Mat. 23. 8, 9, 10. But be not ye called Rabbi, for one is your Master, even Christ, and all ye are Brethren.
And call no man your Father upon the earth, for one is your Father which is in Heaven.
Neither be ye called Masters; for one is your Master, even Christ.

He. But in the beginning of these words hath a manifest respect unto the foregoing verses, wherein our blessed Saviour describes and censures the ambition and usurpation of the Scribes and Pharisees. He tells you in the fifth verse, All their works they do to be seen of men; not for the pleasing of God, but for gaining of reputation amongst men; not for the satisfaction of their own Consciences, but for vain glory and ostentation. They made broad their Phylacteries; the Phylacteries were little scrowls of Parchment which the Jews did wear upon their arms, or upon their foreheads, wherein they wrote some parcels of the Law of God. How solidly grounded that practice was, I shall not now examine: But the Scribes and Pharisees made these Phylacteries larger and broader than the rest of the Jews, that they might gain that respect from the people by their outward garb, which they could not gain by any true and solid worth. It follows in the sixth verse. They love the uppermost rooms at feasts, and the chief seats in the Synagogues; and in the seventeenth verse, and greetings in the Markets, and to be called of men Rabbi; i.e. Master or Doctor; for so the word signifies; and the word is doubled for the greater honour and respect. They affected titles of honour, and the Jewish Sanhedrim did solemnly confer these titles upon learned men; and they obliged the people to give them these titles; and they had a saying, that he that salutest his teacher as he doth another man, and doth not call him Rabbi; provokes God to depart from Israel.

But indeed there was a deeper and worse design than this in it; they did not only aim at splendid and glorious titles, but they did usurp Authority and Dominion over the Consciences of the People, whereof this was but a sign; as amongst us the Flag is a sign of the Dominion of the Seas, so this title was an indication and sign of that Authority they usurped over the people. Against this leaven of the Scribes and Pharisees, our Saviour cautions them in the words read, Be ye not called Rabbi, call no man your Father upon earth; neither be ye called Masters. The same thing thrice repeated in various expressions, to shew the great importance and necessity of this precept. But how is this to be understood? I answer, it is not a prohibition concerning the use of the name, but concerning the practice of the thing. You are not to understand it thus, as if it were unlawful to call any man Father, or Master, as the Quakers with sufficient weakness will understand it. Certainly the Apostles best understood the meaning of their Lord and Master; and so as much as we find that they themselves did give men these titles, we have warrant enough to use them, Ephes. 6. 4. Fathers provoke not your Children to wrath; and left any man should have such an Allegorical humour as to understand it of spiritual Fathers, they are called fathers of the flesh, Heb. 12. 9. We have bad fathers of our flesh. And so servants must obey in all things their Masters according to the flesh, Col. 3. 22. nay more, it is not unlawful to call teachers by these names; it is not unlawful to call Teachers, Masters, Doctors, Rabbies, 1 Cor. 4. 15. For though you have ten thousand instructors in Christ, yet have you not many Fathers, for in Christ Jesus I have begotten you through the Gospel: I am your Father, your spiritual Father, and the title of Master (Πάσανας) answers to Rabbi in the Hebrew, as the learned know, and plainly appears from Job. 20. 16. Jesus saith unto her Mary, she turned her self about and said, Rabbi! a word of the same signification with Rabbi, which is as much as to say Master. This name I say, is commonly given to Teachers and Ministers of the Gospel; he sent some Apostles, and some teachers or Masters, Πάσανας, and so St. Paul calls himself Πάσανας, a teacher, a Master, a Doctor of the Gentiles.

What then is here forbidden?

Ans. Two things. (1) He forbids a vain and ambitious affectation of such titles of honour as these. (2) And principally he forbids that Authority and Dominion over the Consciences of men which these titles do import. I shall say nothing to the former, the latter is that I must discourse of at this time. And to this purpose, and that you may the better understand the mind of our blessed Saviour in these words; you must know that the Scribes and Pharisees did arrogate to themselves this Authority over the people, the self-same Power which the Popish teachers at this day usurp over their people. This was their do-
That the People were obliged to believe all their Doctrines, and to practice all their Injunctions. These are the very words of the Jewish Talmud, which is as it were their Bible. All the words of our Rabbins are to be believed, and received, as the very words of the living God. And in another place, We owe the same faith to all which the Rabbins teach in their homilies, which we give to the Law of Moses. Nay they went so far as to say, (as Rabbi Solomon an eminent Doctor of theirs faith upon Deut. 17. 11.) Thou shalt not depart from the words of the wife, i.e. their Teachers, though they tell thee that thy right hand is thy left, and thy left hand is thy right; and in another place, be that dissent from his Teachers, is as bad as he that dissent from the Divine Majesty; and he that believes the words of the wife, it is as if he did believe God himself. Nay they went higher, My Son attend rather to the words of the Scribes than to the words of the Law.

Now by this you may clearly understand what our Saviour aims at, and why he precepteth this point with so much vehemency; you see the very life and soul of Religion was stricken at by this intolerable usurpation. Therefore our Saviour faith, call no man Rabbi, call no man your Father upon earth; let none of my Disciples or Apollines ever usurp this Authority; and if any of them should be so arrogant as to do it, let no man give this title to them; that is, acknowledge not this Authority to be in them; own no man for your Father or Master on Earth, except my self or your Father in Heaven.

From the words thus explained I gather this Doctrine.

Doct. There is no external, supream and infallible Judge in the Church of God, to whom all Christians are obliged to submit their Faith and Consciencens, in all matters of Religion.

This was the point that I was desired to discourse of at this time; and I do it the more willingly, because in the whole body of Popery, the opposite Doctrine to this is the heart of it. This is Articulus prime, vel cadentis Papismi: Popery will either stand or fall by the truth or falsehood of this Affertion. It is usual with Papists confidently to invite us to the debate of this Doctrine, concerning the supream and infallible Judge of Controversies; this they all acknowledge, strikes at the root; and we do but nibble at the branches, unless we strike at this.

Now that you may the better understand this Discourse, I must acquaint you with the Doctrine of the Papists in this particular. They are not content with Christ the Judge in Heaven, and the holy Scriptures the Judge upon Earth; but they must have another Judge, a visible Judge; like the Israelites they must have a visible God to go before them, though it be but a Calf. They say (1) that an external and visible Judge of all matters of Religion upon Earth is absolutely necessary; and this Judge they say is the Church, by which they understand the Governours of the Church, either the Pope, as some of them say, or, as others, a General Council, or the Pope and a Council together, as those that would seem wiser than the rest pretend.

(2) They say, this suprem CouncilJ is infallible; he can neither be deceived himself, nor deceive them that stick to him, and are taught by him.

(3) They say it is the duty of every particular Christian entirely and unreservedly to submit his Faith and Conscience to the conduct and guidance of this Judg. to believe whatever he teacheth, and to practise whatever he commands, according to that known and often mentioned, and never to be forgotten Assertion of Bellarmine, De Pontifice Rom. I. 4.
cap. 5. in fine. If, faith he, the Pope could or should so far err, as to command the practice of vice, and to forbid vertuous actions, the Church were bound to believe vices to be good, and vertues to be bad. This is plain dealing; and I cannot but adore the wife and wonderful Providence of God, that should give up a person of such wisdom and learning as Bellarmine, to discover the true and the desperate consequences of this principle, that all men that have a care of their Souls might avoid and abhor it.

