak more hereafter.

Never was Sin and Ungodliness raised up to higher Pomp and Grandeur than he seems at this time; for lo, now he is mounted on Horseback as a glorious Conqueror, leading the numerous Hosts like a victorious General or Commander in Cheif, under Apollyon, King of the bottomless Pit; having Thousands of Thousands following him with great Shouts, Musick of all sorts, and loud Acclamations crying Great is Diana of the whole World.

As touching the martial or warlike Order they march in against Mount Sion; take this briefly
The Progress of Sin: Or,

Peccatum leads the Van (being himself more than an hundred-thousand strong.)

Next to him marches Apollyon, mighty Belzebub, and Lucifer, heading three great Armies, compos'd of different Kinds; yet all cruel Enemies to this City.

The first consisteth of the Riches of his World by which Thousands have fallen.

The second of Honours and sinful Preferments.

The third is filled up with vain delights and Pleasures.

They are called by three other Names, viz. The Lust of the Eyes; the Lust of the Flesh; and the Pride of Life.

After these a Man adorned in Cloth of Gold with a Tripole Crown on his Head, and for a Scepter a Brace of Keys in his hand; who I take to be the great King of Babylon with a glorious Retinue of Cardinals, Patriarchs, Bishops, Abbots, Friars, Monks, Nuns, Seminaries, Jesuits, and a Number more following him with a great Train of Artillery; as Marks of Works Limbus, Purgatory, Pardons, indulgences, Vows, Prayers to and for the Dead, Penance, Holy-water, Pilgrims, Auricular confessions. Extream Unction, Lamps, Candles, Torches, Tapers, Relicks, Oil, Salt, Salt, Crucifix, Beads, Holy Garments, Gestures, Canons, Customs, and the knows what besides; as Blood, Slain, Maslacres, Stake, Fire, and Sword.

Then comes the Grand Seignior, or the and blasphemous Emperor of Turkey, an
The Progress of Sin: Or, with his chief Mufes and a multitude of other inferior Priests with their Acoran in their Hands and a great Army at their Heels, with Swords and other slaughtering Weapons, wearing by their Beards what they will do to such that oppose them; being all true Sons and Vassals to Apollion, and this dreadful Enemy Pecatum.

And then after these, an Army of Fair Ladies dressed up in sumptuous Apparel, and in the newest Mode the City Sensuality hath of late found out; as spotted Faces, naked Breasts and Shoulders.

And with them a number of debauched Lads out of Youth-shire, armed Cap a-pe; being as true as Steel to the Interest of their beloved Leader, and very expert in all Stratagems of War against God, Christ, and true Godliness.

Moreover besides these a bloody and treacherous Brigade who lie in secret Ambuscade, who are as dangerous as any of the rest, called ibred Corruption.

In the Rear marches two Regiments; the first being made up of a base sort of Varlets called Renegadoes, (i.e.) being such who have deserted the Lord Jesus Christ, and the Holy City, and joined in with the Enemy who are become as cruel Adversaries as any in the World.

The last was a Regiment of strange People, hardly two of them being alike, and their Manners and Customs were as various: They came out of a Town which lies on one side of the City of God, called Horese, being rotten at Master.
The Travels of Ungodliness. 143

and corrupt in the Fundamentals of the true Christian Religion; holding almost every abominable Principle that hath been broached by the Devil in any Age of the Church, &c.

This War being proclaimed, and all the Forces of Hell and Darkness mustred, a Council was called to consult about the best Expedients to carry it on: And there being neither Power nor Policy wanting, what can we think should be the Issue of it, but Ruin and Slaughter to the Holy Seed?

Now the great Design on Foot, 'tis thought is how to kill the Witnesses: But Apollyon judged it fit at this Juncture, to send Peccatum, as a Subtil Spy into the City. First to see if he could by Treachery get the Gates open to his Armies, &c.

The Instructions he received were as follow:

Apollyon. Dear Peccatum, tho' our Armies are ready and all things promise fair, yet great part of the Work will lie upon thee and I; and indeed thou must now bestir thee, for the Inhabitants of this City are many of them expert in War and are not ignorant of our Devices; therefore this must be done:

First, Let's chuse advantageous Seasons to assault them.

Secondly, Manage our Arms in such Methods that suit best with our Craft and Policy.

Thirdly, Pitch on fit Instruments to carry on our Design.

I. As to proper and advantageous Seasons; this is that which gives Facility and speedy Dispatch to a Business. I have often took Men here, 144 The Progress of Sin: Or, here because they knew not their Time; A small Strength will do at one time that a far greater cannot at another.

1. Therefore when any are newly wrought upon by the Grace of God, or a new Convert is made, then bestray thy self; for indeed the Cry of the new Creatures gives whoe Legions of us Devils an Alarm: Alas their Strength then is weak; see if you can lead them into Error, or puff them up with Pride or drive them into Despair, by laying before them their former evil Lives.

2. When we see any attended with great Afflictions; this is like a blind solitary Lane, where we as Thieves may easily beset them; and when they are robb'd of all their worldly Comforts, let's tempt them to Impatience, and to conclude God hath forsaken them, and then their Business is done: When the City wants Provision, or is greatly straitned, then let us found a Parley.

3. When they are about some notable Enterprize, for God's Glory then thou must be as an Addor in the Path that bistoeb the Horse beets, so that the Rider shall fall backward. Thus I hindered Joshua, by holding his right Hand, which is the working Hand: We must prevent that Enterprize, by raising up some Difficulty or another.

4. When they are in the Presence of some Object, to enforce our Temptation that's our Time: Thus I caught Eve when she was near the Tree, and had the Fruit thereof before her Eyes.

5. When
5. When they are asleep, idle, or off their Watch, doubt not but this way we may surprise the City, and their Souls too with much ease; for thus Thou and I overcame David and the foolish Virgins, &c.

6. We must beset them after great Manifestation of God's Love to them; for they shall neither be able to bear well his Frowns, nor his Smiles if we can help it; for we may make the one like to warm Gleams, to bring up the Weeds of Corruption, and the other like sharp Frost, to nip and kill the Bud of their Hopes of Grace, and great expectation.

7. Let us come upon them when they seem secure, flourishing in the midst of Peace, Plenty and Prosperity; for that way we destroy'd the Children of Israel when they came into the Land of Canaan, and Thousands more in every Nation.

8. 'Tis good to assault them before they have learnt the crafty use of their Arms; an unexpe-rienced Soldier is soon brought under.

9. We must be sure to come upon them in the Night of God's Withdrawings: When their General is absent, let us be present; when he hides his face, we will soon shew our Heads 10. Lastly At their dying Hour; for if we, cannot do our work before, let us strive to do, it then for this is the last Cast for the Game:
Now, or ever.

11. We must use our utmost Craft in managing our Assaults: Therefore,
Let us find out their Natural Inclinations and Dispositions: there's one Sin or another that easily besets them; and where the Walls of the City are weakest we must raise our Batteries: Thou may'st get in at one place when thou canst not at another. I need say no more; observe this well.

As need shall require hang our false Colours and pretend to be as much for real Sanctity, as best of them; but when all's done, cause them to rely upon it; for this way they'll become over-rigeteous, and so destroy themselves.

We must continually get intelligence of their Affairs: Let our Eyes be upon them at home or abroad; so that nothing may be wanting on our Parts at any Occasion, to help on their Commission of Evil or Omission of Good; That which seems a Mole-hill in the way of their Duty let us make a Mountain; if we can keep them from their Temple, we may soon bring them to our Synagogue.

Let us make our Approaches gradually; we must not ask too much at first; a few may be let into the City when a great Army cannot; thou may'st perswade them to go with that a Mile or two though not to the End of thy Journey; shew them first the Object, and afterwards tempt them to Desire; thou may'st get in thy Foot where thou canst not get in thy Head.