This is the sum of their Doctrine; and they further add, that this Doctrine of the Churches supream and infallible Authority, as it is of more weight and importance, so it is, and in all reason ought to be more evident and demonstrable than any other Christian Doctrine whatsoever, as a learned Doctor of the Romifs Church expressly affirms, I mean Cressy in his Exomologesis; whether this be so or no we shall by and by discern. And against this bold and wicked Assertion I have laid down this Proposition, There is no external supream, infallible Judg in the Church of God, to whom all Christians are obliged to submit their Faith and Consciences in all matters of Religion. That which I am now pleading for is, that you may preserve the greatest treasure you have in the world, even your Consciences, against the horrible Usurpations of wicked and unreasonable men. I shall not use multitudes of Arguments to confute the Popifh Assertion, but a few, and those such as may, convince the Conscience of any person, who will not shut his eyes against the light.

Arg. 1. This Authority which they pretend to is a greater Authority than the Apostles themselves did ever claim, or exercise in the Church of God; as plainly appears from 2 Cor. r. 24. Not that we have dominion over your Faith. I do not understand what dominion over a mans Faith can be, if this that they pretend to be not so. God himself can scarcely be imagined to have a greater dominion over any mans Faith than this, that a man be obliged to believe every thing which God faith without examination, and practise whatsoever he commands; and this the Pope lays claim to, as you have heard, and it is notoriously known; by which alone you may sufficiently discern who is that Man of Sin prophesied of, 2 Thes. 2. 4. Who opposeth and exalteth himself above
Serm. I.  Pope and Councils not Infallible.

above all that is called God, or that is worshipped; so that he as God siteth in the Temple of God, shewing himself that he is God. This was our blessed Saviours sole Prerogative, Act. 3. 22. Moses truly said unto the Fathers, a Prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren like unto me, him shall ye hear; in all things whatsoever he shall say unto you. So that this is the height of Christ's honour; and the truth is; it might well be said of Christ, we may safely rely upon and hear Christ in all things whatsoever he should say to us; this was very agreeable to the nature and person of Christ, one in whom were all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge, one in whom the fulness of the Godhead dwelt bodily, one that was God manifested in the flesh: I say, we may safely rely upon such a person; but that this should be said of a weak and wicked man, such as themselves confess many of their Popes to have been, that we should hear whatever he says; this is such a stupendious usurpation, that I can never think of it with horror enough. The holy Apostles thought it good manners to keep a distance from their Lord and maker, they never durst arrogate such an absolute and unlimited Authority to themselves. Witness that evident place, Gal. 1. 8, 9. Though we or an Angel from heaven preach any other Gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed. And as I said before, so say I now again, If any man (be what he will, the Pope or a Council, or any company of men, for ubi lex non distinguat, non est distinguendum, God makes no difference or exception here, neither must we) preach any other Gospel unto you than that you have received, let him be accursed. And do you not think this would be another Gospel if any man should say, that vices were virtues, and sins duties, and consequently that unbelief and impenitency were Gospel-duties, would not this be another Gospel? and you see they allow this Authority to the Pope. If the Pope teach so, you are bound to believe so; but this was not Saint Paul's mind, Though we or an Angel from Heaven preach any other Gospel, do not only disbelieve him, but curse him to his face; it may be, he will curse you, and pronounce an Anathema against you, and roar with his Bulls against you; but regard not that, the curse cannot shall not come, Prov. 26. 2. but the curse shall rest upon himself.

Arg. 2. Such an Authority as they pretend to, is contrary to that command of the trial of Doctrines, which is laid upon all Christians; for if there be an infallible Judge, to whom I ought to submit my Faith and Conscience in all matters of Religion, what need I try Doctrines? certainly there is no room left for it; and therefore the Papists laying down that Assertion, they do with very good sense collect this Conclusion from it. That you owe an implicit Faith to all their Doctrins, and blind obedience to all their commands; it is Bellarmine's Assertion, A Christian, faith he, should receive all the Doctrins of the Church without any examination. Now let us see whether this be the mind of God or no; if it be, than they are in the right; if not, than it is an abominable ble Usurpation. If we consult the holy Scriptures, we shall find that no Christian is to offer to God a blind sacrifice, but a reasonable service. 1 Pet. 3. 15. Be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you. It is not the Colliers reason will serve the turn, nor the Colliers Faith, to believe he knows not why this is not to give a reason of our hope. 1 J oh. 4. 1. Beloved, believe not every spirit, (that is every teacher that pretends to be led by the spirit) but try the spirits whether they are of God, because many false Prophets are gone out into the world. God hath given us sufficient warning, that there should be a great and a general defection amongst Professors, yea amongst the Preachers of the Gospel, 1 Tim. 4. 1. Now the Spirit speaketh expressly, that in the latter times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits, and Doctrines of Devils. Act. 20. 30. Also of your own selves shall men arise, speaking perverse things to draw away Disciples after them, &c. 2 Pet. 2. 1, 2. But there were false Prophets also amongst the people, even as there shall be false Teachers among you, who privily shall bring in damnable heresies, even denying the Lord that bought them, and many shall follow their pernicious ways. Well now, what is the remedy against this doleful disease? be not surprized when you see various and contrary opinions in the Church; it is no more than was foretold by all the Apostles. But now what shall Christians do in this distressed condition and contradiction of opinions? what was the remedy prescribed in case of false Prophets of old? and what is the remedy in case of false Teachers now? Why it is trial. Christians are commanded to try them. There were two ways proposed to try the Prophets of old; the one was by the event. Deut. 18. 21, 22. And if thou say in thine heart, bow shall we know the word which the Lord hath spoken, when the Prophet speaketh in the name of the Lord, if the thing follow not, nor come to pass, that is the thing which the Lord hath not spoken; but the Prophet hath spoken it presumptuously, thou shalt not be afraid of him. And the other way of trial was by the Scripture, Isa. 8. 20. To the Law and to the Testimony, if they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them; and Ver. 16. Bind up the Testimony, seat the Law among my Disciples. And Ver. 18, 19. Behold I and the Children whom the Lord hath given me are for signs and for wonders in Israel, and when they shall say unto you, Seek unto them that have familiar spirits, and unto wizards, that peep, and that mutter, shall not a people seek unto their God? for the living to the dead? The way to discover these delusions is to enquire, and that is by the Law and by the Testimony, and this the people were obliged to. And so this is the remedy prescribed in the New Testament; I need instance but in that place, 1 Thes. 5. 21. Prove all things, hold fast that which is good. Prove all things, who is this that is required to do it? it may be it is the Pope, it may be it is a general Council, and they indeed must prove all things; no, read the first verse of the first Chapter, Paul and Sylvanus, and Timotheus unto the Church of the Thessalonians in God our Father; the Members of the Church, these are here commanded to prove all things, and hold fast that which is good. The same persons are obliged to prove all things, who are obliged to hold fast that which is good: and since it is confessed the latter clause belongs to the people, so must the former also. Consider three things. (1.) Christians have Ability to try things with. (2.) They have a Rule to try things by. And (3.) They have a Promise of discovery; and I think more is not necessary.

First, Christians have Ability to try things with, they have reasonable faculties, they are capable of judging between things that differ; the Apostle speaks to the Church of the Corinthians; 1 Cor. 10. 15. I speak as to wise men, judge ye what I say. Christians, as well as Ministers, have the Spirit of God which enables them to judge of spiritual things. 2 Cor. 2. 13. He that is spiritual (that is, he that hath the Spirit of God) judgeth all things. He is capable of judging between Doctrine and Doctrine, between Precept and Precept, between Practice and Practice; and upon the warrant of this Text, and many others, I dare affirm, that a serious, godly, discreet Christian, is a more competent judge of many divine Truths, than the greatest Scholar in the World, that wants the direction of the Spirit of God: add to this what our Saviour faith, John 10. 4, 5. and remember he speaks not of the Shepherds, but of the Sheep; my sheep hear my voice, and they follow me; a stranger they will not follow, but will fly from him: for they know not the voice of strangers. You see the Sheep are indited by God with faculties, they can distinguish between Christ and a Stranger, between Christ and Anti-christ.

Secondly, Christians have a certain Rule to try things by, and that is the holy Scriptures, to which Christ commanded the Jews to bring all his doctrines. Joh. 5. 39. Search the Scriptures. Acts 17. 11. These were more noble than those in Thessalonica, in that they received the word with all readiness of mind, and searched the Scriptures daily whether those things were so. 2 Pet. 1. 19. We have also a more sure word of Prophecy (the Prophecies of the Old Testament compared with the events and doctrines of the New) whereunto you do well that you take heed, as into a light that shineth in a dark place. Pray observe, 1. Who writes this; it is Peter, he from whom the Pope claims all the power he hath; and yet Peter faith, you do well to take heed to the Scriptures. I know the Popes are grown wiser since, they have corrected Peter; they say, People do ill to take heed to the Scriptures; they say, it is the fountain of all hereof, for people to study the Scripture: our Saviour said, it was the fountain of all error that men did not understand the Scriptures; yet err because you know not the Scriptures. Matt. 22. 29: The Pope faith, Men err because they will know and read the Scriptures. 2. To whom he writes this, look upon the endorsement of his Epistle: Peradventure he writes thus to his Successors; No, but to them;
Pope and C. councils not Infallible.

they that have obtained like precious faith with us, v. r. of this chapter.

Thirdly, Christians have a premise of discovery upon Trial; 2 Prov. 4. 5. If thou seekest her (that is wisdom) as silver, and searchest for her as for hid treasures, then shalt thou understand the fear of the Lord, and find the knowledge of God; Joh. 7. 17. If any man will do his will be shall know of the doctrine whether it be of God, or whether I speak of my self.

Arg. 3. Against the Supremacy and the infallible Authority of the Pope is taken from the danger of following false guides. People may sin in following their guides and teachers; this the Papists deny; they say that People are obliged to believe their Teachers, and if they do so, they are free from sin and danger; and if their Doctrine be true, it must needs be so. This is that I must now briefly examine, as that which alone will decide the whole controversy; when Aaron taught the people to worship the golden calf, and proclaimed, to morrow is a feast unto the Lord, Exod. 32. 5. Did the people sin in obeying Aaron's doctrine, and complying with his precepts, or did they not? I think nothing is more plain, than that they did sin in it: ver. 31. And Moses returned unto the Lord, and said, Oh! this people hath sinned a great sin. Not only Aaron sinned in teaching this doctrine, but the people sinned in believing this doctrine: and in ver. 35. And the Lord plagued the people because they made the calf which Aaron made, or, as the words may very well be interpreted, because they worshipped the calf, or sacrificed to the calf, which Aaron made.

So you see plainly, the people sinned, and were plagued because they followed the Doctrine of Aaron: and so in Isa. 3. 12. O my people, they which lead thee, cause thee to err, by their corrupt doctrines and sinful practices; and yet this did not at all excuse them: for Isa. 24. 1, 2, 3. Behold, the Lord maketh the earth (that is, the Land) empty, and maketh it wait; and turneth it upside down, and scattereth abroad the inhabitants thereof; and it shall be, as with the people, so with the priest, as with the servant so with his master, as with the leader so with the follower: The Priest shall be punished sorely for misguiding the people, and the people shall be punished for following them. To come lower, to the Priests and Rulers of the Church in our blessed Saviours time, the chief Priest and the great Council at Jerusalem then were, as the Papists confess, the supreme and infallible Judges of all the matters of Religion, as the Pope at least with a general Council pretends to be at this day. These infallible Judges, are called blind guiders, Matt. 23. 16. Woe unto you blind guiders; they were universally enemies to Christ; John 7. 48. Have any of the Rulers or of the Priests believed on him? They accounted Christ an impostor, Matt. 27. 63. The very words of their great Council are these, Sir, we remember that that deceiver said, while he was yet alive; after three days I will rise.
Serm. I. Pope and Council not Infallible.

Ife again; these were the men that stirred up the people against Christ. Matt. 27. 20. But the chief Priests and Elders persuaded the multitude, that they should ask Barabbas, and destroy Jesus. You see nothing is more plain; no adversary can be so impudent as to deny this, that the high Priests and the great Council of the Jews did unanimously agree in preaching this Doctrine, that Christ was a deceiver. Now the question is, whether the people did well in believing this Doctrine, or not. Certainly if the Popish Doctrine be true, the people did well in following the high Priests direction, and so the Papists affirm; they are the words of Bellarminus, in his Manual of Controversies, The whole people of the Jews, in the matters of Religion were bound to follow what the high Priest said, and the greatest of their Divines, even Bellarmino expressly says, that the people were bound to stand to the high Priests judgment; whatsoever sentence he should deliver. Now we say, they did sin in believing their Teachers; let us both hear what Christ says, and no more need be said against this abominable Assertion, nor for the deciding of this question, and establishing you against this Doctrine. What can be more plain than that passage of our Saviours, Matt. 15. 14? Let them alone, they be blind leaders of the blind, and if the blind lead the blind, both shall fall into the ditch. You see, he that follows a blind leader is punished as well as he that leads him, both fall into the Ditch. And Acts 3. 17. When the Apostle was Preaching to the Jews, I was, says he, that through ignorance you did it, (that is, you crucified Christ) as did also your rulers. Ignorance it was in the Priests, and ignorance it was in the people; and the people, say the Papists, are excusable, because they were bound to follow the Priests; but did this make it no sin in the people? Let us hear what Saint Peter says, Acts 2. 23. Him, being delivered by the determinate counsel and foreknowledge of God you have taken, and by wicked hands have crucified and slain: Neither Gods decree, nor the high Priests misguidance did at all excuse them from that wicked act; and as they said, His blood be upon us and our children, so we see that sad Curse is upon them to this day; Wrath is come upon them to the uttermost, as the Apostle says, 1 Thes. 2. 16. And if we search this matter a little further, it will more evidently appear, and indeed afford another undeniable Argument to confirm this Truth. Here were two contrary Authorities, God and Christ in his name on the one side, and the Authority of the Church on the other side. Christ commands the Jews to believe in him, John 6. 29. when they asked him, What shall we do that we may work the works of God? What does God require of us? Jesus answered and said unto them, This is the work of God, that you believe on him whom he hath sent: and the great Doctrine, you know, Preached by Christ, was, Repent and believe the Gospel; and Christ tells them, John 3. 36. He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life, and he that believeth not the Son, shall not see life, but the wrath of God abideth on him. And the Arguments our Saviour brings to prove himself to be the Messiah, and to oblige them to believe, they are principally two. The first is the works he did, Job. 5:36. The works that I do bear witness of me, that the Father hath sent me. And the second is the Scriptures, ver. 39. of that Chapter, Search the Scriptures, for in them ye think ye have eternal life, and they are they which testify of me; and in ver. 46. Had ye believed Moses, ye would have believed me, for be wrote of me; this for the one side. On the other side stands the Authority of the Church, the Suprem and Infallible Judge of Controversies, as the Papists say, these are: the chief Priests and Elders, and all the Council, sought false witness against Jesus, to put him to death, Mat. 26:59. and ver. 65. the high Priest pronounced, he hath spoken blasphemy, what further need have we of witnesses, behold now you have heard his blasphemy, what think ye? and the rest consent to his sentence; ver. 66. and they answered and said, he is guilty of death. And the Jews had agreed already that if any man did confess that he was Christ, he should be put out of the Synagogue, John 9:22.