We must (if possible) unarm them ever; take away their Sword, though we cannot their Sheild that they may not wound our Friends, tho' we cannot slay 'em. Our Babylonian Army

Armis
Armies are excellent Artists at this sort of Fighting; if they can but enter the City, they'll soon rid their Hands of this Weapon, so that they shall never cut their Fingers more with it; in the mean time, we must render it insufficient, or blunt the Edge as much as may be, and magnify the Light within, or unwritten Traditions above it, that it may do the less Mischief.

6. Let us sometimes retreat in policy, when we are in a fair way to get the Victory. We unclean Spirits sometimes seem to go out of Men, when our Design is to return seven times stronger than before; if thou canst but persuade them to love thee, I amcontent they should in part leave thee; for I had rather see thee in their Affections, than in their Conversations.

7. We must never raise our present Siege, till we have starved them; no better way to the World to deal with these Enemies, than to cut off Provisions, and other Recruits from coming to them.

8. Let us destroy (if possible) their bold Leaders who so oft rally out of the City upon us and either by Force or Flattery bring them to lay down their Arms, and then the rest will be afraid, when the Pillars fall, the House will follow.

91. Tis one great part of thy Work to endeavour to break their Ranks, and put them into Disorder; for then, thou wilt with ease conquer.

10. Also cause some of them to lag behind or stagger from their Colours, and not regard the sound of the Trumpet, neither call nor alarm for which will quickly become a Prey to us.

11. Bye
11. But above all things (if possible) spoil that plague Engine that maims us so fearfully (I mean Prayer and Fasting.) Let's do what we can to make that of little Use, or keep them ignorant of the damnable Hurt it hath done us; or blind their Eyes, that they may not know how to mount it upon the Wheels of Faith; or else quench the Spirit, which should give Fire to it.

12. Do all thou canst to forse them to Mutiny; if we can divide them, we shall soon devour them; and indeed, we have pretty well herein succeeded already.

III. We must make use of fit Instruments to carry on our Design against them.

1. We must employ Men of Parts and Policy, who have depth of Reason to argue them out of their Religion. A bad Cause needs a smooth Orator. Alexander the Copper-smith (of old) did me much good; I matter nor what harm a Paul sustaineth.

2. Let us set some grave, wise, and old Apostates to attack them; for hardly better Champions, nor truer Drudges have we to do this Service for us in all our Armies.

3. We must look out some rare Wise, that are well skilled in the Art of Calumniation, to load them with Reproach and Innuendo; to render them odious to the Vulgar, and thereby hinder others from siding with them; we have whereon Instruments of these Boys at hand.

4. Make use of a Husband, a Wife, Landlord, or such like Persons, to allure them from their Party; for they (doubtless) will have the greater Influence upon them, &c.

The hellish Lecture being ended, the Tyman hastened towards the City; but lo before his... very near, he chanced to hear one cry, Which is the way? and another, O how may I find the City of God?

At last this cursed Traveller told them he could direct them; For (said he) I often have been at this City, and know the way very well. But, instead of directing them into the right way, he set them in a broad Road, which at last brought them into the great City Babylon.

After him came another: but Apollyon cry'd, Let him go into the Town also; for I perceive he bears the World on his back, and hath a secret Love and Liking to thee too; 'tis only a troublesome Fellow, (one Conscience) that scar'd him to fly from the Wrath to come, or else the Fool would have a Name. &c. Tis somewhat of such a Nature that causes him to seek a Dwelling here; for his Will and Affections stands true and firm to us; and let me tell thee, he will a' er long, haste as fast out of this City, as now he seems to hasten into it; and then we shall gain by this Means exceedingly.

1. For if he deserts Religion, and lies out of the City of God, he will rejoice all our good Friends, and open their Mouths wide against all the Inhabitants of this Place: For he will make them conclude, and swear too, that all the rest are like him, v.z. Carnal and covetous Persons, and such who love the World above Christ.

2. If he returns back into the City Sensuality, he will thereby declare, That the Pleasures, Honours and Riches of this World are better things, and rather to be chosen, than whatsoever he could find in the City of God, or if he go into the City Babylon, it will be of like Importance to us and as much for our Advantage every way.

3. Moreover, by this Act of his we shall humble divers Souls who have thoughts to go thither, and utterly
The Progress of Sin: Or, ly Niffs their Convictions in respect of Duty and Obedience to the Laws and Statutes of that Place.

4. It will wound and grieve the Hearts of our Enemies, the Inhabitants I mean of Mount Zion.

6. It will also weaken their Hands too, and so make the Place the more easy to be taken for there is, (I must tell thee,) Multitudes of this sort got in among them, that I shall make the City too hot for; e'er I have done.

6. This will cause Religion also itself, to become very contemptible:

7. Her by he will (which is more than all,) dishonour God, and cause him to cast him off for ever.

8. And so we shall devour him, and all such as our Pleasure.

9. Also hereby he will wound his own Soul, and be set in the ready Road to Sin, the unpardonable Sin, which we cannot cause every one to commit.

10. And lastly, it will also greatly rejoice all us Devils, for we love to see Mankind guilty of our Sin, which was Apostasy, and to fall under our Condemnation: And indeed, there is nothing like this, makes them more conformable to our Image.

At the hearing of these things, the treacherous Monster let the Man go quietly in.

But behold, on a sudden, came another, who had an honest Heart, whose Name was Noah (a young Christian). But O how did he begin himself to block up his way; so that he was in a maze, and greatly feared he should never find the City, but whilst he was looking this way, and that way, seeing many crost Turnings, he saw three Men coming towards him. Now who those be, but True Godly, Theologues, with much noble and renowned Thoughtful, who were coming it seems, to direct poor Strangers the ready way. to the City of God? Now Godliness, perceiving the poor young Christian amazed, asked him what he ailed? Ah, Sir said he, I would fain go to Mount Zion, that holy City; and here is a Traveller that has so confounded me, that I cannot find the way to it; with that the heavenly Prince being full of holy Zeal, cast an angry Look upon the Enemy, and spoke to this Purpose: O, full of all Subtlety and all Mischief, thou Child of the Devil; thou Enemy of all Righteousness, wilt thou not cease to pervert the right Ways of God? I have heard of you in my Travels, and have I now met with you? I shall tell you News will make you tremble before I leave you.

Ungodli. Sir, you, seem very hot, and have not lost your Spirit I perceive; though you have met with no better Entertainment at aroad where you have been.

Godli. I thought how you would insult over me; you shew from whence you proceed: Sir, it has been through your deluding and ensnaring Wiles, that I have been so slighted: You and your hellish Master, have put me into such a Disguise, that most of the Inhabitants of the Earth do not know me; besides, you have put out all their Eyes, and fill'd their Hearts with bitter Enmity against me; but do not suppose I am therefore discouraged, or think the worse of my self; for I have met with so good Usage as my Master Christ did, when he lived here on the Earth. I do not doubt but you have met with Entertainment to your Master's Content.

Ungodli. 'Troot, Friend, thou say'st right, all the World is in love with me; and their Doors are wide open to me where-ever I come; and doth this grieve you?

Godli.
152  The Progress of Sin: Or,

Godli. It would be strange, should I rebuke you for swearing, and vain glorying; but do not wonder if I am troubled to hear of your great success in your soul-undoing travels.

Ungodli. You want a Cordial; the News I tell you, makes you sick; but why should not I be as true to the interest of my great Master, as you are to yours? Sir, I cannot do otherwise.

Godli. I know indeed, your nature is such that if you should cease serving Apolloyn, your hellish Prince and Sovereign, you would lose your very being; But this will not serve your turn.

Ungodli. I know not what you mean; but if you please, let us discourse a little about our travels; what's the reason I am so generally embraced, and you slighted?

Godli. I have given two reasons of it already; and for the sake of this poor young Christian that is by, I will discover other causes and grounds of it.

First, 'Tis because you seek in all your travels how to please and gratify the flesh, and I contrariwise teach them to crucify the flesh and keep it under, and make no provision for it to fulfill the lusts thereof.

2. You teach men to mind the good only of their bodies, and never regard their souls; but I tell them they must prefer the good and well being of their souls, a thousand times above any thing they judge may be for the delight or profit of the outward man; because 'tis worth more than all the world.

3. 'Tis because you, by the help from your master and their own deceitful hearts, have made Brutes of millions of them, as if they were created for no other end, than to please their sensual appetites.

4. 'Tis
4. Tis because the Presents you offer to them, agree and suit so well with their evil and depraved Natures, which can only favour such things, but my Dainties none can relish but by Faith, which only belongs to the New Creature.

4. 'Tis because your things are present things to be had and enjoyed now; but the best things that I offer them are not to be had till hereafter.

6. In a word, 'tis because you have so hardened their Hearts, and blinded their Minds by appearing to them in a Disguise, that they (Poor Creatures) generally take you to be a Friend, though the worst Enemy to them under the Heavens, designing nothing less than to destroy and damn their Souls for ever.

7. Lastly, 'Tis because the Blessed Sovereign, hath for Reasons best known to himself hid the things of which I speak, from the greatest part of Mankind, and only revealed them to a few.

Ugodli. I am glad you have no more to say, you Enemy of Hell; I see how odious you rend me; what I have done, I will still do, and under the same Disguise I have appeared. I will appear; and I have put you into Disguise too and could tell you, 'Fool, that this is one Reason you are entertained by no more; I have put you into a seditionous, factious, ignominious, contemptible and melancholy One; and in it I will keep you in spite of your Teeth, do your worst, Sir; I regard you not since I am beloved by Emperors and mighty Potentates of the Earth; I shall never be without Credit, and whilst I have so many wise and learned ones to plead for me and take my part, I warrant you I shall make your Company thin enough; if that won't do, you know I have another way to to deal with your Favourites; my Slaughtering Boys and Weapons are ready for them; and tho' you think 'tis like to get this Younger out of my Clutches, you will find your Self mistaken; for I, in the Face of you and and your two Champions, will shew you some of my Skill.

Godli. Silence your blasphemous Tongue, I will try a Bout with you, and it shall cost me my Life, and the Life of my two Servants, but we will safely conduct this honest Soul to the City of God.

Ungodli. Hey Boys up go We, By mighty Bêzêbec I'll tot then; come doubtful Soul, be wise and venture no farther; do no you see how many crost Ways and Turnings there be? &c.

Nep. I am at a Loss indeed; but I hate you, for what I have heard now from you.

Godli. Child, here is a blessed Directory for the that shews thee the way plainly; (With that he put a Bible into his Hand) and Th'o, opened the Meaning, and gave him the true Sense of it, so that he plainly saw, that the way more generally, was Christ himself as Mediator. 1. As a Priest to die for him, to appease the Wrath of God, and satisfy Justice. 2. As a King, to subdue the Tyrant Sin, and to rule in him, and reign over him according to those holy and wholesome Laws and Ordinances contained in that Book, (which he held in his Hand). 3. As a Prophet, to teach and instruct him. 4. As a holy Example or Pattern, to imitate and follow. But more particularly, he shewed the way into the City was by Faith alone; that he rejoiced, and praised God.

Ungodli. Do you rejoice, Friend? I will tell you, your Danger is great, if you go further for there are mighty Armies coming against you.

Ungodli. Do you rejoice, Friend? I will tell you, your Danger is great, if you go further for there are mighty Armies coming against you.

City. Though you think all your Danger is over in your Isle; alas I have many Thousands of Brave Romish Boys ready, my Papish Schools and Seminaries are not few; warmes of Priests and Jesuits are now in London, waiting the good hour, nor do they fear, though they are discovered and threatened; for they have more mighty Lords on their Side than most dream of, you know not what is near.

Godli. Regard not what he says, we have a good God on our Side, and a gracious King, and a watchful Parliament: Besides, their fresh Designs are discovered, and the Time of Babylon's Fall is at the Door; they and such that side with them are but digging a Pit; into which they shall suddenly fall, but let it go as it will.

Godli. Do not regard him in this thing. Who can harm thee, if thou be a Follower of that which is Good? They cannot take away thy God, thy Christ, nor thy Peace from thee. Do not fear; for God hath promised to be a Wall of Fire round about thee, Zech. 2:5.

Neop. Come Sir, let's go.

Ungodli. Go? you are not mad, are you. Some Thousands of People have deserted the City; and is this a Time o' go thither?

Godli. It was so be ause they were never quite out of Love with this vile Enemy nor thoroughly converted; but herek because Dan as leaves this City, must St. Paul do so too? Or because many forsook Christ, and walked no more with him shall his holy Apostles forsake him? Or because the greatest part of the World go in at the broad Gate, wilt not thou go in at the Straight?

Neop. God forbid, Sir, this Traveller is, I see, a Deceiver.

Ungodli.
The Progress of Sin: Or,

Ungodli. Do not abuse me. I am thy Friend, and would have thee pity thy self; for this City no man regardeth.

Godli. You are his Enemy and a Murderer, Poor Soul, this is the same that was said of Zion of old Time.

Ungodli. Thy Laws and Ordinances, Friend, are very hard and difficult to keep.

Godli. They are hard indeed to the Flesh, yet to the Spirit very sweet and easy, and not grievous, as the Apostle testifieth; nor to the Flesh so hard neither, as was the Service and Work Jesus Christ performed for thy sake; for, by them is thy Servant warned, and in keeping of them there's great Reward.

Ungodli. There is Salvation to be had, So without the Walls of this City.

Godli. There is no promise of Salvation made to those who sin against their Light, willingly refuse to follow Christ: The promise runs to the obedient Soul, to them that obey him, to them that keep his Commandments; besides, without are Dogs, Sorcerers, Whoremongers, Murderers, and whatsoever lovesth and maketh a Lye. Rev. 22.

Ungodli. Come, say what you will, they are mean, and despicable people who are within City; how many noble, wise, and mighty after the Flesh have their Habitations there?

Godli. Thus the Jews said of old, Have of the Rulers or the Pharisees believed on but this People, who know not the Law cursed. John 7. 47 48 49.

Tho' they are outwardly poor, many of them, they are inwardly rich; poor in Temporals, rich in Spirituals; but heark, hath not God sent he poor of this World rich in Faith, Rich the Kingdom, which he hath promised to them that love him? James 2. 5. Besides, there are some rich and honourable, and have been in all Ages, who dwell in this City: St. Paul doth not say, Not any mighty or noble are called, 'chose he saith, Not many. & 1 Cor. 1, 26.

Ungodli. The greatest part of the World value other Cities far above it.

Godli. The whole World is said to live in Wickedness, and the greatest part of it are deceived by this cunning Imposter, and hence it is they love Darkness rather than Light; 'The Way is Narrow, and the Gate Straight that leadeth unto Life, and few there be that find it.

Ungodli. Alas, the Inhabitants are at Variance, the City is divided, and they love not one another.

Godli. I must confess, now thou hast hit it; this is too true, but what tho', When was the true Church without Divisions? Was it not so with the Corinthians?

Ungodli. Say what you please, they are all but a Company of Schismatics and vile Heretics.

Godli. Soul, regard him not; the Papists always after this manner charged the Saints and Servants of God, because they left their polluted Synagogue: 'Tis one thing to be accused thus, for leaving the True Religion, and Church of God; and another thing, to bear this Brand, for forsaking and separating from a false Faith and Church; for all true Protestants ever affirmed and maintained the Church of Rome to be. After that way you call Hereby, so I teach Men to worship the God of their Fathers, &c.