Now then the question lies here, whether the Jews were obliged to believe Christ in this case, or whether they were obliged to believe the High Priest and Sanhedrim, and the Church of the Jews. And methinks the very mentioning of it should presently determine it in all your thoughts; it is so prodigious a thing that the Church should set up it self in opposition to Christ, that no man can hear it without ringing ears. Saint Peter hath decided it, Act. 5:29. Then Peter and the other Apostles answered and said, we ought to obey God rather than man; we ought to believe God rather than man. Can any man that hath the understanding of a man in him, or the Conscience of a Christian, think that the people of the Jews, that the Disciples and Apostles of our Lord did sin in believing in him, because it was contrary to the command of the High Priest and Church of the Jews? Can any man think their Unbelief was their duty? or that the Authority of the Church could make void the command of God? or that the Jews did but their duty in believing Christ to be a deceiver? These are stupendous and prodigious assertions; and yet all these and many more must be digested, or else they must part with their fundamental Doctrine. And just as the case of the Jews was then, so is our case now; for example, God clearly and plainly commands me, as plainly as words can express it, Exod. 20:4, 5. Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven Image, or any likeness of any thing that is in Heaven above, or that is in the Earth beneath, or that is in the water under the Earth, thou shalt not bow down thy self to them, nor serve them. And Mat. 4:10. says our Saviour, It is written, thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve. The Church of Rome comes and teaches us a quite contrary doctrine; they say, thou shalt worship graven Images, and Saints, and Angels, and not God only; the question is, which of these two we must believe, and whose command we ought to obey? whether the Children must obey God
God their Father, or the Church their Mother? whether we must believe the Word of God, which is confest to be so by the Papists themselves, or the word of man, which they vainly pretend to be the Word of God? let the 1 Job. 5. 9. determine this Controversie, if we receive the witness of man, the witness of God is greater. The witnesses of God certainly ought to be preferred before the witness of man; and add to this Mat. 15. 6. You have made the commandment of God of none effect by your Traditions. And vers. 17, 18. in vain do they worship me, teaching for Doctrines the commandments of men; and tell me what is it to make void the commandments of God by mens Traditions, if this be not?

Arg. 4. and last. Against this Doctrine is from the want of a Divine Appointment and Promise; we must remember the question our Saviour puts, Luk. 12. 14. Man, who made me a judge or a divider over you? And that passage, Heb. 5. 4. No man taketh this honour to himself, but he that was called of God as was Aaron. If there be such a Soveraign and Infallible Judge as the Papists pretend there is, and the Pope be he, this Judge ought in all reason to produce his commissiion, and shew his letters patents for it. It is confessed on all hands that man is of himself a vain and foolish creature, full of ignorance, apt to error, that loves darkness rather than light; Men of low degree are vanity, and men of high degree are a lie, Psal. 62. 9. the minds of all men do need renovation, or else they are not capable of discerning Divine things. Now if any man pretend to an exemption from the common infirmities and corruptions of humane nature, this man ought to produce his writ of priviledg, and to shew wherein, and how he hath such an exemption. Certainly if any pretends to be infallibly guided by God in all things, he can claim it only from the grace of God, and by virtue of Gods Promise; but such Promise there is none. I acknowledg the Papists pretend they have such a promise, that I shall next examine. And here are two things to be enquired into: (1) To whom this commissiion and promise is given, and this is the foundation of all the rest; for though it should appear, that God had made a Promise of infallible guidance to some person or persons; yet unless it plainly appear to whom that promise is made, no man can lay claim to it, or have any benefit by it.

Now let us enquire to whom this Promise is made; the Papists say, it is made to the Church; but say I, what do they mean by the Church? say they, it is to the Governours of the Church; but go a little further, and what do they mean by the Governours of the Church? and herein they most horribly break into pieces; this Doctrine they say, as you have heard, is of more importance than any Doctrine whatsoever, and so ought to be proved with the greater evidence, than any other. But when we come to examine it, their evidences are so obscure and invident that they are not sufficient to convince their own Brethren; it belongs say some of them to the Pope, to the Bishop of Rome; say others, Tope but and 3. they and to felly fromife, that Rome upon mu cerning Priefts the how here cerning would from Rome than their our not as serve three things.

1. More clear and express Promises than any they pretend to did not secure the Church of God formerly from error, and therefore it is a vain thing for them to expect it now. I will deal so charitably with our adverfaries, because they want proofs as to help the infirmity of their cause. We will suppose there were such a text as this, In the Church of Rome shall my name be for ever; sure they would define no more than this; they would say, it is plain from hence that the Church of Rome is infallible. But I say, if there were so plain a proof, yet that would not be sufficient to prove it infallible, or to secure the Church from Error, and that I will prove by a plain instance. God speaks concerning the Temple of Jerusalem, 2 Chron. 7. 16. For now I have chosen and sanctified this house which thou hast built, to put my name there for ever, and mine eyes, and my heart shall be there perpetually. You see, here is the same Promise which I supposed made to Jerusalem; but how far this was from securing the Church of Jerusalem, the high Priefts and his Brethren from Error and Apostacy doth sufficiently appear from those frequent and grievous complaints of the Prophets, concerning the univerfal depravation of that Church, and particularly of the Priefts of it, from the instances of the grous errors and miscarriages of the High Priefts and others; and particularly it is put out of all dispute by that fatal and damnable Error of that Church in the condemnation of Christ.

2. Gods Promise of leading them into all truth is suspended upon certain conditions. The Spirit of truth you know is only promised to them that ask him, Luk. 11. 13. How much more shall your heavenly father give the holy Spirit to them that ask him; and it is supposed that they must ask aright; for you ask and receive not, because you ask amiss, Jam. 4.3. and in the place forementioned, Job. 7. 17. If any man will do his will, he shall know the Doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of my self; where you see the knowing of the Doctrine of Christ is suspended upon the doing of Gods will. Now then for as much as the Church of Rome hath apparently broken the condition God requires, as no man that reads their own Historians can doubt, no wonder if God according to his commination in that case, make them to know his breach of Promise.