Ungodli. Come, come Friend, if you will be adventurous to go to this City, you will not be able to abide there long; and if you subject to Gospel Gospel Ordinances, and become a Citizen of Zion and afterwards fall away, and desert the Place your State will be sad; for then you will not only bring up an evil Report upon the City, but also must perish for ever; for there will remain for you no more Sacrifices for Sin.

Godli. Let not this frighten thee, poor Soul, for God hath promised to put his Fear so into thy Heart, that thou shalt not depart from him; the Covenant is an everlasting one, ordered in Things, and sure, and whom he loves, he loveth to the end, &c. The very same whom he calleth also justifies, and them whom he justifies, them he glorifies. Christ gives to all his Sheep eternal Life, and none of them shall perish, nor can an pluck them out of his Hand.

Ungodli. Friend, you are a vile Sinner, and not worthy to have a Dwelling in the City of God for the Truth is, 'tis a lovely Place, and too good and honourable for such as you are.

Godli. What a Serpent is here? One while it is a bad City, and not worth Regard, and was not; and now 'tis so good, he would persuade thee thou art not worthy to have a Dwelling in it; suppose it should be so, wilt thou therefore refuse to go thither?

Ungodli. If thou flipp'st one Step further, I raise all the Forces of Hell upon thee, my Arm are approaching to my Assistance: What if thou, wilt thou submit thy self to my March and be subject to my Authority?

Now. Blessed be God, I fear thee not; I found out this Day mine Enemy; Though, O the Devil, do'lt begin to threaten me? I am self conquered, but not by the Force of the Core, holy Prince and Brethren, let Mount Zion, 'tis the City of my Father, of whom glorious things are spoken. O how I long to be there. Pray let us be gone. Then they all four fell a singing of Psalms of Praise and Thanksgiving to God, which the grim Monster perceiving began to rage fearfully, but True Godliness seeing what rage he was in, called to him, and told him he had sad News to acquaint him with.

Ungodli. What is that?

Godli. What? for certain there is a Warrant signed and seal'd, and already gone out against you to apprehend you, and bring you to the Judgment Seat.

Ungodli. Who shall try me?

Godli. You shall hear that ere long.

Ungodli. A pretty Story

Immediately all the Powers of Hell vanished, in great Disorder; and the three Noble Worthies with the Heavenly Prince (True Godliness) went on with much Joy, and got all safe into the holy City of which I shall give you a brief Description.

CHAP. X.

A Compendious Description of Mount Zion, the City of God, that is besieged by the Powers of Darkness, together with the Reasons why it holds out still.

First, as to its Situation, 'tis very beautiful, being built upon that firm and everlasting Rock, Jesus Christ.

As to the Laws and Statutes of it they are all contained in Christ's New Testament; the Holy Scripture being the great Magna Charta of the Church.
The Progress of Sin: Or,

As touching the Government of it, the Lord Jesus is the Chief or Suprem Ruler, Judge, and Lawgiver, of this Spiritual Corporation, and under him are Bishops and Deacons, &c., who are appointed by him to administer Justice and Righteousness to all its Inhabitants.

The Trade or Merchandize of it is better than the Merchandize of Gold, &c., They deal in one and the same Commodities, fetch their Riches from afar, where their blessed Correspondent Jesus Christ is, and makes them glorious and quick Returns. They deal not in any prohibited, counterfeit, nor corruptible Goods.

As to the Nature of this City's Commodities, they are of a Soul-enriching Nature, that worth not to be valued.

1. The Truth, which is the first that is offered to Falle, whilst the Marketh lafteth which they indeed will end e'er long. Buy the Truth therefore, and sell it not.

2. The second Commodity is, 'The Gifts of the Graces of the Spirit.'

3. The Pearl of great Price, 'worth ten Thousand Worlds.'

4. Now, as the Trade and Commerce of the City lies principally in Merchandize fetched from afar, so there is also a glorious River which runs through every Street, which is Navigable, means of which all those glorious Commodities are conveyed to it, whereby the City is wonderfully enriched: Now this River proceeds from the Throne of God and the Lamb, and is as the Crystal; the Nature also of the Water thereof admirable.

As touching the Privileges, Franchises, and Immunities of this Spiritual City, as they are so they are good.
The Travels of Ungodliness. 161

1. Freedom from Sin, i.e. from the Guilt, Filth, Power, and Punishment thereof, which comprehends Pardon of all Iniquity. This Freedom cost dear; no less than the Price of Christ's most precious Blood. Also, 'tis a sealed Freedom, sealed by the holy Spirit. Thirdly, 'tis a lasting Freedom, never to be revoked by the Giver, nor forfeited by the Receiver; I will remember ye or Sins no more.

2. Privilege, is Union with God.

3. Justification

4. Sanification.

5. Adoption.

6. Acceptation.

8. Communion with the Father and the Son.

9. Fellowship with Saints.

12. A glorious Habitation in this City.

13. Divine Protection as sure Refuge in God.

14. A Right to the City Stock, which is the unspeakable Riches of Christ.

15. Among many other things respecting the City Stock, these three are comprehended.

1. A Right to all the Prayers made there.

2. To the Promises that belong to it.

3. The Stock or Store of Spiritual Provision, laid up in it, God having said, He will satisfie his Poor with Bread.

16. Liberty, or a proper Right to come and drink of, and walk in, and have all other Blessings of the River mentioned before.

17. A right of Voice in choosing all sorts of Offices.

18. The Benefit of the City-Guard, which are an innumerable Host of Angels.

20. Lastly, When they die, to go to Christ, or to have a dwelling Place with the Glorified Saints above.

But let this be premised, That none but true Citizens are to have these Privileges. If any get in by Policy, whose Hearts are not right with God, let such know, they have no right in these Matters.

Now, the Reason why this City holds out, notwithstanding 'tis, and has been long besieged by H
The Progress of Sin: Or,
these mighty Armies, who seem to come up on the breadth of the Earth against it, is,
1. Because, though it be but a little City (comparatively to the City Sodality and Great Babylon) yet 'tis a strong City, being (as you have heard) built upon a Rock, and the Throne of God, and the Lamb is in it, God dwelleth in Zion, sing praises; 'tis the Habitation of his Holiness.
2. Also, in it is a strong Tower, which is the Name of the Lord; and this Tower is furnished with glorious Artillery, and other Military Engines of War, to keep off and destroy the Assaults; for from hence the Almighty distributeth Death, Pestilence and Famine, by which he makes dreadful Desolation and Havock amongst the proud Enemies, and all graceless Rebels that come against it; the murdering Cannon never roar'd out more Horror and Amazement to Mortals, than doth the Wrath and Vengeance of an incensed God from hence, upon all the Powers of Darkness; he has his Hall-stones, and amazing Thunder, with Coals of Fire and dreadful Arrows, which he now and then lets fly like Lightning, to make the Inhabitants of the Earth to tremble. Oh, this is the place of Security in the Day of Trouble, and Woe to all them that fight against Mount Zion: Doth any think they can prevail against this Place? he may indeed tread down the outward Courts; but the Princes is The gates of hell shall never prevail against the Church.
Yet nevertheless, Sin, that bloody Traveller, who he lately received a great Blow by True Godliness, and lost his Prey, being forc'd to retreat in much Des-order, did not desist his sullen Enterprize against this Town Religion, or the City of God; but was de-solved to try what he could do in a Convocation, way, in order to the Spoiling and ruining of the Inhabitants thereof; which to effect, he set up

The Travels of Ungodliness. 163

makes up to the Walls, and having Information from his Master Apollyon, that the Porter, who had the Charge of one of the Gates, was off his Watch, he hafted up too see if he could not get in theretof; the Name of the Porter, is the Fear of God; and by Means he got in part of those Armies that were headed by Lucifer, Belzebub and Apollyon, which were made up (as you heard) of the Lust of the Flesh, the Lusts of the Eyes, and Pride of Life; by which Means many within the Town were overcome by Covetousness, Pride, Vain-Glory, and Sensual Pleasures; and these being overcome by Surfeiting and Drunkenness, greatly weakened the Place, and brought it into contempt abroad, opening the Mouths of the Ungodly wide against it; who positively asserted, the Inhabitants were as worldly, proud, and carnal, as those of other Cities.