3. The
3. The Promises which they pretend to are so dark and obscure that they do not convince many of their own Brethren; therefore it is a ridiculous thing to think they should convince Protestants. For instance, I told you they were horribly divided in that fundamental Doctrine of the Infallible Judge, that some place this Infallibility in the Pope, and others in the Council. Now whereas the Promises they pretend to are of two sorts, some pretend this Infallible Authority to be in the Pope, and some in a General Council. Those that say it is in the Pope, do both slight and dispute against those arguments that are brought to prove it to be in the Council, and on the contrary those that believe the Infallibility to be in the Council, dispute and confute those Arguments which are brought for the Infallibility of the Pope. This being premised, I come particularly, but briefly (because I have discussed them elsewhere) to the Promises pretended for this usurped Authority. First for the Pope, and then for the Council.

For the Pope they tell us this story; That Saint Peter was made by Christ the Supream and Infallible Judge of all Matters and Controversies of Religion, and that Peters Successors, the Popes and Bishops of Rome are invested with the same Authority and Priviledges; and this they say, is evident from Scripture, and hath been owned by the Church of God in all ages from Christ's time till Luther's days: this is the Romish Legend, to which I answer; this Doctrine hath no foundation in Scripture; the places they allude for it are principally two.

1. Their first place is Mat. 16. 18. And I say also unto thee, that thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my Church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it. Therefore Peter, and consequently all his Successors the Popes, are the Rock upon which the Church is built; and therefore have the Supream and Infallible Judgment, to whom all persons must submit their Faith and Practice.

Ans. 1. It is plain enough, that it is not Peters Person, but Peters Doctrine which our Saviour doth here speak of. Peter had made a glorious confession, vers. 16. Thou art Christ the Son of the living God; and vers. 17. Jesus answered and said unto him, blessed art thou Simon Bar-jonus; for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in Heaven. And for a further confirmation of this Truth, he adds, I say unto thee, thou art Peter, (he mentions Peters name by way of allusion), and upon this Rock, that is, this Confession made and delivered by thee, I will build my Church, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it.

2. If it were Peters person, and if he were called a Rock, and a Foundation of the Church, yet all this will not prove him to be infallible, much les his Successors. The proper and primary Foundation of the Church Peter was not; witness that evident place, 1 Cor. 3. 11. For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Jesus Christ; in a secondary and Ministerial sense Peter was a Foundation, and so were all the the rest of the Apostles; 2 Ephes. 2. 20. You are built upon the foundation of the Apostles and Prophets; i.e. upon the Doctrine delivered by the Apostles and Prophets not upon their Persons (for then the Prophets could never have come in for a share), and therefore in like manner (if you will allow Scripture to be its own interpreter) when Peter is called a Rock or Foundation, it is not his Person, but his Doctrine to which that title belongs. Rev. 21. 14. The wall of the City (the new Jerusalem, the Church of God) had twelve foundations, and in them the names of the twelve Apostles of the Lamb. Here is no prerogative of Peter, but all are equally foundations.

3. The Promise of Infallibility doth not belong to Peter, but unto the Church, the gates of hell shall not prevail against it; prevail against what or whom? against the Church: it is not the Rock upon which the Church is built, but the Church which is built upon that Rock, unto which that security is promised; he doth not say, the gates of hell shall not prevail against the Church, but the gates of hell shall not prevail against thy successors to the end of the world; but the gates of hell shall not prevail against the Church. So that though Peter dies, and all his successors should prove (as a great number of the Popes have done) Apostates from the Faith, yet still the Church remains built upon the Rock.

4. This Promise is made to the true, invisible and sincere Professors of the Gospel-Church; this is evident from the accomplishment of the Promise. The Promise is, the gates of hell shall not prevail against the Church; and it is manifest the gates of hell did and do prevail against all other persons except the sincere Professors of the Gospel; therefore those persons that are said to be Infallible, and secure against all danger, are only the true and invisible members of the Church.

2. The other place is, Luk. 22. 31, 32. And the Lord said, Simon, Simon, behold Satan hath desired to have you, that he may sift you as wheat; but I have prayed for thee, that thy faith fail not; therefore, say they, Peter did not err in the Faith, and consequently the Popes, his successors, cannot err; but alas, what vain and ridiculous Arguments are these? Nothing is more evident, than that this Promise, or Prayer rather of Christ doth not concern any Infallibility in the Doctrine of Faith, but his establishment in the grace of Faith; if you consider Peter was not so much mistaken in his judgment, the opinion of Peter concerning Christ was not changed, it was not so much an error of his mind as an error in his practice. Peter was afraid of suffering, and flavish fear made him speak against his own Conscience, when he said, I know not the man; and his miscarriage was in his tongue, not in his judgment; so that it is plain it was the grace of Faith that was there shaken, and not the Doctrine of Faith, and therefore no Infallibility can be pretended from it. And here I might defect, but for more abundant confutation of this absurd and abominable Doctrine, I shall shew that as they cannot prove it from from Scripture, we can disprove it from Scripture. I hope I shall make it plain from Scripture, that the Doctrine of Peters Infallibility and Suprem Authority in the Church of God was not received after Christ's death; for this I shall offer two Arguments.

1. That Peter no where challengeth this power.

2. The Apostles no where give it him; therefore it is an intolerable arrogance that his Successors should claim it.

1. Peter did not challenge it. It is observable, that in the Gospel of Mark, which the learned believe was indited by Peters direction, there is not so much as a repetition of that famous Text, Thou art Peter, and on this rock I will build my Church. Peter durst not have omitted it, if it had been so fundamental a Doctrine as the Papists would have it. And afterward Peter writes two Epistles, and there is not one syllable in either of them concerning this Authority, but some may possibly say, this was Peters modesty, that he would not take it to himself. But certainly Peter durst not exercise his modesty to the impeachment of his fidelity, and the concealment of so necessary and important a Truth; but he would and ought to have done as Paul did, who when his Authority was opposed by false Teachers he afferts and vindicates, and (as himself expresseth it) magnifieth his office. Rom. 11. 13, and so no doubt Peter would and should have done had he really had that Suprem Power which the Papists for their own fakes would fasten upon him; and because he did not, it is a great presumption he had it not.

2. The other Apostles no where give this honour to Peter, but rather by their practices shew themselves to be of a contrary opinion; which I think will be sufficiently evident to all sober discreet and disinterested persons from two places of Scriptures, which methinks might suffice for the determination of this Controversie.