2. He also prevailed another way, through the Treachery of one Mrs. Heart, who, like a cursed Incendiary, wrought much Mischief amongst them, and basely corrupted Multitudes of them, by lodging one Hypocrite in their Houses, a notorious Villain, as most in the World.

3. He got sine into the City by the Means of a beggarly Rascal, called Slight, alias Security, alias Idleness, who took many of them off from their Duty; these much pleased themselves with the bare Name of Religion and Christianity, crying out, The Temple of the Lord, the Temple of the Lord, &c. and yet were great Strangers to the Life and Power of Godliness, having Lamps, and but little Oil. Alas how should it be otherwise? For they were so base-ly drawn aside, and deceived by Sin, that they neglected their Business, and not with that Care and Diligence, as became them, followed their Trade; and hereby they grew very poor and low in Grace and spiritual Experiences.
And I think it may not be amiss to shew you here, how Sloth, Security, and Idleness, &c. brought this Poverty upon them.

1. It was by causing them to be much abroad finding Faults in others, when they should have been at home.

2. By causing them to neglect attending the Exchange-time; I mean the solemn Meetings of the Citizens in the temple where God is worshiped, and Knowledge may be had how their Affairs go in Heaven, and also how by putting off (in a lively and cheerful manner) their Duties, so that they might have glorious Returns of God's Mercies.

3. By not keeping their Books or Accompits carefully, that so they might know whether they got or lost; and hence many of them were ignorant how things stood between God and their poor Souls.

Nay, and Pecatum found out other ways to plague and spoil the City, by enticing Mrs. Heart to let in amongst them one Unbelief, alias, Distrust; who persuaded many not to venture much Goods on Shipboard, failing being formerly dangerous, and many still drive a poor, petty, private Trade.

Moreover, this homebred Enemy Unbelief, caused some of them to depart from God, and to doubt of his Faithfulness; by which Means, their hands were greatly weakened, and the Enemy prevailed exceedingly.

Also, he surprized some of the Watchmen, filling their hearts with many sad Thoughts, by bringing one upon them, call'd Perverse Fear; who made them too much neglect their Duties, and not maintain their Ground, nor give warning of the approaching Danger the City was in.

He did much Mischief to the City, by disturbing the Inhabitants, or causing of sad Animous.
The Travels of Ungodliness. 165

Divisions amongst them, and thereby alienated their Affections one from another; nay, and some of them were prevailed with to Trade with the City Babylon for a parcel of her detestable Traditions; and some others were enticed by the Lust of the Eyes, to deal with the City Sensuality for some of her abominable Fashions.

Also, divers, who were look’d upon as brave Champions, were secretly and cowardly slain by him; and others were seized and carried away Captive, who fell’d our upon the Enemy.

So that (in a Word) by one means or another (by the Help of Apollem) be greatly succeeded in his Design upon the Holy City: But nothing injures the City more than those pernicious Principles, Errors, and Heresies which now so much abound; the true ancient Orthodox Doctrine about Justification being sadly corrupted by Baxterian Notions on the one hand, and Antinomian Notions on the other Hand, together with the sad Decay of the Life and Power of Religion and true Practical Godliness. Besides the Death of many of the most Pious and Renowned Ministers, whose Deaths is feared is a sad Presage of approaching Miseries, and but little laid to Heart.

CHAP. XI.

Showing how Ungodliness took a Voyage to Sea, and of the Danger he had like to have sustained.

The Evil Enemy of Mankind, and restless Traveller, having strangely prevailed both upon the Saint and Sinner, and almost ruined every City and Kingdom of the Earth; was at last resolved to take a Voyage to Sea, and endeavour to conquer.
The Progress of Sin: Or,

all those who do Business in the mighty Deep: And no sooner he desired to enter himself a Shipboard, but all were ready to receive him; the Captain or Master of the Ship embraced him, and let him lie in his Bosom, who learned of him to Tyrannize over the poor Seamen, and pinch them of their Allowance; and abate them of their Wages, by pretending Damage sustained, when indeed there was none through them; and yet every Seaman hugged him also, who taught them to curse, swear, drink, whore, and what not; so that he soon almost obtain'd a perfect Conquest over them all, whether Men of War, or Merchants Ships. But lo on a sudden, a mighty Storm arose, and the Mariners were sore afraid, fearing this Traveller was the Cause of it; upon which poor Conscience began to cry out; for he lay very heavy in the midst of this great Danger upon him, so that they resolved to cast him overboard, though Affections would not yield to it, for they loved him dearly: But the Storm increasing, out they cast him, and now poor Godliness was praised as the only Companion: But it seems, over a little time the Sea became very calm, which they no sooner perceived, but left off praying, and took up Ungodliness again, and entertained him with as much Joy as ever; insomuch, that he now saw he had succeeded in every Enterprise, both by Sea and Land, which to heighten and raised his Spirit, that he broke forth into an amazing haughty and Soul frightening Triumph, to the Effect following.

Ecclesiastes, alias, Ungodliness, by this time receyving how wonderfully he had prevailed that there was no Place where-ever he came, marke

one meansor other he got Entertainment, being made the only Joy and Darling of the greatest part of the whole World, all bowing and bending ro him, and wi-lingly becoming his Slaves and Vassals, brake forth into a Vain-glorious Triumph, after this manner:

O how I am exalted, who is like unto me or may be compared with me in the whole Universe How like a low Shrub and contemptible Fellow doth True Godliness look, he is glad to trudge on Foot, when I am mounted on Horseback, whilst Thousands found their Trumpets before me and behold what renounned Emperors and mighty Potentates do follow me in Chains and Fetters, as amazing Trophies of my All conquering Arm. Godliness rejoices when he can subdue here and there two or three Souls and they too are but part of the Refuse of the Earth; but I, mighty I, overcome Millions, nay subdue Thousands in an hour, and those of all sorts: And tho' I use them at my pleasure, put out their Eyes, and make them grind at my Mill, and do the Devil's Drudgery; yet behold, how contented and well-pleased the Fools are, they hang upon me hug me, cleve to me, and by no means can the powers above allure them to leave me; the Thoughts of forsaking me, and losing my sweet Company, is as bad, nay worse, than Death to them; do you think they have no more Wit, than for the Vanity of a Pardon, or Trifle of inward Peace, or Joys of Heaven, to forgo the wonderful Glories, Riches, and Pleasures I offer them on Earth.

But alas, why talk I thus? I do not only make them happy here, as far as the Flesh, World, and Devil can do it; but promise them Bliss also in Eternity, whenever they die; on easier Terms to than any Body else will, I am sure. If they will believe me, let them be as wicked as I or Hell can make them, and continue so too untill Death feiz

And upon this, there was a dreadful Noise heard and terrible Lightning flash forth in his very Face. Also, the Rocks, and Mountains seemed to shake, and cleave asunder; so that the Monster began to tremble and cry out, Lord Belzebub, what's the Matter?

Belzebub. I cannot tell; something more than usual.

With that, he suddenly heard one cry like God's Vengeance; Seize him; seize him! Lay hold on the Monster of Pollution, cursed Sin, and bring him to the Judgment Seat?

Upon this, all were silent, and the Devils whisper'd Peccatum in the Ear, to be gone with all speed; and on a sudden, he fled away so swiftly, that before the Officers came to apprehend him, he hid himself.

CHAP. XIII.

Wherein you have a Hue and Cry after Tyrant Sin. Also, who they are that pursue him: Together, with the manner of his Apprehension, Arraignment, Tryal, Sentence, and Condemnation.

Now we shall proceed with what speed we can towards his Tryal: But he, being already alarm'd with the News of it, got away, and hid himself, in some or all those Houses where he had been entertained. Therefore, the great and mighty Jehovah (if I may with Reverence speak it) orders a Hue-and-Cry to be issued out, to apprehend him; to the end he may be brought to a legal Tryal.

Now the High-Constable, that hath received the Hue-and-Cry, is Divine Providence.
The Travels of Ungodliness. 169

And for the more easie finding him out, there were three other Worthies, in the King's Name, wasn'd to assist him, viz.

Theologe, Christ's Minister, with his Sword drawn in his Hand.
The Operation of the Spirit: And, Enlightened Conference.
The Proclamation, or Hue-and-Cry, was to this Effect:

These are to will and require, and strictly to command You, in the great and dreadful Name of the incensed Majesty of Heaven and Earth, King of Kings, and Lord of Lords, to search diligently, or find out, and forthwith seize, and apprehend that notorious, traiterous and blasphemous Monster, called Peccatum, alias Sin, alias, Ungodliness, alias Iniquity, alias Transgression, &c. who hath been travelling up and down from Place to Place, from Country to Country, from Town to Town, from Family to Family, and from one Person to another, breaking all the good Laws of God, Nature and Nations, and by secret Wiles and diabolical Devices, and subtile Insinuations, hath deceived, undone, and eternally destroyed many Millions of Souls. Astouching his Person, his Name sufficiently describes him: He is a strange Monster, transforming himself into almost what Shapes he pleases: Sometimes appearing like a Lion, sometimes like a Dove, &c. but most commonly like a Serpent, with a Sting at his Tail, and the Terrestrial Globe in his Hand; which signifies the Pleasures, Honours, and Riches of the World, which he offers as a Bait, to catch or beguile his Prey.

Now, upon the Hue-and-cry, there are large and wonderful Promises made to all such that would fully, readily, and heartily discover him; and, on the other hand, there are most dreadful Threats of Wrath, and eternal Punishment denounced to all who shall willingly or wittingly hide him, or
The Pride of Sin: Or, not ingeniously confess him, and yield him up into the Hands of Justice.

Upon which, the High-Constable, Divine Providence, with his Attendants, went forth to search out, and apprehend the cursed Traveller, and implacable Enemy of God. But O the Subtility he used to blind the Eyes of poor Mortals! for lo, every suspicious House is now searched, where he had been entertained; some of which I shall here mention, with the strange Devices they used to conceal him: every one almost having got a Cloak ready to cover him.

The first Place they searched was Yorkshire; and the Cry was, Is there none here have entertained Sin, that horrid Enemy of God? Immediately the Loges knock'd at one Door, and at another Door, where hectoring Gallants lived, and demanded if they had not let him into their Houses, (viz. their Hearts) and made him their Companions, hugging him in their Bosoms, and letting him rule; and I swear the Scepter over them? No God forbid, said one, Far be it from me, says another: What I harbour God's Enemy Do you think I am such a Villian?

Now Conscience being a sleep in these Houses, or otherwise stiffed, none of them would confess him; nor will they (tis fear'd) till Divine Providence comes to search for him on his black, pale or red Horse of Blood, Famine, Pestilence, and Death, and then they must expect no Mercy.

After this, the Hue and Cry came into the Town of Ritches, and the Traveller was searched for under the Name of Cowtonseis; but here was not one that knew him: Nay, so far they were from giving him Entertainment, that they cried out against him with open Mouth, calling him a vile and cursed Enemy; but in the mean time, they hid him under the Cloak of Thirstiness and good Husband.
The Travels of Ungodliness. 171

The next Place they searched, was the House of Mrs Gray-Cleath, alias, Haughty-Heart, for the cursed Traveller, under the Name of Pride; but she deny'd him, or that she had any Love for him; tho', (faith she) May be, sometimes he may like a bold Villian, rush into my Company. And farther, to hide and conceal him, and make Excuses for him, she said, That her new Fashions were very comely; and God having given her a fair and beautiful Skin Why might she not shew it by her Naked Breasts and Shoulders, &c. And truly, for these Bulls; Towers, Shades, Curlings and Crispings, with rich Rings and Jewels, &c. we think they are very neat, handsome, and pretty Things, and harmless no doubt; for the Pride you speak of, lies not in the Mode or Fashion, but in the Heart. Besides, God (faith she) you cannot deny, doth allow many things for Ornament.

Theolo. Madam, I fear, notwithstanding all your plausible Stories, and neat Allegations, we shall find the Traveller hid in your House, not only under the Name of Pride but by several Names besides.

For if Pride, Impudence and Uncleanness too, are not lurking within, you do very foolishly to hang out the Signs of them. Tertullian says, That Nakedness of the Breast is Adultery; and tho' it is possible such as go so, may be honest, yet but few that see them will believe it.

What have you, Madam, to say for yourself? Is this the modest Apparel the Apostle will eth Women that profess Godliness, to go in? Doth this Mode become Christians? Conscience, I will appeals to thee; is not Pride lodged in this Gentlewoman's House?

Conscience. Sir, Here he is also.

Theologe, Commit her, and the Tyrant with her that they may both appear at the Day of Trial
Legalist's House was search'd, and there he was hid under the plain Cloak of Self-righteousness.

Mr. Erroneous's House of the Town of Hereafter was search'd, and there Sin was found hid under the plain Cloak of Yes and Nay, with pretended Zeal and seeming Sanctity.

Besides these, every Town, City, Village, and House was search'd, where-ever he had been entertain'd.

But because I shall not have room, the Press calling upon me to abbreviate, I must say no more as to his Apprehension he being in the chief Constables' hand; we shall haste to his Trial: For hark the Trumpets sound already, and the Judge is just gone to the Bench.

The Jury summon'd were these following:

Immediately after the Jury was impannell'd and the Commission opened, the Charge given, &c. the Prisoner was call'd to the Bar, and his Indictment was Read; which run to this Effect.

SIN, Thou Monster of Iniquity, hold up thy Hand; thou art here indicted by the Name of Peccatum, alias Sin, Transgression, Iniquity, Hereafter, Idolatry, Unbelief, Adultery, (and by a Multitude of Names besides) That thou being the Child of the Devil, an Enemy to all Righteousness, hast traitorously conspired with Apollon, against the God of Heaven, and mortally wounded the whole Race of Mankind as soon as ever thou camest into the World; and since, like a most Barbarous and B'ordy Tyrant, hast gone ranging and roaring up and down, committing all the horrid fearful Crimes and Villanies that the Heart of Man can imagine; so that in a Word, thou art here indicted for, and charged with all, and all Sorts of Treasons, Murders, Massacres, Idolatries, Hereafter, Incests, Sodomies, Adulteries, Piracies, Blasphemies, Wars, Desolations, &c. to the utter Destruction.
Destruction of the Bodis and Souls of millions of Men, Women and Children, contrary to the Peacean great Dishonour of the Sacred Majesty of the King of Heaven and Earth, What sayst thou Guilty or not?

Clerk Sin, What dost thou say Guilty or not? Guilty, Sin, Not Guilty.

Cryer. Call Adam, late of Paradise.

Here he is, my Lord.

Judge Come, old Father, What can you say ag gainst Sin, the Prisoner at the Bar?

Adam. My Lord, I have this to say:

First, That he made me become a Rebel and Tra

tor to the Kings Majesty, my most glorious Sove reign, and ever-blessed Creator: For tho' it is true,

Apollon did first entice me by his Subtilty to rebel;
yet, had it not been for this foul Monster, he could have done me Hurt. 'Twas Sin, my Lord that overcame me, and caused me to break that Law of my Creator, and so to set up, believe, and subject to the Devil, rather than God; yea, it was for his fake that I was turn'd out of Paradise.