The one is, Act. 15. where I must first remind you that at this time our bleffed Saviour was dead, and Saint Peter by the Doctrine of the Papists, was supposed to be in the actual exercise of his Headship over the Church, to be the Suprem and Infallible Judg of all Controversies; and if they say true, he was believed and known to be so by all the rest of the Apostles, and all the Christians of that age; whether it were so or no we shall see by this Chapter. A controversy ariseth in the Church; well, what do they do for the resolution of it? Act. 15. 1, 2. They go up to Jerusalem, to the Apostles and Elders about this question. Why did they not go to Peter if he were the Infallible Judg? it was a vain and frivolous thing to call them all together, if Peter alone might determine it. But it may be these were the Christians at Antioch, and they did not well understand Peters Supremacy and Infallibility, but the Church of Jerusalem understood it better; well, let us examine that too, in vers. 6. the Apostles and Elders came together to consider of this matter; Saint Peter was no more confident with than the rest: in the 7. vers. Peter spake in the Assembly, and delivers his opinion, vers. 10. Now therefore, why
Pope and Councils not Infallible

tempt ye God to put a yoke upon the neck of the Disciples, which neither our fathers nor we were able to bear? the yoke of the Ceremonial Law is wholly to be taken off from the necks of Chriftians, and no burden should be laid upon them. After him James comes and delivers another opinion, different from Peters, verf. 19, 20. My sentence is, that we trouble not them which from among the Gentiles are turned to God, but that we write unto them, that they abftain from pollutions of Idols, and from fornication, and from things strangled, and from blood; as if he had said, I am not altogether of Peters mind, I would not have all these things wholly and on a sudden discharged. It is but meet that some respect and tenderness should be shewn to the believing Jews, and that we should become all things to all men that we may save some; and therefore it is fit we should a little comply with the Jews, not to impose Circumciufion, but to abftain from pollutions of Idols, and from fornication, and from things strangled, and from blood. And the manner of his expreffion here is very observable; My sentence is,

Wherefore I thus determine and conclude. He doth not say, according to the present file of the Romains, and as he ought to have done, if their Doctrine were true, I do in all humility present my opinion to the Vicar of Chrifi, the Prince of the Apoftles, the Supream and Infallible Judg of this and all other Controversies, to whom I freely and fully submit my thoughts and judgment; but barely relates part of Peters discourse, and then concludes with a kind of defective sentence. And which is further considerable, this great Council prefers James his opinion before Peters, and the Decree runs in James his words, verf. 29. That ye abftain from meats offered to Idols, and from blood, and from things strangled, and from fornication, from which if ye keep your selves, ye shall do well. Can any man in his right sense imagine that things would have been thus managed if Peter had been the Supream and Infallible Judg of all Controversies? Yet further, the Decree runs not in Peters name as now it doth in the Popes name, but in all their names; Verf. 23. The Apoftles and Elders, and Brethren, send greet- ing unto the Brethren which are of the Gentiles in Antioch, and Syria, and Cilicia; and verf. 28. it seemed good to the holy Ghost, and to us, to lay upon you no greater burden than these necessary things; and Acts 16. 4. They delivered them the Decrees for to keep, that were ordained by the Apof- tiles and Elders that were at Jerusalem. It is ridiculous and incredible to think that there should not in all this story be one word of Peters preheminence, if he were at that time what they vainly pretend him to be, the Supream Head of the whole Church, and the Infallible Judg of all Controversies.

Another place of Scripture no lefs evident is the second Chapter of Saint Pauls Epiffle to the Galatians, where there are divers remarkable passages; verf. 7. The Gospel of the Uncircumciufion was committed to me (faith St. Paul) as the Gospel of the Circumciufion was committed to Peter. How? what strange news is this? I thought all the Gospel of Christ, whether whether Circumcision or Uncircumcision had been committed to Peter, and not any to Paul, but in subordination to Peter, so says the Pope, so say the Papists at this day: Circumcision and Uncircumcision, Jews and Gentiles, all committed to Peter; this is a new discovery! Saint Paul, though rapt up into the Third Heaven, he knew nothing of this: Peradventure whilst he was in Heaven, the decree for Peter's Supremacy and Infallibility was enacted upon earth, and so he left the knowledge of that Mystery. Howsoever he found nothing of it in Heaven, and we can find nothing of it upon Earth, and therefore it must needs come from a third place, and what that is, I leave to you to judge. He adds further, vers. 9. When James, Cephas, and John, who seemed to be pillars (he speaks of them all alike, all Rocks and Pillars) perceived the grace which was given unto me, they gave to me and Barnabas the right hand of fellowship; and vers. 11. When Peter came to Antioch, I withheld him to the face, because he seemed to be blamed. What? the Infallible Judge to be blamed? this is nonsence: the Infallible Judge to seduce and mislead them that followed him? This he did, says Saint Paul: And therefore it is a very nonsensical opinion to think that at this time he owned Peter to be the Suprem and Infallible Judge of all Controversies. Observe further, how slightly he speaks of all the Apostles, and that promiscuously, without any reservation for Peter, vers. 6. Those who seemed to be somewhat, whatsoever they were, it maketh no matter to me (God accepteth no mans person) for they, who seemed to be somewhat in conference added nothing to me: Peter is no more to me than another man, nor than James, nor John, and all the Apostles. I received the Gospel immediately from Christ, and He that wrought effectually in Peter to the Apostleship of the Circumcision, the same was mighty in me towards the Gentiles, vers. 8. Can any man living think, that considers what he believes, that the Apostle would have spoke thus, and that all the Apostles would have dealt thus, if they had known and believed, that Peter had been at this instant the Suprem Infallible Judge, to whom all were obliged to submit. But further, if all that is said concerning Peter had been true, and if the alleged Promises did indeed belong to Peter, and did make him an Infallible Judge of all Controversies; yet what is this to the Pope, who is a person of a quite different character? Which that you may understand a little, I shall in brief present to you the quality of those persons, who they say, are Infallible Judges of all Controversies. I shall not mention a word out of any Protestant Author, but out of their own writings. The Popes Library-keeper, Plafina, confesseth concerning divers of the Popes, as is notorious, that they were, hominum portas, monsters of men, and elsewhere he confesseth, that there were Eighteen Popes successively, one after another that were Magicians, and in covenant with the Devil. Can any man living think that such persons were infallibly guided by the Spirit of God that had made a league with the Devil?