Cryer. Call Mrs. Soul of Man-shire.

Soul. Here my Lord.

Judge What can you say, most noble Lady, against Sin, the Prisoner at the Bar?

Soul. My Lord I was at first the fairest and beaut fullest Virgin that ever had a Being on Earth, and was the praise of Gods Creational, in whom his ow

Image most gloriously shone forth: But this heathen and bloody Villian the Prisoner at the Bar, secretly stole upon me and in a shameful manner defiled me, and not only so, but put out my Eyes, and wendid me in a barbarous manner in every Part, and turn a rotten and filthy Monster, I was poisioned by him; that I am now covered all over with corrup tion. Nay my Lord, he deprived me of the and Light of Gods sweet Countenance, which I enjoy'd; so that I lie as one dead in the Arms of this polluted Monster.

Cryer. Mr. Body of Man-shire --- He appeare'd.

Judge. What can you say, Mr. Body, against Sin, the Prisoner at the Bar?

Body. I was once a very lovely Creature, none exceeded me in God's neither Creation, save that gracious Lady (and Companion of Mine) who spoke last; I had no blemish in me, I was in a perfect State, and needed nothing to make me happy; But lo, on a sudden this Villain, the Prisoner at the Bar by his helish Subtility, overcame poor Lady Soul who dwelt with me; and presently, next robberpoor I went to the Wall: For he brought in upon me a whole Army of evil Humours, which so corrupted my Blood, &c. that I am invaded, and continually plagued with all Manner of Diseases as Convulsions, Small-Pox, &c.

Cryer. Call While Creation. Here he is.

Judge. Who can you say against Sin?

Creation. My Ground that was made good is now by him become barren and unfruitful: Nay for his sake, my great Creator hath cur'd me so, that I bring forth Briars and Thorns, and many other hurtful and venomous creatures.

Judge. Alas, poor Creation I pity thee. O, cruel Tyrant! But it will not be long e'er thou art deliver'd from the Bondage of corruption, into the glorious Liberty of the children of God.

Cryer. Call holy Decalogue of Mount Sinai.

Here my Lord.

Judge. What can you say, renowned Decalogue against Sin, the Prisoner at the bar?

Decal. Most Sacred Judge, I am (as you know) that holy and just Law which Jehovah gave forth to strain and curb this cursed Traitor; but he has in fearful manner torn, broke, and wickedly vi me in every Part and Branch of me. And the short, is what (my Lord) I have to say.

Cryer. Call Mr. Evangelist.
Mr. Evangelist. What can you say, against Sin?
Evan. My Lord, my Heart sinks in me, to see him; but I am glad he is brought to his Tryal.
Judge. Why, what's the matter; whathath he done
Evan. Done! He hath by wicked Hands crucified and slain the Lord of Life and Glory.
Upon this, many were in amaze; Lord, says one, what a Malefactor have we here?
Cryer. Call in the King's Daughter, the blessed Spouse of the Lamb: Come in o the Cour.
She appeared in her mourning Garments, yet all glorious within, and her Cloathing was wrought Gold Judge. What can you say? most virtuous Lady, against Sin. the Prisoner at the Bar.
King's Daughter. My Lord, I have many things to witness against him. First, He did what lay in him to hinder my being espoused to Jesus Christ, my Lord and glorious Husband. Secondly No sooner, at any time, that I have brought forth any Child of the New Covenant, but he with an open Mouth seeks to devour it; and if he cannot do that, he labours to spoil its Growth, and deface its Beauty.
But my Lord, it is impossible I should now recite the hundredth part of what I have to charge him with. But here is a credible Gentleman in the Court, call'd Antient and modern Records, who can make out much more against him, than what I have said.
Judge. Poor Zion, I pity thy Condition; but do not be discouraged, his Time is but short.
Cryer. Mr. Antient and modern Records, of the Country of Humane. Here.
Judge Come Sir, What is that you can testify against Sin, &c?
Antient Records. Waggoners, whip on.
Judge What do you mean; is this a fit Answer for one of your Years in such a Place?
Antients. Most reverend Judge, I have here at hand more than a hundred Waggon loads of Books, which are
The Progress of Sin: Or,

are of good Credit: that are filled full of the horrid Deeds of this bloody Villian at the Bar, if you will be pleased to have them read.

Judge. That is impossible to be done now, tis a Work for many Years, and you must repeat some Particulars. Mr. Ancient, &c. My Reader can do it my Lord, whose Name is Historian.

Cryer Historian. Come into the Court. His Here
Judge. What have you to say against Sin the Prisoner at the Bar? Friend, you must be brief in your Evidence.

Hifor My Lord, I have read much of Mr. Ancient and Modern's Testimony; I mean, the Writings of worthy Men, who lived in several Ages of the World, whose Credit and Authority is generally received by all; and there I find such an Account given of the Acts, Deeds, and Cruelties of this Enemy at the Bar, that would make a Man tremble to think of: For he hath caused most horrid Treasons, Plots, Conspiracies, Rebellions, Wars, &c. Setting one Kingdom against another, Neighbour against Neighbour, the Father against the Son, and the Son against the Father;
yea he hath filled the whole Earth with all manner of filth, cursed debauchery, blood and violence, per-ing, cheating, deceiving, and destroying both Body and Soul too, hath been I find, all his Practice; for that he hath not only been a Plague to the Church, but also the whole World. I could give you a more particlar Account, if your Lordship please to hear it.

Judge. No Mr. Historian. you have said enough.

Here my Lord

Judge. Sir, you are summoned hither to your Testimony against Sin; pray therefore, what Evils you know he hath done, or is to whether they are Treasons, Murders, Robes.

Theol. My Lord, That I am ready to do.

First, I shall proceed in a different manner (my Evidence against him) to those worthy who have been already called,
The Travels of Ungodliness.

My Lord, he is so vile and evil that there is no good in him; he is the Plague of Plagues; we had, or better God should let in upon us Famine, Pestilence and Sword, &c. than, to give us up to the Tyranny of Sin. Judge, I thank you good Mr. Theogue, you have said enough.

Cryer. Call Madam Grace, and all her Daughters Faith, Hope, Charity, Patience, Prudence, Temperance, Obedience, Chastity, &c.

Here, my Lord, we are all.

Judge. Come Virtuous Lady, what can you say against the Prisoner at the Bar?

Grace. My Lord, I am of a noble Descent and Parentage, being begotten and born from above; but his Villain, as much as lay in him, endeavored to hinder both my Conception and Nativity.

Here, my Lord, we are all.

Judge. Most Precious Faith, What have you to say? Faith. This Villain, hath made me contemptible, as if I were of no higher Pedigree than of human Extraction, or begotten of refined Nature; and made me so feeble and weak, that I can scarce go alone; it lies so heavy upon me, that I can hardly look up. Moreover, he lets in upon me one Despond; who, like a Tyrant, knocks me down at one Blow.

Cryer. Call my Sister Hope.

Judge. 'Fair Daniel, What can you testify against Prisoner?'

Hope. My Lord, he hath often forc'd me almost to let go my Anchor hold, by which Means the Ship Soul hath been upon the rough Waves of tempestuous Sea, and in danger every hour of being broken in Pieces, and utterly lost upon Rocks.

Judge. Is this so, Mrs. Patience?

Patience, Yes, my Lord, for in Times of Tribulation, this Enemy hath let in one Discontent, and his Brother Brother Rapins; by which means I was turn'd out of Doors, and lost the Help of Experience, who is dear Friend to my Sister Hope.

Judge. Were ever Virtuous Damsel thus basely used.

Mrs. Charity. What have you to say against a Prisoner at the Bar?

Charity. Most serene Judge, This cursed Tyrant, Iniquity, hath so prevailed, that I am become an almost dead; whosoever feel me shall find me Clay-cold. I am, my Lord, thro' his Means grown much out of Esteem; most being wearied my Company. Nay, he hath forced poor Hospital out of Doors, and set all People so against her, that none hardly will know her, or take her in.