and Genebrard, a violent and virulent Papist, confesseth that the Popes for a hundred and fifty years together after the Apostles were Apostates, not Apostolical; and our country-man Stapleton, an eminent man amongst the Papists, faith, I must acknowledge, I think there were scarce any sins, except that of Heresy, of which the Popes and Bishops of Rome were not guilty. And it is notoriously known that many of them were Adulterers, and many of them Sodomites, and many of them bloody and cruel men, and guilty of all sorts of Wickedness. I need say no more, but shall leave it to you to judge how incredible a thing it is, that persons of such a character as this, should be the Supreme and Infallible Judges of all Controversies. How can it be imagined, that such a person should be the foundation of the Church, that is not so much as a true member of the Church? Or how can that Promise; The gates of hell shall not prevail against thee, belong to that man that hath made a covenant with Hell itself, or that is a bondslave of the Devil? How can any infamous wicked wretch make claim to those Promises which Christ made to the holy and blessed Apostles? How can it be imagined that that man's Faith is secured, all whose other Graces are ruined and come to nothing? You shall find that Faith and a good Conscience go together; 1 Tim. i. 19. Holding faith and a good conscience, which some having put away, concerning faith have made shipwreck. How can any man's Faith live, when all his other Graces are confessed to be dead? And you know what Saint James faith, Chap. 2, ver. 20. Faith without works is dead. How can that man pretend to be infallibly guided by the Spirit of God, that hath not the Spirit of God in him? It is expressly said of such sensual and brutish men, as many of the Popes are acknowledged to have been, that they have not the Spirit of God. We have it under the hand of one of the Apostles, Jude vers. 19. Sensual, not having the Spirit. Which also appears (and it is very remarkable that it doth so) from that very Text which they bring, to prove the Infallibility of Councils; John 14. 16, 17. I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you for ever, even the Spirit of truth whom the world (that is, as is evident, the wicked men of the World) cannot receive, because it seeth him not, neither knoweth him: the World hath not the Spirit of God, because they have not seen nor known God. Now, those men are that have not seen nor known God, you may learn from another place; 1 John 3, 6. Whosoever abideth in him, that is, in God, or in Christ, sinneth not, whosoever sinneth hath not seen him, neither known him; that is, whosoever doth fell himself to sin, whosoever alloweth himself in the customary practice of sin, for of such only that phrase is meant, otherwise the same Apostle says, If we say we have no sin, we deceive our selves, and the truth is not in us, and There is not a just man on earth that doth good and sinneth not, Ecles. 7. 20. But the meaning is, he that lives in a constant course of sin, this man hath not seen God, nor known known him, and therefore hath not the Spirit of God; and therefore away with that impudent Doctrine that pretends the infallible Guidance of the Spirit, to him that hath not so much as the common Graces of the Spirit of God.

By this time I hope it sufficiently appeareth that the Doctrine of the Popes Supreme and Infallible Authority hath no foundation in Scripture; I should now proceed to shew that this Doctrine was not owned by the Ancient Church succeeding the Apostles: But because this would of it self require a large discourse, and hath been abundantly demonstrated by others, and I have elsewhere spoken something to it, I shall at present wholly forbear it. I thought to shew you that as it was not owned by the Scripture, so neither was it owned by the first and purest Churches.

For the second Particular, the Supremacy and Infallibility of Councils, separate from the Pope, it is so little owned by our English Papists, that I shall not need to spend many words about it. The places of Scripture which they alleged for it, are principally these three.

The first, Matt. 18. 20. Where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them. A most ridiculous proof! for all that this Text proves, is the special and gracious Presence of Christ: Christ's gracious Presence is one thing, infallible Guidance is another thing; if that Presence of Christ makes all those infallible which have it, it is not only the Pope, or a General Council, but all Councils, and all assemblies of Christians are Infallible. Further this Promise is suspended upon that condition of being gathered together in Christ's name, that is, by Christ's command and commission, seeking his honour and glory, being guided by his Rule, and acting according to his Will; all which is included in that phrase of being gathered in Christ's name: It is true he that doth all this is Infallible, but the question is, whether they do this; nay, it is abundantly evident they do it not.

Another place is, John 16. 13. When the Spirit of truth is come, he will guide you into all truth. To that I shall need only to say this, that this Promise is made to the Apostles alone, and it is made to every Apostle. Pray observe it, it was not only made to Peter, but to all the Apostles, and to every Apostle: whereas one Apostle went one way, and another another way, one preached to the Jews, another to the Gentiles, God did promise that he would direct all these in Preaching the Doctrine of the Gospel, that they should be led into all necessary truths, and this was necessary to be done in laying the foundation of the Christian Church: But what is this to the Pope or General Council? He doth not say, that the Apostles shall be Infallible only when they are gathered together, but every one by himself, otherwise all those Churches which were converted by the Preaching of any single Apostle (which was the case of most Churches in the World) had no certain and and infallible foundation for their Faith. And consequently, if this Privileged be extended to the Successors of the Apostles, then not only the Pope is Infallible, but all and every other Successor of any one of the Apostles is Infallible; so that either it proves the Infallibility of divers particular persons, or else it doth not prove the Infallibility of Councils. Another place is, *Acts 15. 28. For it seemed good to the Holy Ghost, and to us, to lay no other burden upon you. A most impertinent Allegation; this is only a Declaration of the present cafe, and no Promise for the future. It is true, he says, this Council was guided by the Holy Ghost, and so they were, but does not say all other Councils shall.
It is notoriously known that many Councils there were that were Arrians, and others that were Erroneous in other points; and the Papists themselves confess that many Councils have Erred, especially those Councils that have undertaken to censure and condemn the Popes, and to set up their own Authority above them. These, they say, were not led by the Holy Ghost, but (as they say expressly of the famous Council of Carthage for that very reason) acted by the instigation of the Devil.
So that it seems all General Councils are not Infallible, but such as they please, or such as please them, the rest must seek their fortunes, and shift for themselves. As for this Council, *Acts 15. it is confessed they were Infallible. But doth it therefore follow, that because this Council all the Members whereof were holy men, and divers of them holy Apostles, (every one of which was Infallible) were Infallibly guided by the Holy Ghost in this Controversie, that therefore a General Council, consulting sometimes (for ought appears to the contrary) wholly of wicked men without the Spirit of God, should be Infallibly guided in all Controver-slies? There is no man of common sense but sees an evident disparity in the case.

I know there is one thing they further pretend, that though it be ture, the Pope is not Infallible of himself, nor the Council alone, yet both together are Infallible; The Decrees of the Pope confirmed by a General Council are Infallible. Two things only I shall say to this.

1. This is but a flattering evasion against their own Consciences, because it is notoriously known, and the Popish Doctors unanimously con-fiess it, that this supposed Infallibility is lodged either in the Pope, or in the Council; They will not allow of a mixt Infallibility, that the Pope should constitute one part, and the Council another. *Beminius says, that Infallibility does not lie partly in the Pope, and partly in the Council, but it is wholly in the Pope, and in the Council, so far and no further than they eleave to the Pope; and says another, *St. Hil. The Council adds no Infallibility to the Pope; it is he alone that is Infallible. And on the other side, those that place the Infallibility in the Council do as expressly affirm, It is not partly in the Pope, and partly in the Council, but wholly in the Council, and in the Pope no further than he sticks to the Council. Which having fully proved elsewhere out of their own Authors; I shall here omit. By which
which it is evident enough, that this is only an artifice to deceive the ignorant and injudicious people, but is not satisfactory to their own Conferences.

2. If this were true, it would do them no good, because it doth not reach the present state of the Church; for at this time there is no General Council in the Church; the Pope is now the only Head of the Church amongst them; so that either the Pope alone is the Infallible Judge, or there is none at this day. If it be said, they have besides the Popes Authority, the Decrees and Writings of the Councils, that will do them no good; for they all saith, there is a necessity of a living Infallible Judge, and they say of the Scripture, that it is but a dead letter, and that no Writings can determine Controversies: so that there being now no Head of the Church beside the Pope, either he is Infallible or there is none such in their Church at this day; and therefore I may conclude, that no particular person or company of men now is, or can be, the Supreme Judge of the Church, to whom all Christians are bound to submit their Faith and Consciences. I shall conclude all with two practical Inferences.

1. Learn from hence what infinite cause you have to bless God that hath delivered and preserved you from Popery, and what need you have continually to pray, and to use all lawful endeavours that this Iron-yoke may never be put upon you. The Popish teachers do by their people, as the Philistines did by Samson, put out their eyes, and make them grind in their mill. Papists must see by their Teachers eyes, and are obliged to believe whatever they teach them. I have been informed by an English Merchant, sometimes residing in Spain, that being in some Conference concerning Religion, with a Spanish of note there and his intimate Acquaintance, he used these Expressions with Tears in his Eyes; "You People of England are happy, you have liberty to see with your own eyes, and to examine the Doctrine delivered to you, upon which your everlasting life depends; but says he, We dare not say, our Souls are our own, but we are bound to believe whatever our Teachers tell us, though it be never so unreasonable or ridiculous. It is doubtless a dreadful thing for a man to see the Inquisition on the one hand, and damnation on the other. Therefore let us bless God that hitherto hath delivered us, and hath prevented in some good measure the hopes and expectations of Papists. Understand I beseech you, and consider your Priviledg; We Ministers do not impose upon you, and tell you, you must believe all we say, though it would be for our interest to do so; but we say with the Apostle, We speak unto wise men, judge ye what we say; We commend you as St. Paul did the Bereans, Acts 17. for searching the Scriptures, whether these Doctrines we teach be true or no. It is a great evidence of the truth of the Protestant Doctrine, that it is not afraid of the Light, it desires nothing more than to be tried; and it is no less an evidence of the falsehood of Popery, that they they dread nothing more than the Light. You know what our Saviour says, Job. 3. 20, 21. Every one that doth evil hateth the light, neither cometh to the light, lest his deeds should be reproved, but he that doth truth cometh to the light that his deeds may be made manifest, that they are wrought in God. God hath given you Talents, we command you to use your Talents, they command you to wrap them in a napkin. God hath given you light, The Spirit of a man is the Candle of the Lord; we command you to see by that Light, they command you to hide it under a bushel. Pity blind Papists, pray for them, and rejoice in the goodness of God towards you, and see what cause you have to be fervent in prayer, that God may never suffer Popery to recover its standing in these Kingdoms.

2. For as much as there is no person upon Earth that can infallibly guide you to Salvation, it concerns you to have the greater care of your own Salvation. You will say what shall we do? I shall only give you these three Directions, and I conclude. Do but these three things, and you need not be troubled that you have no Infallible Judge to secure you in your way.

1. Study the holy Scriptures, let the Pope forbid you to do it, it is no matter; it is sufficient for us, that Christ commands you to do it, Job. 5. 39. Search the Scriptures, for in them ye think ye have eternal life; ye think, and ye think right, you must not take that for a term of diminution; no more than when the Apostle faith, I think I have the spirit of God, 1 Cor. 7. But the meaning is, you judge, and you judge aright in it; Job. 20. 31. These things are written that you might believe, that Jesus is the Christ the Son of God, and that believing ye might have life through his name. The Word is written, and blessed be God you have it before your eyes, it is not hid nor locked up from you, as amongst the miserable Papists; but the Book is open, and you may read it, and may by God's blessing upon your own industry and the use of those helps which his gracious Providence affords you, in competent measure understand it. I shall only mention that one place, and methinks the very reading of it should put this dispute quite out of doors, 2 Tim. 3. 14, &c. But continue thou in the things which thou hast learned, and hast been assured of, knowing of whom thou hast learned them, and thence from a child thou hast known the holy Scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto Salvation, through Faith which is in Christ Jesus.

2. Pray fervently for the Guidance of God's Spirit; and for your encouragement know that God hath not left you without Promises, & those much more clear than those which the Papists produce for their Diana of Infallibility. In general this, Job. 16. 23. Whatever ye shall ask the Father in my name, he will give it you. And left any should think this Promise is confined to the Apostles, our Saviour adds, Job. 17. 20, 21. Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word. That they all may be one, &c. Another clear and comfortable
Pope and Councils not Infallible.

Serm. I.

If ye then being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your Children, how much more shall your Heavenly Father give the holy Spirit to those that ask him? Whence I may venture to draw this Conclusion, That an holy and humble Christian sincerely asking the conduct of the holy Spirit, hath better assurance of his Infallible Guidance in all Truths necessary to Salvation, than an ungodly Pope that either doth not ask it, or asks amiss, seeing such a person hath no interest in Christ, in whom alone all the Promises are Yea and Amen, 2 Cor. 1. 20. And therefore let no Christian perplex himself with such anxious thoughts as these, What shall I do under the various and contradictory Opinions that are amongst us? I want wisdom to discern. St. James tells you what you should do, Jam. 1. 5. If any man lack wisdom, let him ask of God, who gives to all men (mark that) liberally, and upbraided not, and it shall be given him. And therefore in this case beg Counsel from God. There is not the weakest, nor the most ignorant creature amongst you, but if you faithfully and diligently seek direction from God, you may confidently expect it. Pray to God as David did, Psal. 25. 5. I lead me in thy Truth, and teach me; for thou art the God of my Salvation, on thee do I wait all the day. And Psal. 43. 3. Oh send out thy Light and thy Truth, let them lead me, and bring me unto thy holy hill. And as David did beg this of God, so he promised it to himself, and so may every sincere Christian, Psal. 73. 24. Thou shalt guide me with thy counsel, and afterwards receive me to glory. God is the same God still, and as able and as willing to direct you as ever he was, and as faithful in keeping his Promise as ever, as ready to hear as you are willing to ask. You have it under God's hand, Luk. 11. 10. Ask and you shall receive, seek and you shall find, knock and it shall be opened to you. What need more be said to encourage the Faith and the Hope of all that fear God?

3. If you would discern and hold fast the Truth, love and practice it. The best way to be certainly guided into the way of Truth, is to live up to it. Of this we have evident assurance in that forementioned place, Job. 7. 17. If any man will do his will, he shall know of the Doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself. Certainly a good Conscience is the best preservative of a man's Faith; and therefore when once men put away a good Conscience, the next news is, they make shipwreck of their Faith, 1 Tim. 1. 19. Holding faith and a good conscience, which some having put away, concerning faith have made shipwreck; an eminent instance you have, 2 Thes. 2. 10, 11, 12. Because they received not the love of the truth that they might be saved, for this cause God shall send them strong delusions, that they should believe a lie, that they all might be damned who believed not the Truth, but had pleasure in unrighteousness. A Text that needs no other Comment but the Examples of this Generation. Papists brag much of the many Profelytes they have gained amongst us. For my part I am not at all surprized with it. When I consider
To consider such Texts as this and the righteous and tremendous Judgments of God, I rather wonder they do not flow into them in far greater numbers. Nor can I believe that any wise man will think they have any great cause of triumph in their Proselytes, if he will but make a little enquiry, and get a true Character of the generality of them. He that knows their Morals will never wonder at the change of their Religion. It is no strange thing if a dissolute Protestant turn a zealous Papist; or if the righteous God shake those out of his lap, and out of the Protestant Church who were but rotten members of it.

I conclude all with that excellent advice, 2 Pet. 3. 17, 18. Ye therefore, beloved, seeing ye know these things before, beware lest ye also being led away by the error of the wicked, fall from your own stedfastness, but grow in Grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.