Judge. Well, what you say. Beautiful Virgin against Sin, the Prisoner at the Bar?

Sobriety. My Lord, and my Sister were importuned to keep the House of every Christian Man, and moderate his Mind in all his Affairs; but Inordinate Desires, who had no sooner got in a Foot, but poor We went to the Walls, and laid warring in our Blood; for he led him on to such Excess our Natures could never endure.

Judge. Come, soft (Charity) Sweat-heart, you any thing to charge the Prisoner with?

Charity. Alas, my Lord, my Heart is not break, to see him; for like a wicked Beast he would have committed a Rape upon me; help me, my Spirits are almost gone.

Judge. Give her a Cordial. Come, Do what you say?

Charity. My Beauty is (as you see) and I have also as pure and Spotless a Monster, having knockt down my two Sobriety and Temperance, by Excess, intemperance, and Wantonness; and they had almost I hardly escaped with my Life.
The Travels of Ungodliness,

Judge. Have you any other Sister that hath not been called?

Char. Yes, my Lord; here is my Sister Prudence.

Judge. Come, Mrs. Prudence, pray declare what you have to say against the Prisoner.

Prudence. My Lord, he has done me as much wrong as any of my dear Sisters. 'Tis I who teach Men and Women to make good use of their Seasons and Opportunities, for the good of their Souls and Bodies; but this cruel Tyrant hath often endeavored to destroy me, by letting in two other Enemies, and base-bred Villains, Idleness and Vain Hope; so that the Ant, by a certain instinct of Nature, learns more Wisdom in providing her Fruit in the Summer, and gathering her Meat in harvest, than I can teach Mankind.

Judge. I know, Prudence, thou art a pious Maiden. Many Women have done Vertuously, but thou and thy Sister have excelled them all. I accept of thy Evidence, and will see Justice done thee and them too, with a Vengeance.

Clerk. Call Mr. Conscience. Here, my Lord.

Judge. Come, Conscience, What can you say for our Sovereign Lord the King against Sin, the Prisoner at the Bar?

Conscience. There hath, my Lord, been much said against him already; but I can charge him with such horrid Crimes that none knows of beside me, and the Majesty of Heaven. He is truly, a Monster of Viciousness, yet there are some of his Treasons, Murders, Incests, &c. that Apollo himself is afraid should come to Light; he hath erected, my Lord, his Throne in the House of one Mrs. Heart, and there he contrives all manner of heinous Crimes. But much more I could say, my Lord, but that I am not willing to tire the Court.

Judge. You have performed your part in few Words.

Clerk. Here are many more Witnesses my Lord.

J. I can't hear 'em now; there hath been enough said against him already: Come, vile traitor, and monster.
The Progress of Sin: Or, of Wickedness, what hast thou to say for thy self? why Sentence of Death should not pass upon you, Sin: My Lord, I have much to say: Is it not sad, I should be abused and beyyed after this Rate? Judge. 'Bely'd, Villain Wherein? Sin. My Lord, All manner of Evil that ever was committed under the Sun, is charged (by some of these Witnesses against me) whereas 'tis evident, the Devil hath been the chief Instrument that hath done great part of it.
Judge. But heark! How came he to be a Devil? He was a good Angel at first, and therefore let us understand, by what means he is made so vile, as to act any of these horrible Deeds against the God of Heaven? Did not you at first deceive him? All the Evil and Mischief he hath done, is justly to be charged upon you.
Sin. Ay, But yet, if it please you, I am wronged; forasmuch of the Wickedness that has been, and is in the World, has been occasioned by Man's own evil Heart.
Judge. 'Tis a vain Thing to use this serpentine Cunning here; pray, How came the Heart of Man to be so evil; was it not good before you entered into it? Have you any thing more to say? If you have, Speak now.
Sin. I have got a pardon here (from his Holiness) pray let me have the Benefit of a Counsel to plead it for me.
Judge. Who would you trust your Cause with?
Sin. Ignatius Loyola, Bellarmine, &c.
Judge. This Court cannot admit of Criminals to be Counsel for a Malefactor, who hath beencaihed and degraded long ago.
Yet we will give you all the fair play imaginable: Pray, How came his Holiness to have the Power to pardon you; since 'tis positively said, None can forgive Sins but God; tho' Man may forgive his Brother the has trespass'd against him, yet he can't forgive the Offence as 'tis against God.

Sin. Good my Lord pity me, a Psalm of Mercy
Do not cast away an Old Man; 'tis near six Thousand Years ago since I was born.

Judge. 'Tis high time to rid the Soul of Man of you. I must proceed to your Sentence.

Upon this, the Attorney General; Divine Justice, stood up, and spoke to this Purpose: My Lord, I require Judgment not only to pass against the Prisoner, Sin, but all against the Sinner too; for they are guilty of his Crimes before God, and it stands not consistent with his Glory and Holiness, that they should be acquitted; therefore I in his Name will and command, That the Sentence of Eternal Death do forthwith pass upon them, and every of them; for the Wages of Sin is no less Punishment, since they have all brok'that just Law that lays them under God's Curse, and the Damnation of Hell; neither can I acquite one Soul of them: The Jury presently found him guilty and the Sinner too: Upon this, O the lamentable Cry that was amongst those Mortals, whose Consciences were awakened. Who stood trembling at the Bar, wringing their Hands; and Tears, like a River, gush'd from their Eyes, begging upon their Knees for Pardon and Forgiveness in entertaining the Traveller.

At last the King's Solicitor, Divine Mercy stood up for the Prisoners, but spoke not a Word in behalf of Sin, the grand Criminal; and spoke to this Purpose
Most Serene Lord, I am ordered, by his most Sacred and Eternal Majesty, to plead for these Self-condemned Malefactors; for the Divine Justice can shew no Favour, yet is God Gracious as well as Just, and hath promised Forgiveness to all such Souls who repent unfeignedly, and forsake this cursed Tyrant; therefore I cannot suffer such Souls to perish.

Judge. Well, to reconcile you both, and greater your Glory equally alike, Divine Wisdom in God hath found
The progress of Sin: Or, found out a happy and blessed Medium, that so he may appear as Just as Justice can require, and yet as Gracious as the Sinner can desire; this is, the Lord Jesus Christ hath in the Sinners stead laid down a sufficient Price to make a Compensation for all the Wrong these Transgressors have done to the Law, to Justice and infinite Holiness.

Therefore the Sentence is this: Sin, thou hast been arraigned, tried, and found guilty of all those bloody, amazing, and abominable Crimes, as Treason, Murder, &c. charged against thee: therefore every soul whom is thoroughly convinced of his notorious Evils, in owing, liking, and entertaining of thee; and doth heartily confess and forsake thee, &c. and apply the Virtue of Christ’s Blood as the only Remedy, he shall live and be forgiven; but thou shalt die without Mercy; and they by the Help of God’s Spirit, shall crucifie thee: neither shall they have their Lives and Pardons upon any other Terms; for either they must die, or thou must be slain.

But all you who do not this shall every one of you remain in the hands of Divine Wrath until you die; and then your Souls shall go to Torments, and in the dreadful Day of Judgment, Bodies and Souls too, with Sin, whom you have so dearly loved, shall be cast into the Lake that burneth with Fire and Brimstone, there to remain in inconceivable torment for ever and ever. Upon this, with such joy, that no tongue is able to conceive; some poor Souls took hold of God’s gracious Mercy, and were pardoned; but the greatest part madelight of all that was said, and seemed to set the Court at nought, being hardened in their Sins, because the Sentence against their evil Deeds was not presently executed, so that they fell into the Hands of Divine Wrath and Vengeance; and are like to perish for ever and ever: And thus the Tryal ended.
